This section will chronicle in full detail the systematic child abuse and nonstop cover-up of the British government protecting its own army of hardcore pedophiles who for over a half century have been free to act out their child raping pathology against UK’s most vulnerable population – children in group home care. The massive evidence is overwhelming yet to this very day not one politician in the UK Parliament or prime minister’s cabinet has ever been brought to justice. Britain is a disgrace to the entire world, serving as just the tip of the iceberg permitting hundreds, if not thousands over the years of prominent serial child sexual predators shielded in high places to permanently wound as well as murder millions of their own innocents without paying for their scourge of diabolical violent crimes. They have gotten away with it forever because pedophiles and their enablers who’ve long saturated government, high courts, police, civil servants, British intelligence, the media and royal family have all made certain this out of control epidemic is kept hidden from exposure and accountability.

Though Sir Jimmy may have been one central connecting hub within this despicable national operation, with or without him, the UK government is still guilty of perpetrating the sickest perversions against its own defenseless children living throughout the British Isles and beyond. The heinously pervasive practice sodomizing this nation’s little boys in particular, since violating young males appears to be the overwhelming sexual preference amongst so many of UK’s pedophile politicians, earns the not-at-all-great Britain the dubious distinction as the pedophilia epicenter of this entire world, with Belgium, Netherlands, North America and Australia not far behind.

This section will methodically begin by covering various major scandals around England with later chapters focusing on those in Wales, Northern Ireland and Scotland (along with connections to the wider international pedophilia network) involving sexual crimes committed by prominent Westminster and Downing Street politicians against targeted child victims from mostly group homes, special schools and the pedophile “home” away from home - railway station public toilets frequented by predatory PMs and MPs on the prowl for underage runaways and rent boys.

After interviewing scores of abuse victims over the years who identified powerful VIPs atop the British government as their perpetrators, longtime child activist-journalist Sonia Poulton has turned over her findings to the police. In an article written for Express in March 2014, she asks why not one of the accused pedophiles has ever been arrested or prosecuted.[1] She cites the sheer hypocrisy of the mini-scandal making headlines at the time involving prominent Labor politicians Harriet Harmon, husband Jack Dromey and Patricia Hewitt’s past NCCL-PIE association in comparison with the glaring avoidance of the real tragedy - that household names of those who remain unscathed after having committed the most heinous acts imaginable are still walking free:

I have heard stories of satanic ritual abuse, a significant factor in many paedophile rings, at the hands of household-name parliamentarians past and present.[2]

Sonia interviewed whistleblowing former British intelligence officer Andrea Davison who confirms what we've already come to know:

Paedophiles are a staple of parliamentary life and have been for some decades. She [Andrea Davison] claimed that MPs have been filmed abusing children and this footage is used to blackmail parliamentarians into acquiescing on issues of global importance.[3]

And those issues of "global importance" you can bet have everything to do with the Anglo-American-Zionist Axis-of-Evil's agenda to eugenically depopulate the planet through war and manmade disease,[4] make pedophilia legal (Chapter 2) and gain absolute tyrannical control through one world government as humanity's false savior promoting UN Agendas 21 and 2030 and the UN's star-studded "Global Goals."[5]

In an interview before his death in 2008, UK Conservative Party Whip Francis Pym (1970-73) demonstrated a rare display of matter-of-fact honesty, alluding to always helping out peers of either party by covering up their problems like "a scandal with small boys," because then MPs will "do what you want forever more."[6] With this reality a standardized norm and unwritten rule etched in stone, coercion politics through "owed favors" and sexual blackmail become the primary control mechanism by which puppet politicians dutifully dance to their masters' tunes.

Since this chapter focuses on the role that Tony Blair and his ministers have played in promulgating government VIP pedophilia and its cover-up, prior to addressing his heavily infiltrated pedophile and pedo-enabling cabinet, a cursory examination of Anthony Charles Lynton Blair's pedo-tendencies himself provide a broader contextual background and linkage leading to today's pedophilia pandemic. Former Prime Minister Tony Blair's past includes sexual deviance with a predilection for crossdressing, frequenting public toilets in lustful search of young boys, a pair of college mentors who were confirmed pedophiles, and his subsequent blackmail at the hands of the Mossad and Zionist Israel to join his equally compromised American counterpart George W. Bush Jr similarly possessing the same proclivities.[7] 9/11, the War on Terror and invasions of Afghanistan and Iraq were all machinations reflecting Zionism's far-reaching global reach and control through sexual blackmail manipulating the United States and Great Britain to fight Greater Israel Project wars, forcing them into Israel's bloody bidding.[8]

A highly significant, telling fact and certainly no accident, during Blair's 10-years as prime minister from 1997 to 2007, the number of missing children in the United Kingdom nearly doubled, rising from 570 in 1997 to 950 in 2007.[9] Knowing his perverted history of lies and deception and scandalous misconduct throughout both his life and decade in power, the disturbing reality that missing kids nearly doubled on his watch alone is in accordance with his evil misdeeds providing a boom for both Zionism and the globalized child raping network, two related entities that later in the chapter will be further elaborated.

While attending the Edinburgh boys' boarding school Fettes, the type taken up with homoerotic spanking rituals as typical subject matter in Lord Longford, Sir Jimmy and Sir Cliff's 1972 bestseller Pornography (covered in Chapter 20), "Miranda" the crossdressing collegiate was regularly visited by Irish loyalist Sir Knox Cunningham, a confirmed lover of boys.[10] Cunningham was part of a pedophile ring that ran in the same circles as royal family curator and treasonous pedo-Russian spy Sir Anthony Blunt and William McGrath, an MI5 operative-right wing loyalist-housemaster-convicted pedophile at Northern Ireland's Kincora boys' home in 1981 (fully addressed in Chapter 26).[11] The onetime MP and PM

Macmillan cabinet secretary, Knox Cunningham was also friends with other Cambridge spies, fellow pedophile traitor Guy Burgess and Lord Victor Rothschild (Thatcher's foreign adviser),[12] and additionally financed William McGrath's Protestant paramilitaries that also maintained close ties with Zionist gangsters' illegally supplying Israeli weapons… again confirming another of many Zionist-pedophilia-Blair connections.

Moreover, during Tony Blair's years at Fettes (1966-1971) prior to his Oxford education, "Miranda" had befriended his spiritual mentor the school chaplain, Rev. Ronald Selby Wright, a popular Church of Scotland minister with links to both the military and boys clubs.[13] Wright reputedly preyed on Fettes students and in his final summer at the Scottish boarding school, Blair ran a summer camp for Wright's kids. From age 13 to 18, possessing such close relationships with significantly older male role models who were known pedophiles strongly suggests he himself may have been victimized. With disgraced alt-right poster boy Milo Yiannopoulis, a fine line exists between victim and predator when it comes to his own pederast relationships.[14] If truth be known, Blair might admit he too enjoyed his relationships with older, powerful mentoring males he so much admired as they groomed him for bigger and better things.

Former British intelligence operative Anthony T. Stokes has written that in 1983 Tony Blair was caught soliciting sex from underage boys in a police surveilled London public restroom, "importuning in public toilets."[15] Though required to appear at the Bow Street Magistrate Court where he used his two middle names "Charles Lynton," thereby avoiding scandal as a brand new elected Member of Parliament. Court records, police notes and evidence of several prior verbal warnings were to later disappear.[16] With his past history of sexual deviance, Tony Blair became the perfect candidate to be groomed for higher office as an easily blackmail-able, thoroughly compromised puppet for Mossad-Zionist control to commit British soldiers and nation against the people's will to disaster dying on Middle Eastern battlefields using deadly WMD lies to sell more wars for Israel killing over a million Muslims in Iraq alone.

Between his Zionist top backers Lord Levy and Friends of Israel, and his perverted habits targeted for sexual blackmail by Mossad, Tony Blair was Israel's whore. His primary handler was "Lord Cashpoint" – Committee of 300 player Michael Levy, who financed Tony Blair's meteoric rise to the world stage along with his New Labor Party from 1994 to 2007.[17] In return, Lord Levy headed Blair's special envoy to the Middle East. Levy was in deep with the "Cash for Honors" scandal, brazenly selling wealthy Jewish businessmen appointments to the House of Lords.[18] His son David Levy is an Israeli citizen who's often held top level positons in the Israeli government. A month after becoming former PM, Tony and his wife Cherie attended David's plush wedding on the heels of the Blair-Levy cash for honors fiasco.[19] Scandal or no scandal, the Anglo-Zionist cabal remains one big happily-ever-after controlling family.

The Blairs didn't stay long at the wedding celebration as they were due to fly out first thing the next morning to the Caribbean to vacation at Sir Cliff's £3 million villa in Barbados again. Sir Kitty's crash pad had become Miranda's home away from home, his shelter from the storm during his decade long bruised and battering as such an unpopular was criminal. It was the fifth summer in a row that Tony chose to lick his wounds compliments of his nurturing good buddy.[20] Of course it was only eight years earlier that Blair was alleged to put the professional hit on Cliff's dear friend Jill Dando for knowing too much, just like Princess Diana little more than a year and a half earlier, both murders committed on Blair's watch of two of Britain's most beloved women for threatening to bring down the VIP pedo-cabal.

Another key Jewish Blair handler of the Zionist persuasion, or so called chief foreign policy/national security advisor from 2001 to 2003 coordinating the US-British Iraq invasion was Committee of 300 VIP,[21] Sir David Manning. Prior to that, he was UK ambassador to Israel and from 2003-07 was ambassador to US. At the time of 9/11, Manning was flying over New York City watching the twin towers come tumbling down, ostensibly in America to meet the day before with neocon 9/11 co-conspirator Richard Armitage.[22] The CIA appointed head of Pakistani Intelligence Services General Mahmoud also just happened to be meeting in Washington that same day is on record making payments to the lead 9/11 "terrorist" stooge Mohammad Atta,[23] the one whose untarnished passport just happened to be found near the fallen rubble a few days later.[24]

Within a year after Sir David was US ambassador he was paid £50,000 per year as part-time advisor to giant permanent war contractor Lockheed Martin.[25] Similar to Sir Jimmy, Sir David Manning also appears to be éminence grise for the royal family. In 2009 the queen appointed Manning advisor to Princes William and Harry for all their foreign travel expeditions. As recently as June 2018 the monarchy's employ of the Jewish Middle East controller continued as the future British king visited Israel and Israeli Occupied Palestinian Territories, a royal first.[26] To this day the Zionist grip continues ruling over both the UK and US.[27]

And now for a look at Tony Blair's prime minister record as a pedophile enabler, if not pedophile as well, although his embarrassing public toilet episode at the same time he entered Parliament is said to have taught him a lesson to be more discreet indulging in his favorite perversions. But like Thatcher, it didn't stop him from saturating his government with pedophiles. But prior to uncovering the identities of Blair's child abusing ministers and aides, an accounting of how they wound up on law enforcement radar in the first place sets the stage for this cast of criminal characters in the Blair pedo-lineup.

In 1999, the same year Blair more than likely had Jill Dando murdered, Britain's National Criminal Intelligence Service working under the codename Operation Ore put together an exhaustive list of child pornographers and pedophiles identified to be offending in Britain alone, totaling 7,250 suspects of which 1850 were charged with child sex crimes and 1451 were convicted.[28] Police interviewed nearly 500 suspects under caution and 900 remained under ongoing investigation in the United Kingdom's most thorough and comprehensive police probe into crimes against children.[29]

A January 19, 2003 Sunday Herald article quoted a recently retired Scotland Yard police officer accusing the Operation Ore probe of intentionally sabotaging the arrest and prosecution of high profile Labor politicians that included Blair cabinet ministers as well as MPs caught downloading child pornographic material.[30] No doubt by design, the police inaction allowed guilty parties the opportunity to delete and destroy evidence. The detective from the Operation Ore investigation blamed both law enforcement and the Blair government for not following through on their vow to make the crime of pedophilia a top priority, calling it "smoke and mirrors." Had Blair not willfully obstructed justice, covering up the scandal by issuing a D-notice blackout on all subsequent press coverage, the final line in the Herald article relays the bold claim destined never to come to pass:

Police say that the list of rich and famous Operation Ore suspects would fill newspaper front pages for an entire year.[31]

Only one entertainment luminary's name was not spared from press headlines, disgraced rock star Pete Townshend of the legendary band the Who, given a caution and placed on a sex registry for five years.[32] As in post-Jimmy Savile

Operation Yewtree, the powers-that-should-not-be will gladly sacrifice a token entertainer or two long before bringing pedophile MPs and ministers to proper justice.

Operation Ore was part of a larger police investigation stemming from Operation Avalanche in America involving the FBI, US Postal Inspection Service and Dallas police originally unearthing a landslide of files from a company called Landslide Productions in Fort Worth, Texas.[33] This outfit serviced thousands of international customers busily downloading its child pornography. Despite 35,000 perverts investigated as suspects in the US, only 100 were charged.[34] For the same reason so few in Britain were indicted, the derelict-filled Bush 2 administration (same as daddy Bush and Blair's) was also caught red-handed neck deep in pedophilia. Also guilty were child pornography and sex abuse rings found operating throughout the US armed forces, including the Pentagon, at military prisons like Abu Ghraib and Guantanamo, and amongst private military contractors like DynCorp[35] and Halliburton in places like Bosnia, Kosovo, Afghanistan, Ethiopia and Thailand (see Section 3, Chapters 8-11).[36] In effect, deep links to the entire global pedophilia network were accidentally uncovered and then quickly covered up.

By January 2003 the police inquiry known in Britain as Operation Ore was the largest child abuse online investigation in British history to date,[37] honing in on a number of high ranking pedophiles within the Blair government, including at least two senior ministers.[38] But because Blair was busily lying through his teeth following the marching orders of his Anglo-American-Zionist puppet masters, on the verge of launching the infamous US-UK "shock and awe" Iraq invasion, the pedo-protecting PM issued his D-notices under the pretense of national security interests in order to prohibit the press from covering the pedophilia scandal that would have overnight destroyed

Blair's career, his and Bush's war-making regimes and their bloody, costly, protracted catastrophe in Iraq. The large scale police investigation had uncovered links between child sex abusers in Blair's Labor Party cabinet and a massive pedophilia trafficking network moving children across the Euro-continent between the UK, Netherlands, Belgium, Austria[39] and Portugal involving dignitaries and VIPs in every nation.[40]

Of course Tony Blair was far from the first UK prime minister to be sexually blackmailed into fighting wars for Israel. Zionist sexual blackmail controlling top UK politicians has gone on for a century now. For instance, the political marriage of convenience between Tory Prime Minister Harold Macmillan (1957-1963), reportedly expelled for "homosexual perversions" at age 16 from the exclusive private Eton College in 1910, and his wife Dorothy, who maintained a 30-year extramarital affair with promiscuous pedophile gay-Lord Boothby, provided ample opportunity for sexual blackmail.[41] Enter Cambridge UK-KGB-Mossad superspy Lord Victor Rothschild,[42] later Thatcher's security advisor, who likely blackmailed Macmillan on behalf of Israel to initiate the 1956 attack on Egypt's Suez Canal.[43]

To avoid sexual scandal, blackmailed prime ministers eager to retain their power and impunity resort to great lengths to protect VIP pedophilia operations which through intelligence services over the course of time have expanded internationally, especially by the late 1970s. Such notable UK operatives as Sir Jimmy Savile (MI5), Sir Anthony Blunt (MI5-KGB), Peter Righton (National Children's Bureau; National Council of Social Work) and Colin Peters (British foreign office)[44] to name just a few, all hardcore pedo-pimps (covered in previous chapters) were busily supplying children for VIP sickos in both Britain and Europe. Yet another pimping culprit to emerge in the 1980s (whose crimes will be detailed in the next chapter) is Tory Party

Thatcher “advisor” and speechwriter Derek Laud, a son from a broken home of Jamaican immigrant parents.[45]

Keep in mind that the pedophile ring pimps that indulge the sick demented needs of powerful untouchable Britons are nearly always just as covered up and concealed as the identities of the famous VIP pedophiles involved, because they are the connected bread crumb ratlines running straight to the royal palaces, 10 Downing Street and Westminster. Yet despite such heavy-handed protection and impenetrable concealment furnished by intelligence services, law enforcement agencies, Crown Prosecution Services, the controlled media and all levels of government from national to local that invariably lose and destroy massive amounts of crucial criminal evidence,[46] together they still provide more than enough proof that the aforementioned named procurers funneling victims to powerful, largely unnamed, still unpunished VIP pedophiles demonstrate beyond all question or doubt that a highly sophisticated, highly insulated, interlocking international child raping network has in fact been in existence for a very long time. And what else is perfectly clear is that all this tangible, irrefutable evidence amounts to “only the tip of the iceberg.”[47] That said, even with a handful of known and publicly identified powerful pedophile suspects being shielded in the House of Commons and Lords, not one politician at the national level has ever been convicted or served time in prison, not one. And undoubtedly a partial list of over 100 convicted British pedophile politicians at local council, mayoral and party levels posted online as of April 2012 is but a proverbial “tip of the iceberg.”[48]

Though influential homosexual-pedophile-pimp Derek Laud’s been legally protected, another black Englishman who made history as Britain’s first black cabinet minister appears even more powerfully connected. Paul Boateng, son of a Ghanaian minister and Scottish mother, in the 1980s was an ambitious young attorney and NCCL executive member intimately allied with PIE,[49] embarking on a long career in politics as a Labor MP from Brent South (1987-2005).[50] Selected as Tony Blair's home minister from 1998 to 2001 overseeing UK police investigations, in 2001 until 2005 Boateng was treasury secretary and then the British High Commissioner to South Africa from 2005 to 2009. As of 2010 he's been elevated to the House of the Lords as Baron Boateng.

But this high profile British slickster of a politician has also been implicated in murderous pedophilia that Blair ensured stayed protected and covered up. However, far too many loose ends refusing to go away can be traced back to his scandalous-prone past and are long overdue to catch up to this highly shielded, still acclaimed VIP lord.[51] But before diving into his part in the Blair pedophilia cover-up, a little background info on his neck of the woods is critically important to comprehending the bigger picture.

In 1983 when MP Geoffrey Dickens first raised the issue of MPs and cabinet ministers engaging in sexual abuse of British children, submitting his dossier to Home Secretary Leon Brittan, social workers across the nation went on strike for better pay and improved work conditions. As a consequence, local children in the UK care system were uprooted and separated by hundreds of miles apart from their hometown family and friends. In 1983 it was reported that social services from the South London borough of Lambeth were sending 124 kids as far away as North Wales,[52] straight to notorious care homes like Bryn Estyn where one of UK's most deadly abuse scandals and cover-ups was occurring from the 1970s through the 1990s. The rampant child abuse in North Wales will be thoroughly covered in Chapter 26.

But while Lambeth children were being placed in harm's way in Wales, they were perhaps even more endangered as residents in any one of 25 care homes in their own home district. With Lambeth also the home headquarters of Britain’s notorious foreign intelligence services the MI6,[53] and the proven nexus between worldwide pedophilia operations and global intelligence services (see Chapters 9-11),[54] is it purely by coincidence that for so many decades Lambeth has been such a safe haven for pedophile beasts to prolifically prey upon the borough’s defenseless group home children?

That was then and this is now. As far as kids in the UK Care System being placed far from home, though it grew very bad in the 1980s, right now it’s at a record high. Despite the British government’s pledge to not send children in its care system hundreds of miles away from their homes, knowing they are at far more risk of abuse, the 2018 Education Department report reveals that the rate at which British children are being sent to placements lengthy distances from home has risen by 64% from 2,250 in 2012 to 3,680 in March 2017.[55]

Even more alarming is the number of children in the UK “care” system gone missing in the past two years alone, having skyrocketed to more than double from 4,380 in 2015 to 9,190 in 2017. What does it say when the latest numbers show that more than 10,000 kids in the system disappear for weeks or longer at a time[56] out of the total Care System population of over 90,000?[57] With record numbers entering the care system at 90 a day in 2017[58] and already over 11% missing from their placements, it means that children are being mistreated and abused both in and out of their care homes, compounded and exacerbated by the rising record numbers being sinisterly placed hundreds of miles from home. The dire consequences of an already broken system are breaking even farther apart at the seams.

In May 2018 MP Ann Coffey accurately stated:

Despite the [government's] pledge, record numbers of children are being sent away to places where they are more vulnerable to exploitation. The farming out of children to areas where they have no friends or family circles or local social workers has created a perfect storm where it is increasingly difficult to protect children. These children [far from home and especially gone missing] are being targeted and preyed upon by paedophiles and criminals who know they are vulnerable*.*[59] [Emphasis added]

Essentially what appears to be happening is that a brazenly criminal decision was made at the top of the British government to substantially increase the flow of throwaway children into a well-established nationwide pedo-pipeline operating on an industrial scale to feed the growing perverse demands of a pathological international elite that's behind the biggest ever global child raping and trafficking network. The agenda of the UK family court system's been to tear families apart, remove children from non-abusive parents and tragically destroy the nation's most basic, most vital social institution providing a bedrock of stability for eons of time, placing its most defenseless, vulnerable population into the predatory jaws of the UK Care System that's systemically destroying them in unprecedented numbers.

The bottom line - the Anglo-American-Zionist agenda rooted in Luciferianism is determined to obliterate families around the world while establishing one world government tyranny. The diabolical larger plan is to export this same wholesale destruction of family as humanity's foremost institutional life-force presently being deconstructed in the UK to every nation in the world. The endgame of this collectivist Marxist agenda is to globally replace family (along with religion, national sovereignty and private ownership) with the state.[60] The totalitarian gulag state of Stalin and Mao's oppressive Communist democide dictatorships is right around the corner if the planetary controllers are allowed to achieve their dystopian globalist objective.

Examining how this demonic grand plan strategy from hell unfolded at the local micro-level and spread rapidly nationally in Britain is illustrated by how Labor politician Margaret Hodge saturated her district's youth care homes with infiltrating pedophiles back in the 1980s. The Islington council leader in 1982 began her 10-year reign of terror against group home kids, promoting a highly publicized invitation to hire gays into her Islington council, its social services and group home facilities.[61] Using the LGBT agenda of fairness to all as her deceptive Trojan horse, she cunningly flooded group homes with child rapists proudly claiming they were gay to work with children in all dozen of her Islington group homes. No one would dare risk challenging the "Political Correctness," much less "violate" the rights of homosexuals, even if they're masquerading as parasitic kiddie killers. Following Islington's lead just a stone's throw away, in parallel process also waving the gay rights' banner, the Labor dominant Lambeth council coalition also flooded its social services and care homes with child predators claiming to be exercising their gay and lesbian rights.

In a very much related move, under the leadership of Margaret Hodge's husband Henry Hodge as chairman of the National Council for Civil Liberties (now known as Liberty), in 1975 he openly partnered with the Paedophile Information Exchange (PIE), fully embracing the rights of UK pedophiles.[62] Thus through both his and her interventions in the 1970s and 80s, virtually all the London districts became interconnecting, highly embedded safe havens for hardcore child rapists deceptively wearing the LGBT label. Higher-ups at councils and social services alike invited likeminded perverts to infiltrate, network and seal off virtual safe zones to establish a thriving secret network of predators serving their own sick lustful compulsions at the expense of Britain’s most defenseless population, while also providing easy access for UK’s establishment VIPs sworn to safeguard their pedo-club impunity for survival. Even the British government’s Home Office became infiltrated with likeminded child pedophiles.[63]

For Margaret Hodge to pretend she didn’t know her 1983 open advertisement for gays to work with her care home children as a thinly veiled invitation for co-opting pedos under the “gay rights” movement that her own hubby championed is preposterous. Of course both she and her Lambeth Labor counterpart Ted Knight knew they were saturating their 37 care homes with child sexual predators.[64] With the Islington beta test underway making it super easy for pedos to access care home children while guaranteed protection under gay rights, by September 1983 Islington’s next door neighbor Lambeth was pushing Hodge’s same Trojan horse policy. Thus it seems from the very ge-go, her assigned mission from the UK pedophilia establishment was to expand the child raping network nationwide. It certainly was no accident that as a brand new MP in 1994 Hodge nominated her Islington neighbor Tony Blair to be the next Labor Party leader[65] and he in turn made her Britain and his first minister of children - all sanctified by Lucifer’s design.

The Islington and Lambeth borders are separated by a scant two mile stretch of the City of London, the Illuminati Rothschild independent enclave that funds global child sex trafficking.[66] While Labor politician Margaret Hodge ruled over Islington with an iron fist, her friend in Lambeth Knight,[67] often referred to as the “Godfather,” ran his council like the Mafia. By intended design, both London districts were notoriously swimming with infiltrated pedo-sharks reportedly swapping children between boroughs and outward in all directions among the Isles. To maintain impunity, it wasn't long before the massive amount of incriminating files and records establishing direct links between Islington-Lambeth to all other pedophile rings operating throughout the nation were systematically destroyed.

In the words of award winning reporter Eileen Fairweather who originally broke the Hodge story:

Islington shredded every incriminating file, sacked whistleblowers and smeared victims as mentally ill.[68]

Abraham Jacob, a pedophile social worker employed at a Lambeth group home prior to employment at Islington social services, was busted in 1986 and imprisoned for his involvement in a Piccadilly Circus pedo-ring. He specialized in picking up runaway rent boys off the street and supplying them to Labor Party politicians and BBC executives.[69] He would also pimp his underage boys, showcasing them in a window of a gay bar to attract johns.[70] Abraham Jacob was very familiar to Labor council leaders Ted Knight, Margaret Hodge and Jack Straw. Of course Hodge and Straw went on to rarefied heights in the Blair government holding key ministerial posts. What's been proven by their actions throughout long political careers is that they all are ultra-pedophilia-friendly.

Recall from Chapter 19 that a few social workers originally from the Channel Island of Jersey who moved to Islington were both voracious pedophiles as well as child traffickers.[71] The Jersey-Islington connection exchanged child victims and pedo-pimps posing as both social service workers and traffickers servicing Westminster VIPs in both locations, and of course aided by Sir Jimmy Savile's pimping exploits. Throughout the 1970s and 1980s a nationalized pedophile ring network was developed and expanded under Margaret Thatcher's watch to every corner of the UK through the likes of Savile, Anthony Blunt, Peter Righton, Derek Laud and a host of other prominent pimping players networking and interfacing with intelligence services, law enforcement, the National Health Service, local social services, charity organizations, the family court system and dozens of district councils.

From the lower levels of group home employees and operators to the top Westminster and Downing Street powerbrokers, by the 1980s infiltrating pedophiles were thoroughly entrenched throughout Britain, maintaining a close-knit, highly organized secret “sex club” network providing sealed off protection for their collective survival. An August 1st, 1993 Sunday Times article observed:

For the past five months officers from the squad have secretly liaised with directors of social services in more than half a dozen London boroughs amid fears that organised gangs have targeted vulnerable children in their areas. Several of the most prominent offenders under surveillance are wealthy businessmen [and other establishment VIPs conspicuously omitted].[72]

More than a half dozen years later a February 2000 headline in the Daily Mail read “Even Worse,” reflecting that this same operational pedo-network had grown to industrial strength size, far worse than expected, and this is over a decade prior to the Jimmy Savile bombshell. The article reported that:

Detectives believe a nationwide network of paedophiles has claimed as many as 11,000 victims over 20 years.[73]

Keep in mind that police estimates tend to always be on the conservative low side. That said, British law enforcement discovered that hundreds of pedophiles were able to roam freely about the country and beyond to continental Europe,[74] often dispersed with sterling job recommendations and referrals from infiltrated fellow pedophiles embedded as gatekeepers in the UK power structure, from national to local, granting carte blanche license and protection to further harm defenseless underage victims. Even in the 1980s and 1990s the abuse had reached an unprecedented industrial scale.[75] Historically in the UK, prior to police investigations implicating and potentially exposing VIP perpetrators, British intelligence, Scotland Yard's Special Branch and police commissioners have always stepped in to swiftly shut down probes as soon as identities of government higher-ups are involved.

The above statement is backed up by serving and former Metro Police officers on an anonymous Scotland Yard online forum. A transcript was leaked to investigative journalists at Exaro News. One said:

> This is about kids being raped by those in power that included politicians of all sorts. It goes to the very heart of our establishment. There is very clear evidence that the general nature of the allegations are true. There are enough officers on this site who have mentioned paedophile ops involving high profile politicians being stopped at the eleventh hour.[76]

Two retired Special Branch officers came forth in 2014 to disclose to the half dozen detectives assigned to work Operation Fairbank launched in 2013 in response to MP Watson's assertion that historic child sexual abuse committed by Westminster VIPs still needs investigating. A source close to Fairbank alleged that the retirees claim:

> There was a significant paedophile group in Parliament who were untouchable to the police.[77]

This of course explains why no past or current member of Parliament or the prime minister's office has ever been arrested, much less convicted or imprisoned, confirming what's become at this point common knowledge - government VIPs live above the law. And true to form, Operation Fairbank was shut down as yet another abysmal, costly failure netting not one politician's arrest despite police surveillance videos reportedly catching MPs, ministers and celebs in action partying with and abusing trafficked children at the Elm Guest House.

Yet occasionally back in 2000, the alarming truth gets leaked out to the public by a then far less controlled press. The abuse that had been shielded for several decades in Lambeth grew so blatantly out of control that in 1995 all 25 care homes were closed.[78] In 1998 and 1999 Operations Trawler and Middleton were launched, initially to investigate John Carroll, then uncover pedophilia crimes in Lambeth from 1974 to 1994 and in 1999 expanded into a nationwide inquiry, recognizing the overwhelming presence of an extensive, flourishing network of deranged sickos preying on UK's throwaway kids, "even worse" than previously imagined.[79] Coincidence that Metro Police investigated the rampant Lambeth abuse from 1974 to 1994, the exact same years that the Blair minister's wife served on the corrupt Lambeth council?

Despite Operation Middleton lasting four years into 2003, unfortunately only a miniscule number among the legions of criminals were ever brought to justice, all three low level employees granted overly lenient short prison sentences. The central figure in this scandal - John Carroll - did only five years. Hundreds of hardened child sodomizers have been granted full impunity by the rotten to the core system, including the high profile Blair minister that the media has largely avoided naming,[80] but anyone who knows anything about the Lambeth scandal knows it's Lord Paul Boateng, in 1998 a home office minister in charge of UK police investigations.[81]

For a half century or more, the British pedophilia network has been firmly controlled by gatekeeping degenerates from social services, borough councils, law enforcement, high courts to top echelons of governmental power in Westminster and Downing Street. In all this time, absolutely nothing has changed… except over time passage, more and more truth has leaked out in little bits and pieces.

By 1999, even the compromised and controlled Scotland Yard was reporting that up to 50 suspected pedophiles were involved in Lambeth group home abuse during the preceding 20 years.[82] 16 of the identified perpetrators were already deceased prior to the outset of Scotland Yard’s Operation Middleton, strongly indicating murder was treacherously used as a silencing weapon against any would-be informers and whistleblowers.[83] 50 children who entered Lambeth care homes were never seen again by their families.[84]

Shirley Oaks Children’s Home, another notorious Lambeth group home complex bearing a tragic history of rampant abuse from its 1903 founding to its 1983 closure, was comprised of 52 Victorian cottage “care” homes on 80 acres,[85] reputedly the world’s largest single children’s care home.[86] The Shirley Oaks Survivors Association (SOSA) is made up of over 700 members, all purported child abuse victims at Lambeth care homes from the 1950s to the 1990s.[87] SOSA maintains that the pedophile ring operating in Lambeth in actuality was far greater in number than the 50 admitted by the police, more like well into the hundreds.

In March 2016 Raymond Stevenson, the SOSA founder and abuse survivor, testified at the IICSA that:

What took place at Shirley Oaks and other children's homes in Lambeth was physical and sexual abuse on an industrial scale which remained unchecked for decades. The damage done was irreversible. Lambeth council itself has had many inquiries in the past. For whatever reason, including council cover-ups and institutional cover-ups … we now see they were whitewashes.[88]

Only eight months after Stevenson’s testimony, it was all too evident that Theresa May’s so called “Independent” Inquiry is just another futile exercise staged and controlled by Home Office designed to whitewash the real truth and never bring justice for the victims against the perpetrators. As a panel member for the first two years, the Shirley Oaks Association quit in November 2016 when it became painfully clear that May’s inquiry was merely another hoax. SOSA had this to say about its official pullout:

> Having watched the IICSA unpalatable circus stumble and lurch from crisis to crisis with multiple resignations and claims of racial and sexual abuse thrown into the mix, it no longer matters whether we think the inquiry is just another stitch-up because it's clearly a botch job that needs a drastic overhaul if it is ever to achieve its initial objectives. [89]

Unfortunately with the IICSA, it was déjà vu. With the disturbing reality that Britain’s ruling elite will never come clean in its deplorable institutional crime history against children, as much effort it exerts to block the truth, courageous abuse survivors will ensure that the colossal concealment of atrocities is made public. Media coverage of the abuse epidemic has burst forth in waves, starting over three decades ago, then two decades ago, and then came the most recent 2012 avalanche exposing the Savile abuse that resulted in thousands more allegations against powerful elite pedophiles, echoed in MP Tom Watson’s October 2012 House of Commons confrontation with former Prime Minister Cameron.[90]

But even after a near half decade of the IICSA, not one MP or cabinet minister has ever gone to jail for raping, much less murdering children at will from orphanages and care homes over the last half century. With the national inquiry a cruel joke and the pedophilia cabal’s 2018 pushback via Sir Cliff Richard’s court victory (see Chapter 21), in so many words warning “don’t mess with the privacy rights of the rich and famous,” it effectively silences both the media and victims, vis-a-vis indicted accuser “Nick” due to stand trial in March 2019.[91] So don’t hold your breath waiting for the first VIP rapist to go down any time soon, not as long as he’s still alive anyway. Before the elite pedophiles can ever be brought to justice, so smugly secure are they inside their fortified pedo-epicenter of the earth mansions, the waking masses will need to revolt first. What’s more than clear is nothing short of that will change the shameful and pathetic status quo in Britain.

That said, one encouraging sign as a significant shining example of taking bold successful action toward achieving some modicum of justice is the story behind the Shirley Oaks Survivors Association (SOSA).[92] Though seeking justice against perps obviously can never give back victims’ stolen childhoods and many decades of pain and struggle since, the published SOSA report has singlehandedly compelled the Lambeth council to allocate £100m in compensation to its tens of thousands of past abuse victims (at least £10,000 each estimated for 3,000 expected claims).[93] Once victims united as empowered survivors led by Raymond Stevenson, they have been able to identify abusers where police have failed (no doubt intentionally), resulting in arrests and financial compensation for victims. SOSA serves as a model of inspiration and courage for child abuse victims and citizens for justice everywhere.

In 1967 the UK family court system decided that Raymond Stevenson’s father was unable to properly care for his son and sent him to Shirley Oaks Children’s Home near Croyden where Raymond lived for the next eleven years, drugged and physically abused the entire decade.[94] During his final year at Shirley Oaks in 1977, a 15-year old friend of his named Peter Davis was found hanging by a cord in a bathroom of one of the cottages. Though evidence indicated he'd been abused by at least two staff members that went on to abuse others,[95] the court ruled his death a "misadventure," a favorite scenario for murder cover-up by staged foul play.[96] Two years earlier Peter Davis had testified as a court witness in a rape trial. When in 2003, documents from the trial were suddenly sealed for the next 100 years,[97] music producer and abuse survivor Raymond Stevenson realized that "Peter's voice was the first of many to be silenced."[98] He vowed to expose the horrific truth once and for all and within a month coordinated a reunion of Shirley Oaks survivors and SOSA was spawned.

Raymond and his business partner Lucia Hinton interviewed over 400 former resident survivors and published their own report of documented evidence in December 2016.[99] This comes after much of the Shirley Oaks records of abuse crimes and documents confirming gross miscarriage of justice have been "lost" or destroyed by the Lambeth council.[100] The SOSA report has led to the naming of up to 60 suspected pedophiles, 10 more than the final number all the failed police investigations and Lambeth council inquiries had ever come up with.

It's also been reported that Jimmy Savile visited three cottages designated to house children with various disabilities, was friends with a Shirley Oaks superintendent back in the 1950s and 60s and DJ'd events at the Shirley Oaks Community Centre.[101] As both a knight of the queen and pope and also a prime pedo-pipeline architect laying ratlines for UK's trafficking network, Sir Jimmy not only was his nation's most prolific abuser and VIP procurer, he also enjoyed unequalled access to both Britain's children as well as inside elitist contacts with royalty, government, intel services, law enforcement, National Health Services, entertainment, media and religion. So of course it'd be more than a safe bet he victimized children living at the world's biggest care home complex in a district proven to be among the most notorious pedophile havens.

After escaping justice twice in court trials in the 1990s, in August 2016 the conviction of former Catholic priest Philip Temple jailed for a dozen years after admitting to abusing a dozen boys and one girl dating back to the 1970s was vindication.[102] With SOSA's assistance, police have since charged a couple more pedophiles. Prior to Raymond and his association's heroic efforts, only one Shirley Oaks child rapist, a swimming instructor named William Hook was ever convicted for the thousands of sex crimes against children at Shirley Oaks during the 80 years of appalling abuse.[103] In 2001 63-year old Hook was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment after admitting to 26 charges of indecency and sexual assault on a half dozen boys, though he may have abused hundreds since the 1970s.[104]

In 1983 Shirley Oaks was finally forced to close its doors after eight straight decades of horror. But by the mid-1980s, living conditions for children placed in all 25 Lambeth group home facilities were growing intolerable. A flurry of sexual abuse allegations perpetrated by childcare workers toward handicapped children began surfacing in the media at several group homes where Lambeth social services placed youngsters. In late December 1985 into 1986 it was publicly reported that several children were being sexually abused. A 12-year old boy with an alleged intellectual capacity of a four-year old just released from a care home disclosed to his mother that a male staff working at the home had sexually assaulted him after she noticed severe anal bruises.[105] The police soon suspected that all six children at the group home had been abused.

Another incident involved a care home's senior social worker forcing a 15-year old handicapped girl to give him oral sex.[106] Four separate cases went public at different homes operated and supervised by Lambeth council, all surfacing within 13 months apart. Yet ultimately no action by either police or social services' investigations was subsequently taken against alleged abusers despite in some cases medical evidence supplied by police doctors.[107] Due to the limited cognitive functioning of alleged victims rendering their testimony "unbelievable," despite physical evidence, the lame Crown Prosecution Services claimed all cases were too weak to deliver convictions and were summarily dismissed.[108] Both Scotland Yard police and Lambeth council failed these abused children in the worst way, unconscionably sending them right back to their abusers allowed to continue working in the homes harming children.

Moreover, a tit-for-tat petty turf war emerged between the Lambeth council and the local police, both refusing to share and exchange critical information and evidence,[109] resulting in even grosser child endangerment that predators took full advantage of.[110] In 1987 even the whistleblowing child advocate MP Geoffrey Dickens called upon Attorney General Michael Havers, himself later an accused pedophile, to reopen the horrendously unjust Lambeth abuse cases.[111]

Lambeth's deadly CYA culture of intimidation and fear permeated a rigidly enforced policy of inaction characterizing the borough's systemic failure to protect and care for vulnerable children, much less bringing scores of perpetrators to justice. Just as in districts like Islington and countless other cities and towns across the British Isles, looking the other way was becoming a given policy and national norm. Pedophiles fully exploited the fact that back in the 1980s in their fervor to recruit "gays" to work with kids, places like Islington and Lambeth never required background checks, nor were childcare workers required to report suspected child abuse to police. Time and time again, councils in these "liberal" London boroughs ignored the fact that they had unleashed predatory pedophiles on abusive rampage against their children. Moreover, as is common in virtually all cover-ups, during the subsequent so called inquiries one after the other by either police or social services, it became increasingly clear that hundreds of incriminating files from offices were either lost or destroyed, not from incompetence but a calculated, sinister decision to obstruct justice to protect the guilty.[112]

Where you find pedophiles and pimps, you also find child pornographers. In October 1992 police found thousands of photos of naked boys and many pornographic videos at the private home of an arrested childcare worker employed at one of several care homes involving hundreds of abused victims.[113] As the offenders were rarely if ever consequenced, the magnitude of abuse soared to the extent that by 1995, Lambeth was eventually forced to close all 25 of its care homes.

Child sexual predators like Lambeth care home operator Michael John Carroll, a previous convicted pedophile for abusing a boy in Merceyside in 1966, were systemically permitted to continue committing serial sex crimes against children.[114] During the decade Carroll ran his Angell Road boy brothel from 1981 to 1991, even midway through his tenure in 1986 when his past conviction record became known to the Lambeth council, apparently due to his connections with VIPs like the Boatengs, his license to operate was continually renewed.[115]

For years in the 1980s Paul Boateng’s attorney wife Janet served as council chair on Lambeth’s social services committee directly responsible for group home care[116] as well as a Lambeth councillor for 20 years coinciding with the borough’s worst decades of pedophile ring abuse.[117] Even when the Lambeth council finally terminated Carroll’s employment in 1991, it wasn’t even over his flagrant sexual assaults, but in comparison, a relatively minor financial impropriety, using public funds to buy cigarettes and liquor.[118]

Once the Lambeth council finally terminated Carroll’s employment contract, after his criminal habit had forced exits from Merceyside and then eventually Lambeth, John Carroll and his wife began looking to relocate to set up shop in the next location, this time on the border of England and Wales. In January 1991 the serial pedophile bought an antique shop as well as plunked down £725,000 in cash on a hotel near Wrexham in North Wales, the center of another horrendous UK child abuse scandal.[119]

Since for years Carroll was part of the Lambeth brothel system pimping kids out for a price to VIPs, no doubt lots of dirty money exchanged hands in his rent boy operations along with Lambeth’s prospering child pornography business, affording his near three quarters of a million pound property in an area where boy brothels in North Wales were attracting even more top government VIPs. Carroll’s confirmed social networking links to prominent fellow child abusers have fueled speculation that he turned his Wales acquisition into yet another lucrative brothel business.

For a number of decades Michael John Carroll was allowed to continue abusing kids entrusted in his care - since Lambeth council failed to ever initiate corrective or disciplinary action against him to protect their children, chronicling an identical parallel process that unfolded during the exact same years in the borough next door at Hodge’s pedo-lodge as an interconnected twin sanctuary. Investigating police during Operation Middleton concluded that at least seven abusers of the dozen potential suspects at Angell Road were from outside the boy brothel. The huge unanswered question remains - was Lord Boateng one of them?

Back in the 1980s, attorney Boateng was spotted by several credible witnesses making evening visits at Carroll’s home a regular thing. Teresa Johnson, a former social worker employed at the Angell Road facility went public before a national audience on a BBC Newsnight broadcast maintaining that she spoke to Paul Boateng requesting him to sign the facility guestbook and observing him frequently visiting the home on about a half dozen occasions.[120] A youth worker also claiming that John Carroll boasted of his ties with the rising political Labor star, also maintains he witnessed Boateng attending a holiday camp that Carroll ran as well as often seeing Boateng in Carroll's company.[121]

And still another witness reported that Boateng contacted him on behalf of the pedophile after three neighboring social services turned down Carroll's request to foster a couple more kids, deemed potential victims by Croydon, Southwark and Wandsworth.[122] When seeking foster approval, Lambeth also withheld that Carroll was rejected by other councils, including the fact Carroll was named in a 1993 independent inquiry into child sexual abuse. For Lambeth to go to such extreme, deceitful measures on behalf of a known pedophile shows just how much power of corruption was behind John Carroll. And the prime source of that power according to a number of witnesses appears to be Lord Paul Boateng.

Former assistant director of social services on Lambeth council Dr. Nigel Goldie stated in 2014:

There was a cover-up to protect politicians' reputations following allegations of abuse at a children's home.[123]

Yet when asked in March 2016 about John Carroll at Prime Minister May's laughable farce of an "Independent" Inquiry on Child Sexual Abuse, the former Blair minister came prepared, adamantly denying he ever met or knew John Carroll. Again, keep in mind that Boateng in the 1980s was an executive member of NCCL, the human rights lobbying organization that embraced in partnership PIE, the outfit publicly pushing pedophilia as a natural birthright:

As a campaigning youth justice lawyer I acted for many young people in care and visited many youth facilities in the course of my work. I didn't know Mr Carroll personally and have no recollection of meeting him professionally or visiting the Angell Road children's home or anywhere else where he was present. I'm unaware how the investigation into Mr Carroll was conducted. I therefore cannot comment on why the police did not seek my assistance.[124]

Here the head honcho ruling over all of Britain's police investigations in 1998 is claiming 20 years later that he knew nothing of the Metro Police probe into pedophilia at a care home in his neighborhood that his wife was legally in charge of. So as Home Secretary at the time, he has the audacity to pretend he knows nothing? That's the same kind of absurd, preposterous claim that Margaret Hodge offers when she insists she had no clue her district was infested with child rapists. These highly implausible statements only demonstrate that by simply using denial as their feeble defense, MPs and ministers guilty as sin of criminal misconduct are always granted a free pass to live above the law. In Boateng's case, it's at least three people's word against his, all having far more to lose than gain by their claims. Shortly after Teresa Johnson's 2016 BBC interview, she was dead. In contrast, who in this case possesses both motive and means to lie? Politicians bent on saving their own ass and who lie because they get away with it. In England apparently a lord's word is taken as "the gospel" and is deemed truer than lowly common folk.

Prime Minister Theresa May's fake inquiry must have swallowed Boateng's fish story hook, line and sinker, trusting "the good lord's word" since the baron to this day remains in good standing as esteemed member of the House of Lords. So much for May's promise of an "independent" investigation of institutional wrongdoing she admitted while placing her Home Office fully in control to "get to the bottom" of the British government pedophilia cesspit. For us to actually think that criminals in charge of investigating their own crimes are ever going to come clean is an insult to our intelligence and complete sham. But it’s the British way, or more apt, the Luciferian way.

Rendering the savvy politician’s 2015 IICSA public performance even more suspect, the clincher to this smoldering crime drama arrived in November 1998 when Clive Driscoll, Scotland Yard’s lead detective heading up Metro’s Operation Trawler was investigating Carroll and closing in on questioning Boateng regarding his possible role in the Lambeth scandal. Meanwhile, amidst the post-Savile uproar in 2014, liar Tony Blair who conned Britain a decade earlier into the bloody mess in Iraq claimed he had “no recollection” of ever learning that one of his ministers was a child abuse suspect.[125] We know that’s another Pinocchio lie since Blair’s D-notice is the only reason his minister Peter Mandelson didn’t go to jail after Operation Ore caught him purchasing child pornography.[126]

111 pages of documents and memos released through Freedom of Information requests show that in 1998 prior to Detective Driscoll being relieved of his Operation Trawler duties, both Blair’s Home Office Minister Boateng and Health Minister Frank Dobson were both briefed on Scotland Yard’s ongoing investigation into Angell Road home abuse identifying a dirty dozen suspects that included Boateng.[127] This absolutely proves that between Blairite disciples Sir Peter and Lord Paul, the prime minister was well aware that at least two of his ministers were/are extremely probable pedophiles. Yet in a feebly indignant gesture attempting to demonstrate he has nothing to hide, in 2014 Blair self-righteously demanded yet another investigation into multiple claims suggesting his buddy Boateng was a child abuse suspect.[128] Once a liar, always a liar. Of course order follower Dobson also maintained he has no recall of ever being briefed on the case either.

In a related theme, in March 2015 another brick in the crumbling cover-up wall of deception came loose when it was reported that Britain’s top cop - Metropolitan Police Chief Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe, was being questioned by his own detectives in his role in the Lambeth pedophilia scandal.[129] It’s standard operating procedure in the UK that even the nation’s “top cop” is an order follower when higher-ups in British Intelligence or national government are giving the orders. And as soon as Home Office Minister Paul Boateng’s name came up as a possible suspect amidst the widespread Lambeth abuse, the pedo-investigation leading to him was soon enough halted. At that time in 1998, Hogan-Howe was the Merceyside assistant chief constable leading the Carroll criminal investigation. Again in 1966 back in Merceyside, John Carroll was convicted of his first child abuse offense, only to become years later the pivotal central stooge in the Lambeth scandal/cover-up. The borough council employing Carroll was well aware of his status as a Level-1 convicted child sex offender running one of its care homes doubling as a VIP boy brothel.

Politicians and top cops simply lie their way out of trouble every time. In 2015 the Mirror reported the 111 documents were handed over to the Metro anticorruption unit.[130] But with Boateng’s IICSU appearance in March 2016 and nothing more ever heard since from either that inquiry or the police anticorruption inquiry, you can bet that no further action has been or will be taken despite irrefutable evidence strongly indicating that senior members of the Blair government are unpunished hardcore pedophiles.

With over 200 abused children in Lambeth care homes according to Operation Middleton,[131] in 1998 the highly skilled investigator Driscoll, who later cracked the notorious Stephen Lawrence murder,[132] was making headway uncovering the pedo-ring involving VIP politicians when he was abruptly removed and disciplined for committing "serious indiscretions,"[133] simply for "confidentially" naming the powerful players involved during an August meeting with Lambeth officials.[134] Three months later Driscoll's boss apologetically notified him that he was off the case and told the "orders come from on high,"[135] indicating 10 Downing Street as the probable source in order to protect Home Office Minister Boateng who was not only briefed but in charge of the very UK police operation making him a suspect…[136] déjà vu Leon Brittan receiving the Dickens dossier fifteen years earlier. See why cabinet ministers from the British Home Office are always pedophiles or minimally pedophile enablers? UK's nonstop cover-up would be impossible otherwise.

In 2014 it also came out in the Mirror that when Lambeth assistant social services director Dr. Nigel Goldie as the council boss in charge of child protection working in 1998 directly with Clive Driscoll mentioned Boateng's alleged evening visits at Carroll's Angell Road "brothel" back in the early 1980's, Det. Driscoll's Operation Trawler investigation was soon enough shut down.[137] When politicians so close to a nation's leader are implicated, without exception in every single case, any ongoing police inquiry becomes past tense as standard operating cover-up procedure. Whenever a major pedophilia scandal risks VIP exposure, the self-preservation mode always kicks in no matter the country or abuse location.

Detective Clive Driscoll ultimately wrote a 2015 autobiography entitled In Pursuit of the Truth based on his many years with the Scotland Yard, specifically devoting two lengthy chapters to the Lambeth child abuse case involving his unjustified termination as Operation Trawler Chief Detective Inspector (CDI).[138] In August 1998 Clive met with Lambeth officials to explain that his investigative team had already come up with a dozen suspects whose names were “confidentially” revealed, among them several VIP politicians that included headliner Boateng as well as a council member and a popular entertainer. All hell broke loose after that. The Lambeth council stonewalled the investigation. Clive Driscoll’s probe had stirred up a hornets’ nest, making instant enemies amongst guilty parties, subsequently resulting in anonymous phone call threats to Clive and his family’s safety.

Social worker Steve Forrest had raped a 6-year old boy at Carroll’s Angell Road home in 1987. Forrest died of AIDS five years later.[139] In a tumultuous November 1998 meeting Driscoll confronted the Lambeth senior officials, stating it was unconscionable that the then 11-year old victim was never informed that his rapist had died six years earlier from AIDS. But the Lambeth council refused to disclose the truth to the boy on the grounds that it was deemed “not in the boy’s best interest.” During the heated showdown, Driscoll was even threatened with removal as DCI from his own police probe.

Early on in the Lambeth investigation, social worker Libby Blake employed at Lambeth social services from 1992-2005, approached Det. Clive Driscoll, informing him that Lambeth council in 1986 had become aware of John Carroll’s previous 1966 conviction. Though the statement below was reportedly denied by the former Lambeth social worker, in his book Clive maintains that Libby also stated:

> Carroll was only the tip of the iceberg, the children’s homes have been the playground for the rich and powerful for years.[140]

Speaking of the rich, powerful and famous, for his 51st birthday in 2002, four years after Det. Driscoll was removed from investigating the Blair minister, the now 67-year old VIP Lord Boateng had his superstar pal Michael Jackson fly in special to sing happy birthday in the House of Commons, merrily joining his “birds of a feather friends” in a photo-op with not only the accused pedo-King of Pop but also Uri Geller, the infamous Zionist double agent spy, MK Ultra handler and multiple pedophile friend,[141] and the well-known pedophile fellow Labor Zionist Lord Greville Janner.[142] The photo alone raises a thousand words worth of suspicion that collusion was taking place between high profile figures within the international pedophilia community.

Libby Blake recommended that Detective Driscoll talk to former Lambeth council chairwoman Anna Tapsell. According to Driscoll, Libby said Anna is “the only one in Lambeth who’ll tell you the truth.”[143] At one time Anna headed the Lambeth social services committee (same post held earlier by Janet Boateng), and for two decades Tapsell vigorously campaigned to expose the horrendous abuse at considerable risk to herself. Anna was visited by several intimidating senior officers from Special Branch,[144] known for shutting down police probes, disappearing evidence and protecting the pedo-network at all cost, demanding she leave the Lambeth affair alone. Threatened and harassed on numerous occasions by other nameless intimidators, the undaunted Anna Tapsell persisted in telling the truth, stating to the press:

When I learned that Clive was being removed, not only from the case but also from Lambeth, I realised that the Met were caving in to political pressure that was far more powerful than Lambeth Council.[145]

Referring to John Carroll and other protected child abusers in the Lambeth pedo-ring, Anna added:

At the same time alleged perpetrators were moved or allowed to leave for financial misconduct or other misdemeanours, instead of for the abuse.[146]

As a courageous insider, Anna states the obvious conclusion:

I have no doubt Angell Road may have been used for organized child abuse which involved adults other than staff. This view is reinforced by the strong investment that officers and politicians have in blocking any effective investigation.[147]

Prior to being yanked off the case and reassigned, CDI Clive Driscoll uncovered lots of dirt:

I found someone who admitted they'd seen pornography changing hands on council property, which led to someone else saying there was a video doing the rounds featuring 'prominent' people engaged in sexual activities with minors.[148]

Because higher ups at Scotland Yard were clearly in cahoots with the corrupt Blair government as well as the corrupt Lambeth council criminals abusing children, despite admitting there were over 200 victims, in four years Operation Middleton netted a total of three measly convictions, one being John Carroll.[149] Though Metro Police claimed 19 suspects remained unidentified, indicating they likely operated outside the UK Care System,[150] scores if not hundreds of infiltrated child rapists that were/are part of the British pedophilia network got off scot free, free to move on to abuse more kids elsewhere, exactly like the legions of Catholic priests around the world.[151]

As if all this incriminating circumstantial evidence and oddly suspicious anomalies aren’t enough, there is also the plethora of suspicious deaths and murders of victims and potential whistleblowers. Onetime Lambeth council member turned MP John Mann has stated publicly that two murders of would-be whistleblowers were committed to keep the lid on the VIP pedophile ring operating in his borough.[152] In 1989 a social worker planning to expose the rampant abuse in care homes was allegedly killed in an arson fire.

Another unsolved murder mystery that took place in 1993 involves the sudden death of veteran Lambeth council insider, the district housing manager Bulic Forsythe who shared with a colleague that he was about to “spill the beans” on the Lambeth scandal.[153] As housing manager Bulic had discovered photos of children abused by members of Lambeth council[154] and learned that both women and children were being systematically raped on Lambeth city property, including the basement of his own housing office headquarters. He was determined to blow the whistle to stop such abusive shenanigans being committed right under his nose. But just three days later, he was found murdered, bludgeoned to death, with three men sited leaving the crime scene of his flat carrying files shortly before it was set on fire.[155] And predictably to this day, his murder remains unsolved… an all too common fate among truth tellers.

Moreover, in December 2014, MP John Mann submitted critical information contained in a dossier to police, naming 22 MPs, including a half dozen still serving at Westminster, implicated in pedo-parties at the notorious Dolphin Square flats.[156] Mann maintains the evidence shows that boys from Lambeth group homes were being trafficked to nearby Pimlico for abuse as part of a wider pedophile ring. But as always, there’s been no follow-up on this highly significant development, only indicating it too has been buried. But the main point remains, government VIP pedophiles are and were fed trafficked kids from care homes from virtually every surrounding borough in the greater London area, Lambeth and Islington being just two of the most guilty. The Westminster scandal that includes orgies at both Dolphin Square and Elm Guest House will be blown wide open in the next chapter.

Another inquiry report disclosed that underneath the Lambeth police station, part of Metro Police Service, existed a secret sex chamber involving both local council members as well as at least one known MP.[157] FYI as of 1987, Boateng was an MP. The creepy sex den was discovered with a red light, chains, manacle and bedding, linked to the widespread child sex abuse and the making of more kiddie porn, confirmed by a large volume of pornographic material discovered at the station. It became obvious that children from the group homes were taken to the Lambeth police station sex dungeon for abuse and pornography by group home staff, police, social services and council staff including both local and national politicians. The two Lambeth civilian staff members who bravely leaked the information to the Scotland Yard were suspended. In a corrupt criminal system where the bad guys are in charge, good deeds never go unpunished and evil deeds are always loyally protected with lies to the bitter end.

A police report emerging in March 2015 specified that senior Lambeth council members were recording “homemade” porno films on borough premises while committing acts of brutal sexual assault, bestiality and pedophilia.[158] Known politicians were reportedly wearing animal masks, robes and chanting while children and animals were also present. Lambeth criminals appeared to be engaging in satanic ritual abuse.

In another incident on Lambeth property, a female staff member maintains that she was drugged and then savagely raped by her council manager.[159] When she bravely filed a complaint and pursued a civil lawsuit against him, an intruder entered her home, dousing her with gasoline, but the match went out. The victim also had acid thrown in her face. A month later the she was still suffering from “serious injuries” sustained in the attacks. Reportedly the “Godfather” of the Lambeth council subverted justice and harassed witnesses in a flagrant attempt to stop the rape investigation.[160] Rape, murder, destroyed evidence and public denial are the four standard trademarks spelling massive criminal cover-up.

Moreover in January 2011, 38-year old Lambeth Police Constable Jordan Janssen was caught distributing online indecent images of young teenage boys, jailed for 12 months after resigning from Met Police in disgrace.[161] It begs the question whether he was connected to the Lambeth police officers involved in the production of child pornography in their underground police headquarters dungeon where the council operated its makeshift pornography studio.

Entering the crime scene in the early 1980s, a soon-to-be MP frequently shows up as Carroll’s evening guest at his Angell Road boy brothel. Britain’s top cop no doubt had to play his order-follower role in the cover-up. But as always when a guilty accomplice is caught red-handed, the standard response is deny, deny, and more deny. So of course in 2015 when his subordinates were asking him questions, a most obvious blatant conflict of interest in and of itself, Metro Chief Sir Bernard claimed he “does not recall details about the [1998] investigation” nor of any suspects. You see a consistent pattern of cover-up here? The guy was second in charge of the lead police agency investigating the notorious pedophile John Carroll with direct links to a VIP Blair minister, and he feebly claims he knows nothing about it. How convenient that another queen-knighted pedo-gatekeeper would suddenly come down with a timely case of amnesia. A source close to the 2015 investigation in so many words tactfully called Hogan-Howe a liar, explaining to the Mirror that it was "inconceivable" he would not have been aware:

> The senior investigating officer at the time would have been expected to have reported to his senior officers the fact a serving government minister [Boateng] had come under suspicion.[162]

One more note of relevant passing interest on Lord Paul Boateng conjures up the old adage - "like father, like son." Paul's son Benjamin Boateng is a convicted rapist and registered sex offender. After charges of raping a 17-year old girl in South Africa were dropped in 2006 while daddy was British High Commissioner,[163] the serial rapist struck again a few years later back in London, smiling for his mug shot, smugly confident his father's VIP status would once again get him off.[164] But this time he was found guilty in October 2011 and sentenced to two months shy of four years in prison.[165]

For those not high enough on the pedo-predator food chain, the mounting evidence against Boateng's alleged buddy that he claims he never knew just kept piling up to the point that in 1998, long past the point of protection by even the VIP establishment, John Carroll couldn't evade the law any longer. With alleged interest in tapping his wealth of inside pedo-knowledge of the North Wales scandal as a hotelier, Merceyside-Metro Police finally took the serial predator-VIP child procurer into custody after he admitted to 35 sexual assaults against a dozen boys, receiving a 10 year prison sentence for over two decades worth of mostly unpunished crimes. After serving only half his sentence, a mere five years, John Carroll was once again a free man in 2004 to get back to his "hotel" business in North Wales.

Should Carroll ever come forth to provide evidence against Lord Boateng and his VIP pedo-network, he realizes he would obviously go the same way of Bulic Forsythe and a bunch of others. John Carroll was again charged with yet more crimes committed back in the 1970s in Merseyside in North West England and once again was scheduled to face another trial in a Liverpool court in April 2018. But the elite's hidden hand, known to reward fellow pedophiles who keep their mouths shut, perhaps intervened as the three charges the 70-year old was facing were suddenly dropped mysteriously in January 2018.[166]

Another bizarrely suspicious Lambeth case involves 38-year old youth worker Jason Hoyte, convicted and sentenced to nine years in 2009 for sexually abusing a half dozen girls over a 20-year period, one as young as four.[167] The musician was also reportedly grooming children for BBC executives as well as joined a London Pentecostal Church to prey on vulnerable victims' trust. The married father actually sued Lambeth council for wrongful dismissal after he was arrested for sexual abuse. Perhaps his arrogance was based on not having to submit a criminal background check despite a 1989 charge of sexual assault. Or maybe it was Hoyte's BBC connections that led Appeals Court Judge Mark Bishop to out of the blue order a retrial in May 2013 that in turn five months later led to Hoyte's acquittal of all charges.[168] Another common pattern - lower level pedophiles serving higher level pedophiles often receive little or no punishment for their heinous crimes as reward for keeping what they know to themselves.

As strong evidence in recent years that sick pedophile rings are still operating in Lambeth and London vicinity still frequently preying on care home children comes the bizarre twisted case of 28-year old pedophile Gihan Muthukumarana.[169] For several months in 2015 this derelict attempted to recruit his hired female escort to join him sexually abusing, torturing and murdering 10 girls from local care homes in a business proposal offered as part of a snuff film deal the plotted ending the victims' bodies being disposed of in vats of acid, all for the perverted viewing pleasure of elite politicians. He promised his would-be accomplice "millions of pounds," boasting that VIPs are willing to pay £10 million for the film. Fortunately the alarmed woman took this information to the police and a sting operation was set up to get the creep on tape pitching the same business proposition to an undercover cop calling herself "Donna." The case was heard in a Southwark court in February 2018. But here's the clincher - this guy walks after he too was acquitted.[170]

So apparently the British court has seen fit to render this man free to carry out his hideous plan. Even if he's a complete crackpot, conspiring to commit mass murder renders him a free man? Oh yeah, I forgot, his alleged victims were only expendable, throwaway kids from UK care homes. If this sicko is for real, and evidence that snuff films shared amongst the most whacko of the rich and powerful does exist, depicting the most deplorable crimes imaginable, blood sacrificing children on camera do draw top dollar.[171] So why hasn't mainstream press bothered with this strange and highly disturbing story? And why is this dude not behind bars? The most likely answers are because he really does have links to actual VIPs who are protecting him in order to protect themselves and as a bigtime accomplice, MSM is also shielding the elite from unwanted damaging publicity.

Sadly this atrocious and despicable track record of total abuse against group home children as UK's expendable, throwaway population is far too commonplace in and around London, be it Lambeth, Islington, Richmond or Westminster. Or outside England in Jersey, Wales, Ireland and Scotland, the legally protected abuse is everywhere inside the United pedo-Kingdom and queen’s Commonwealth. And for that matter, inside England over the last couple decades it’s rampantly grown out of control in places like Rochdale, Rotherham, Telford or Bradford as well, where abused underage girls don’t have to be plucked from care homes to be forcibly conscripted into child-raping-murder rings belonging to brutal pedo-pimping gangs (taken up fully in Chapter 25).[172] Be it abuse by non-VIP or VIP rapists alike, it doesn’t much matter who, where, what, how or when, the sad story’s endgame is always the same. The cold hard fact is Britain’s tortuously long, vile history of pedophilia and accompanied state cover-up demonstrates that the world’s epicenter doesn’t give two shits about its own child population, whether trapped inside or outside its abominable pedo-matrix of a Luciferian child care system or not.

And what’s even more sobering, the UK is the ruling elite’s mere beta test for having maintained to this very day such an impenetrably sealed cover-up guaranteeing impunity as the beta test model being presently exported, eventually coming to a neighborhood near you… that is if the Luciferian planetary controllers are allowed to continue their crime spree against humanity unchecked and unstopped. Our only way out of this ungodly nightmare requires citizens of the world to finally rise up from their shackles in solidarity and begin holding these evil, sodomizing planet killers fully accountable. They’ve scorched and destroyed enough of our earth, us and our children to successfully reach the critical point of no return. Now on the brink of total self-destruction, it’s do or die time for the human race. Stand up and be counted as part of the million to one majority committed to doing what’s right and necessary to save and protect both our children and future.

Speaking of NWO sodomizing destroyers, let’s revisit another familiar character in this UK pedo-house of horror, the overly protected, pedophilic Rothschild surrogate in the Tony Blair and Gordon Brown Labor governments – the hamster “felching” Sir Peter Mandelson (see Chapter 21). Peter’s Jewish father worked as advertising manager at the Jewish Chronicle and his maternal grandfather had been a Labor cabinet minister.[173] As a young political neophyte, “Mandy” started out a Communist Party member but soon switched over to the CIA/MI6 inspired Socialist International youth fest that morphed into the Labor Party,[174] on his way to becoming another rising star first launched from - where else but of all places - the Lambeth council (1979-82), ascending to the title of architect of the New Labor Party while riding the coattails of the 1997 Tony Blair landslide.[175] Similar to Mandelson, Tony Blair too was inspired by Marxist revolutionary Leon Trotsky.[176] Like fellow Labor leftists Harman, Dromey, Hewitt and the Hodges, Lord Baron Mandelson (lord since 2008) also lobbied for lowering the age of sexual consent, prioritizing his first order of business to press brand new prime minister Blair to make fellow Jewish pedophile Greville Janner a lord peer in 1997, a half dozen years after Janner was publicly accused of child sexual abuse in a British high court of law.[177] Infiltrated pedophiles don’t care if voiceless, powerless kids from care homes accuse them of wrecking their lives, after all, once they reach Parliament, their “life insurance” automatically kicks in entitling them to living the remainder of it above the law.

Lest we not forget how they’re able to do this. Because child rapists are often strategically cherry-picked as gatekeeping foxes in the pedo-Kingdom henhouse, Sir Peter Mandelson served as vice chairman of the largest UK child charity, the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children (NSPCC)[178] as well as chairman of the British Youth Council (1978-80).[179] With 10 phone listings in Jeffrey Epstein’s pedophile who’s who of a black book,[180] openly gay-closeted pedo Peter the perennial Bilderberger guest, former EU Commissioner and queen-knighted New World Order Zionist was also Tony Blair’s chief fixer for very scandal. Mandelson has been accused of kidnapping children while in Brussels for pedo-consumption by his fellow EU derelicts.[181] And of course it was Blair’s D-notices that fixed it for Mandy to stay a free man despite ordering child pornography online in 2002 during Operation Ore.[182] With all his known perversions, Mandelson fits the ideal blackmail-able mold to run the country behind the scenes as a Rothschild implant,[183] and by 2009, he’d already held a record 35 cabinet committee posts.[184] As the unelected power behind the PM throne of both the Tony Blair and Gordon Brown governments from 1997 to 2010, an opposition Tory party leader astutely commented:

It is quite obvious that Peter Mandelson is the real unelected prime minister pulling the strings from No 10.[185]

Speaking of string-pulling power, Nathaniel Rothschild fondly reflected in a 2012 London courtroom on his 2005 male-bonding sauna experience in Siberia with then EU trade commissioner Peter Mandelson and Russian oligarch Oleg Deripaska as pure pleasure, adamantly denying any conflict of interest backroom business deal ever took place.[186] Cabal central bankster Rothschild insisted that he flew his buddy Mandy in on a Siberian one-day jet set turnaround as purely recreational and was in court in 2012 suing the Daily Mail for libelously implicating shady business, misusing Mandelson’s political position to smooth over a big aluminum deal with the very same Russian magnate the US denied granting visas to, branding Oleg a criminal with ties to organized crime.[187] Thankfully Nat’s bromance angle lost in court.[188]

As the earth’s aluminum king, despite being on Washington’s shit list, Nat and Mandy hastily dispatched fellow Lord Gregory Barker to DC to clear the way for Oleg to sell off some of his alum assets in exchange for lobbying/bribing cash to remove all his sanctions, freeing him up to make deals with US Empire like never before.[189] Since aluminum by volume is the most common geoengineering metal in the cabal's global aerosol lethal cocktail spraying,[190] and vast amounts are consumed in the sinister agenda to poison our planet with heavy toxic metals for waging warfare on multiple fronts - weather modification, electrical brainwave conductor for mass mind control and of course slow kill eugenics depopulation,[191] Oleg now stands to regain his status he lost to China in 2015 as the world's number one aluminum producer. Of course since Rothschild and Mandelson are used to living like gods far above any human laws [or sanctions], globalist "lackey" Mandy and his Rothschild master Nathaniel could care less, since they're megalomaniacally in it destroying our planet solely for the pure hell of it and of course for taking in a little globetrotting, sheer bromanctic pleasure.

Yet another one of Blair's perverts caught up in Operation Ore that the prime minister's D-notices didn't quite save in time was his less senior aide and confidante Phillip Lyon who was arrested for both downloading as well as creating pornographic images of children on his work computer at the House of Commons.[192] The up and coming 37-year old's career suddenly took a nosedive when Scotland Yard arrested the Blair advisor on "10 counts of making indecent images of children."[193] In August 2003 the father of two was found guilty downloading almost daily his growing collection of thousands of images of children, some of them toddlers forced to engage in sexual acts of perversion. When officers arrested him, the sicko confessed:

It is like a drug - you try one and you want to try something harder and it has a snowball effect.[194]

For possessing his drug of choice that ruins young children's lives, Phillip Lyon served only five months of a one year prison sentence. One more pedo-connection, Lyon began his career in politics as an Islington council member.[195] Why are so many of these Lambeth-Islington alums ending up hardcore pedophiles?

Not to be outdone a decade later from the same 10 Downing Street sleaze file comes another pedo-friendly prime minister named David Cameron who had a similar rude awakening learning his longtime close friend and senior aide, 62-year old Patrick Rock, up for peerage at the time, was intercepted and arrested for his child porn collection.[196] No surprise that the perverted bureaucrat from European aristocratic stock was once a Margaret Thatcher protégé. The sick irony is that Cameron's Rock was responsible for the conservative government's policy on cleaning up the internet to prevent child pornography and child abuse imagery. Guess he too caught that highly contagious, nasty Downing Street "snowball effect" going around. Another fitting reminder that pedophilia rules every political party and persuasion… and per the old last NWO guru still alive Henry Kissinger and his pithy observation that "power is the ultimate aphrodisiac,"[197] especially when derived from literally getting your rocks off on traumatized, adrenochrome-filled children.

So what's the pedo-enabling war criminal Tony Blair been up to in the dozen years since his prime minister days? First thing the ex-PM did was declare himself Roman Catholic after 30 years' pretense and political expediency as a closeted Catholic and official Anglican in name only.[198] In October 2012 right when the most Jewish Catholic's so-vile sins were shocking the nation, Blair's priest Friar Michael Seed was caught selling papal knighthoods to the highest bidders that paid up to £50,000.[199] The disgraced senior Catholic, often a 10 Downing Street guest, celebrated his 25th ordination ceremony putting on a posh champagne shindig with entertainment provided by men in drag wearing nun costumes prancing around a racy London club. The unpriestly Seed of decadence lives like a king in a Dolphin Square flat, rent-free compliments of one of his wealthy papal knight donors… more evidence illustrating the unholy marriage between politics and the Church as the dual driving pedo-forces behind today's globalized child raping crisis.

At the same time Tony Blair became Catholic, in a move straight out of Lucifer's playbook, immediately following his resignation, President George W. Bush made his partner-in-love-and-war crimes his Middle East "peace" envoy in 2007. Blair then proceeded to utilize all his accumulated war contacts fresh off the spilled blood of dead British soldiers to rack up a record breaking fortune of over £60 billion in blood money since leaving office,[200] fully exploiting his illicit conflict of interest between Tony Blair Associates consultancy firm and his "pro bono" gig in peace diplomacy, greedily signing up all the world's worst dictatorial human rights offenders his war crimes could buy, including Gulf State monarchies as exclusive clients.[201] His shameless cashing in his chips of criminal infamy for gobs of easy money puts even the pay-to-play Clintons in the minor leagues. But then once Charles Lynton aka Miranda the cottaging sleazebag whore, right into his multi-billionaire golden years, always the cottaging sleazebagging whore.

But as hard as it is to think it could get any more diabolical, Gordon Brown as Blair's Labor Party successor from 2007 to 2010 has even more overwhelming incriminating evidence that for decades he's been engaging in satanic ritual sexual abuse of children.[202] Twenty-one years prior to his becoming prime minister, at a private party in 1986 veteran journalist Mike James learned that Gordon Brown was a serial pedophile, per Norman Lamont, the future Chancellor of Exchequer under PM John Major. Mike James continued investigating the Zionist blackmail controlled Gordon Brown, writing during Brown's final year in office:

> Gordon Brown, the current British prime minister, is a practicing pedophile whose activities are known not only to the British, American and Israeli intelligence services, but also by Rupert Murdoch and his senior editor at the Sunday Times.[203]

To add insult to injury, in July 2017, Theresa May's farcical IICSA cover-up charade brought both former prime ministers Gordon Brown and Sir John Major in for questioning about what they know (wink, wink) of UK institutional child sex abuse[204]… like known pedophiles and their enablers would ever incriminate themselves by telling the truth for once.

And now onto the star of this chapter's horror show, Margaret Hodge. The Islington pedophilia scandal involves all dozen group homes supervised by the district council leader, longtime Blair cabinet minister and even longer MP Dame Margaret Hodge from Barking since 1994. Among the worst pedophilia rings in southern England is the one that thrived for many years in Hodge's Islington borough, a district just north of the City of London, where the Rothschild controlled central Bank of England is located.[205] At the heart of this scandal is yet another Anglo-Jewish princess - 74-year old Dame Margaret Hodge (nee Oppenheimer). She can be referred to as the Islington abuse ringleader by virtue of the fact that for two decades while serving on the Islington council, she was well aware of the widespread abuse of children in her borough's care homes, yet chose to ignore and go out of her way to cover up her crimes against children and their desperate cries for help. Similar to two aforementioned fellow Jewish female pedophile enablers - 78-year old Dame Esther Rantzen (Chapter 21) and 72-year old Tory minister-MP Edwina Currie (Chapter 22), this aging trio represents the old guard Zionist pedophilia foxes, all assigned critical gatekeeping duties guarding the elite's United-pedo-Kingdom.

But prior to covering Margaret Hodge's enormously significant role in the British pedo-epidemic, according to 13 Illuminati Bloodlines author Fritz Springmeier, the family she was born into:

> The Oppenheimers were early members of the Bavarian Illuminati [with Rothschild money the same Illuminati order that Adam Weishaupt founded in 1776.]… The Oppenheimers apparently are close to the Rothschilds. ["Father of the Atomic bomb"] J. Robert Oppenheimer of the Council on Foreign Relations was exposed as a communist.[206] Harry Oppenheimer [1908-2000], an international banker, is chairman of the Jewish De Beers world-wide diamond monopoly, and chairman of the Anglo-American Corp.[207]

Born a year after Margaret Oppenheimer in 1945, Harry's son Nicholas took over DeBeers in 1998 and is the third richest man in Africa, living off his family's rape and pillage of his African slave labor diamond industry for a reported net worth of $6.6 billion…[208] a drop in the blood bucket to Tony Blair's 60 billion.

Turning to Margaret's Oppenheimer's immediate family background, from her traceable Illuminati bloodline roots, Margaret's multimillionaire father Hans was originally from Stuttgart, Germany, just a two hour drive from his Bavarian bloodline stomping grounds. In the mid-1930s young Hans answered his uncle's call in Africa as an employ of the booming Oppenheimer family mining monopoly.[209] During the final year of World War II, Margaret was born in September 1944 in Cairo, Egypt. But with the State of Israel's 1948 grand opening bloodbath "cleansing" Arabs from Palestine in the first Arab-Israeli War, as Jews living in the Middle East, patriarch Hans with wife and five children in tow headed for safer ground in London.

A half dozen years later at 10-years old, Margaret lost her mother to stomach cancer. With paucity of maternal influence suffering such a major loss at a relative early age, circumstances in young Margaret's life brought out her fierce competitive drive and burning ambition to prove herself to both her highly successful father and the entire world, living up to her prominent Oppenheimer family name. The five Oppenheimer children were raised in opulence not only from the family's booming African mining interests but once in England, daddy Oppenheimer founded Stemcor, the world's largest privately owned steel-trading corporation and Britain's six largest company overall.[210] Her only brother Ralph took over the family business three years before Hans' death in 1985 until three years prior to his own passing in 2016 when Stemcor for the first time had a non-Oppenheimer chief executive though Margaret's family ensured they still retain controlling interest. Growing up in one of the world's wealthiest, most powerful families on earth, silver-spooned Margaret always attended the finest schools, ultimately graduating from the London School of Economics, the elitist university founded in 1895 by the Fabian Society.[211]

While still in her mid-20s not long out of college, Margaret Eve Oppenheimer married Andrew Watson in 1968 but divorced him a decade later after having a son and daughter by her first marriage. 1978 proved to be one busy year for Margaret, divorcing one husband and marrying another in a turnstile turnaround the same year Queen Elizabeth gifted the Jewish rising star not even 34 yet with her first royal honor, the most Excellent Order of the British Empire (MBE).[212] Her Labor seat on the Islington council and famous Jewish surname must have enhanced her worthiness as a royal chosen one freshly paired with her up and coming new husband Henry Hodge, a future royal knight and high court judge. Henry and Margaret had first met when she was Mrs. Watson back in 1973 as fellow Labor Party councillors on the Islington council. But her rapid ascendancy had her elected as council leader by 1982. Meanwhile, a mere year after joining Henry on the Islington council, in 1974 Henry Hodge took a new job as chairman of the infamous National Council for Civil Liberties (the civil rights lobby now known as Liberty) and within a year it was Henry who made the NCCL an affiliate partner with the notorious Paedophile Information Exchange (PIE) in 1975.[213] In 1977 the NCCL invited convicted pedophile PIE leader Tom O'Carroll as a platform speaker at its spring conference.[214]

So in 1978 when Hodge and Oppenheimer were formalizing their marital partnership, Henry already had forged a cozy working partnership with UK's publicly known pedophile organization lobbying to abolish all age of consent so British adults could legally enjoy having sex with children of all ages. Do you really think it was purely by accident that just four years later under Margaret Oppenheimer-Hodge's Islington council leadership that Britain's biggest VIP pedophile ring became fully and safely operational, flourishing over the next 10 years all the while guarded feverishly by the Illuminati bloodline hawk and pedo-gatekeeper-in-charge - Oppenheimer-Hodge?

And do you think it mere coincidence that in 1976, the same year Margaret's future hubby turned his NCCL chairmanship over to his fellow Labor Party, PIE-loving faithful Jack Dromey (NCCL chairman 1976-1983), an official NCCL report signed by the organization's general secretary Patricia Hewitt (1974-1983) stated:

Childhood sexual experiences, willingly engaged in, with an adult result in no identifiable damage.[215]

And more coincidence that pedo-enabler Prime Minister Tony Blair would later make his Islington next door neighbor Margaret Oppenheimer-Hodge his minister of children and Patricia Hewitt his health secretary and Jack Dromey's wife Harriet Harman former NCCL legal officer New Labor's deputy leader?

Oppenheimer husband Henry Hodge left NCCL just in time to escape public scrutiny for making PIE its sleazy bedfellow in 1975 and was only the third non-barrister elevated to high court judge, then knighted by the queen in 2004 before dying in 2009.[216] But a few years after Hodge's death, it was Harman, Dromey and Hewitt, all still active Labor Party leaders, who were left answering for their shameful PIE affiliated past when records revealed that they, along with Henry Hodge, publicly advocated for laxer child pornography laws, legalized incest and lowering the age of consent to ten.[217] As longtime fellow Labor Party MPs each sharing an ultra-cozy pedophilia past together, Harriet Harman once revealed that Dame Margaret Hodge is her best friend in Parliament.[218] The pedo-wheel just keeps spinning round and round with the same incestual cast of high profile pedo-lovers as the usual suspects.

It's also more than coincidental that until 1978, Margaret Hodge served alongside fellow counsellor Jack Straw for his last five of seven years on the same Islington council together.[219] As yet another Jewish Labor politician possessing a pedophilia enabling record, before Straw man was Blair's foreign "war crime" minister (2001-06), he was home secretary (1997-2001). While infiltrated pedophiles were still rampantly abusing kids in his old home district Islington and all around Britain, Straw was in charge of UK law enforcement and CPS, responsible for shutting down so many police investigations into VIP pedo-crimes and pedo-cases. Then it was Jack Straw as Justice Secretary in 2009 who prohibited children in UK care homes from speaking out when abused.[220] Straw also gagged parents from being able to talk to the press about family court injustices as UK's mainline pedo-pipeline feeder, eerily similar to America's disastrous child welfare system.[221] That's because a global Anglo-American-Zionist pedophile elite controls and enslaves both countries as well as Israel, Europe, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and virtually the entire globe. But the old Rothschild bloodline system is crumbling and losing its grip on humanity.

Why would Great Britain as a nation willfully tear apart its families, funneling so many of its children into its residential care system that renders them six times more likely to be assessed for abuse while living in government care homes than children in the general population?[222]… unless the nation already has a longtime historical policy allowing its most powerful elite wealthy class - including politicians and entertainers - to systematically rape its most vulnerable population - the throwaway kids from residential care homes on such an immense industrial scale.[223]

Tony Blair, Jack Straw, Margaret Hodge, Henry Hodge, Paul Boateng, Peter Mandelson, Greville Janner, Harriet Harman, Jack Dromey and Patricia Hewitt are but a handful sampling of 10 prominent pedophilia protectors who've been atop Britain's Labor Party. The British VIP pedophilia incest network extends literally into the personal lives of Margaret Oppenheimer and Jack Straw's spouses from their first marriages, both ending up as husband and wife on their next marital go-round. What are the odds of that? It's almost as if they all come from the same Jewish Illuminati bloodlines… perhaps that's because they actually do.[224]

Jack Straw's brother was found guilty of committing indecent assault on a 16-year old girl. Jack Straw's son William was caught dealing drugs but given only a caution due to his Home Secretary father.[225] What is it with all these pedo-loving Labor politicians' sons? Aside from Jack Straw's, Patricia Hewitt's was arrested and fined £350 for possession of cocaine[226] and Tony Blair's was arrested for being "drunk and incapable,"[227] of course none serving any jail time. A given perk that comes with the turf is the elite's family privilege to live like gods above manmade laws as protected members of an inner club in charge of the pedo-crime cabal network.

Of course from last chapter we learned the Conservative Party is just as bad. The Thatcher regime was crawling with Zionist pedophiles as well. VIP sodomizers from all political parties in virtually all Western nations hungrily devour and spit out the used and abused remains of victimized children everywhere on earth. That's why at this point we've reached such an acute crisis stage, because abuse has gone totally unchecked for so very long.

For more than a century Britain's ruling elite has systematically separated its male youth at a very early age from their families, for multiple generations customarily sending them to the same private upper-class boarding schools where both homosexuality and pedophilia have flourished in isolated infested entrenchment.[228] This age old practice in the UK as well as Europe and, to some extent North America, has long been a familial, cultural norm for boys to be victimized by teachers, headmasters or older students,[229] and in turn all too often become perpetrators themselves, resulting in a cultivation of inbred pedophilia as a historical, traditional way of life amongst the elite, a young man's twisted, not-so-secret rite of passage anymore in recent years with all the VIP pedo-scandals… another open secret exposed.

The uppermost stratosphere of royal and aristocratic family bloodlines have been vetting, grooming and controlling their men this way for centuries. In the US an example would be accepting an invitation to join the exclusive secret society Skull and Bones at Yale University where degrading sexual ritual is embedded in the traditional all male initiation ceremony as a transitional steppingstone of what’s likely to come.[230] They share a tradition of “elite deviance,” a sense of built-in superiority that grants them the protected privilege to live above the law. Through sexual blackmail, pedophilia has been increasingly utilized by the pathological, psychopathic control system to groom, mold and manipulate “powerful” puppet males into assuming lofty prominent positions as compromised and controlled national leaders who do the filthy bidding of their pedophilic masters.[231]

Secret occult knowledge and pedophilic ritual often play a central grooming role in conditioning “chosen” by birthright males into accepting and engaging in pedophilia through the social conditioning process in both elite families and elite educational institutions.[232] In the UK the most powerful have been permitted methodically to indulge and perversely nurture their most demented, inbred pathology, embracing a vampiric, tribal elitism as part of an inner club at the top of the predator food chain. Created by this diabolically decadent and depraved system, British homosexual VIP pedophiles regularly prey on the weakest and most defenseless humans, systemically kidnapped and trapped in the morally bankrupt, overloaded, thoroughly broken UK Care System,[233] thus allowing unchecked pedophilia at the earth’s epicenter to spread like a cancer to morph into the modern scourge of humanity currently plaguing our entire planet. This historical macro-analysis transcends the pitfalls of the micro-ephemeral approach to examining the phenomenon of rising pedophilia as a mere sociological outgrowth of the prevailing societal trends of the times.

In a July 2015 article, the Daily Mail explains how throughout the 1970s and 1980s, homosexuals masquerading as pedophiles were fiercely protected and how any staff in the London borough councils, the social services and group homes that attempted to protect abused children by exposing the pedophiles were punitively dealt with in very harsh terms:

> Staff who raised concerns were accused of racism and homophobia, and often hounded out of their jobs. Some… received death threats. Almost 30 council employees accused of child abuse crimes were allowed to take early retirement (on generous pensions) instead of being subjected to formal investigations or referred to the police.[234]

According to a Daily Mail article just a year prior in 2014, the rationale given to explain the widespread abuse in Islington was that child care home operators and line staff who were the alleged perpetrators were:

> … convincing Labour-run Islington's political elite that anyone who attempted to blow the whistle on their crimes was motivated by homophobia.[235]

But this is merely surface level, superficial explanation that overlooks the far deeper, darker reality that a vast pedophilia sexual blackmail network in Britain had long been operating for at least two decades prior to the 1970s, orchestrated primarily by British intelligence with full approval from countless government VIP pedophiles consisting of prime ministers, cabinet members and both the House of Lords and Commons extending down to countless local councils throughout the UK.[236] It was never a matter of low level care home operators "convincing" their council politician bosses like Oppenheimer and Straw that in the sexually liberated 70s and 80s, it was hip for homosexual pedophiles to "liberate" their youth residing in Britain's care homes, and if you dare object, you were labeled "a homophobe." Though it may have been true, it's a convenient lame excuse to try and pass off the pedo-scandal in the 1980s as a mere sign of the "crazy" times - when the liberal left allowed itself to “momentarily” be blind-sighted, co-opted and hoodwinked by a few wacky hardcore PIE perverts.

Both the Labor and Tory governments misused taxpayers’ money to help finance PIE between 1977 and 1980,[237] Prime Minister Edward Heath attended PIE meetings[238] and MI6 Chief Peter Hayman was a card carrying member[239] as well as the aforementioned Labor notables aligned and fully supporting pedo-rights. These facts relegate this notion of UK pedophilia as a passing fad or mere byproduct of the wild 70s and 80s sexual liberation movement as preposterous and false. Yet this heavily promoted, historical revisionist argument heavily promulgated by pedo-apologists is intended to eliminate culpability and obscure the true reality that a highly organized, insulated, massive pedophilia network was covertly expanding and becoming further entrenched throughout the UK and beyond. And it never left.

It was just four years earlier that yet another piece in the Daily Mail completely refutes its own above quote. The ruling elite had long been building UK’s national child abuse trafficking network, preying on care home kids since the straight-laced, “unhip” 1950s. The 2010 Daily Mail article expounds on the unsavory affairs of such child raping luminaries as Labor Party leader, Communist spy, MP traitor Lord Tom Driberg, his pal longtime Conservative Party minister, Bilderberger Lord Bob Boothby and their Jewish mafia, pimping killer pals the Kray twins,[240] joined in the early 1960s by none other than the undercover intel operative himself Sir Jimmy Savile. Clearly a highly organized pedophilia network in Britain was operating long before the so called sexually liberated 1970s and 1980s. Cold hard fact - the UK pedophilic elite has been indulging nonstop in systemically destroying expendable British children’s lives with total impunity for over six decades.

Back to this chapter's headliner, with her MBE secured way back in 1978, one of Britain's major pedo-players for the last four decades is Margaret Oppenheimer-Hodge, again honored by the queen in 2004 as Lady Hodge when her high court judge hubby Henry was knighted while she was Minister of Children under Blair's newly created cabinet position.[241] Her royal Dame Commander trophy came in 2015. The children's ministry post served as ideal cover for an Oppenheimer to oversee the entire British nation's covert pedophilia operations. Also worth noting is that in 1998 and 1999, busy MP Margaret served in her spare time as chair of the infamous Fabian Society that for over a century as an elitist front for communism has been subversively pushing for one world totalitarian government. Sweet lady heading a sweet society.

Thee Fabians have openly supported eugenics and forced sterilization in their scientifically planned utopian society run by the superior "elite," certainly not by "lowly" working stiffs from a Marxist labor class.[242] Until recently the Fabian logo was literally a wolf in sheep's clothing.[243] Joining her as fellow Fabian Society members are two of her prominent Islington VIP Labor Party neighbors - Tony Blair and Jack Straw, and, as of 2001, just four years into Blair's decade long premiership, the elite Fabian Society boasted 200 MPs in the House of Commons.[244] War criminal Tony Blair, both a Fabian and Malta Knight,[245] loyal to both Zionism and Rome, both major contributors to the pedo-epidemic, if anything suggests Blair's deeper commitment to globalization of the international pedophilia trade. Right after his 2007 resignation as prime minister, the Malta Knight officially declared himself a Roman Catholic.

The common threaded nexus of pedo-lineage runs throughout virtually all elitist secret societies as well as all major political parties. Blair and Hodge's very own Labor Party was in fact founded by Fabians in the early 20th century and the pedo-infil-traitors rose to power in the Zionist controlled British government,[246] reaching its zenith perhaps during Tony Blair's war crime pedo-regime when virtually his entire cabinet were card carrying Fabian members.[247]

Similar (if not one and the same) with the Illuminati, Fabians believe that religion and family should be usurped and replaced by the expanding power of the centralized state through that familiar operative word "collectivism," whereby individuals' worth is derived and defined solely and strictly by their collective contribution to the group that is the supreme state. While the collectivist goal remains much the same as Marxism, rather than gain power and control through a proletariat working class rising up to wage revolutionary, violent revolt against the elite class, Fabians as the bourgeoisie prefer subversively, sneakily seizing control through slithering infiltration, hence their iconic, deceitfully cunning "wolf in sheep's clothing" methodology pretty much says it all.[248]

Far beyond conjecture the British historical record demonstrates a pattern of prime ministers seeking to appoint fellow party politicians as proven experienced protectors of the ruling elite's international child sex abuse trafficking cabal. The key point is just as Thatcher's Tory government was stacked with flaming pedophiles and enablers galore throughout the 1980s, so was Blair's turn during his turn of the century decade. And with nothing changing under yet another pro-Zionist prime minister currently in office, already having declared herself a Jew,[249] Theresa May is carrying out her puppet duty holding a shameless sham of an Independent Inquiry for Child Sexual Abuse (IICSA), designed from the outset to protect status quo by keeping VIP pedophiles unnamed and out of both the headlines and prisons.[250] And so far, unfortunately her "floundering-on-purpose" IICSA debacle has succeeded…

never a living MP charged much less ever jailed for pedophilia.

Recall from last chapter that Theresa May is yet another self-professed Zionist with neighborly ties to Mossad agent Uri Geller. May has much to hide as prime minister in both protecting the pedophilia network at the world epicenter as well as her own family’s paternal links that minimally suggest a nefarious past by association with the mass murdering Doctor John Bodkin Adams, a homosexual very likely protected by his lover Lord Roland Gwynne, former Eastbourne mayor in Sussex and knighted by the queen during his lover’s infamous trial in 1957.[251] Additionally like Sir Cliff Richard, May’s father was born in India to a British soldier, a favorite common breeding ground for UK military intelligence.[252]

For six years in the 1950s chronologically bisected by Theresa’s birth in 1956, May’s father Hubert Brasier was the Anglican-Catholic chaplain of Eastbourne Hospital in Sussex where the general practitioner Dr. Adams worked, suspected of killing over 165 of his elderly patients, over 130 mostly widows leaving a sizeable inheritance for their killer shortly prior drug overdoses administered by Adams.[253] Though nurses had complained about Dr. Adams for months, similar to Jimmy Savile, the hospital management ignored their accusations. However, eventually the notorious doctor was prosecuted on a murder charge of just one of his patients. But in a blatant cover-up engineered by well-connected Sir Lord Gwynne who called upon his ex-attorney general friend to run interference, a year after Theresa’s birth Dr. Adams was acquitted of murder and only found guilty of three minor offenses that led briefly to his revoked medical license before resuming his medical practice as if murdering over 160 people meant nothing…[254] echoes of yet more sinister protection from the top of the food chain.

Though there appears no direct criminal evidence connecting May's father as an accomplice sharing the same workplace crime scene, yet another strange anomaly again by association is the fact that Rev. Brasier worked within the same small Chichester Diocese in Sussex that produced an inordinate number of pedophile priests caught running a longstanding Eastbourne pedo-ring.[255] It was so blatant that in March 2018 even May's IICSA fiasco was pressured to look into the chronic abuse.

By some stroke of luck, just in time May's father was promoted and reassigned elsewhere as 1st Vicar of Enstone in the Oxford Diocese, almost as if he (like Dr. Adams) was protected by the elite's invisible hand.[256] Then when Theresa had just turned 25, her father's good luck ran out as he was mysteriously killed in a car accident, a common pattern amongst future leaders groomed by their handlers, making loss of a parent while still young easier to control their puppet. As one who should know, FDR once admitted, presidents (and prime ministers) are chosen, never elected.[257] Only adding suspicion to indicate that the current PM clearly does not want information about her family history available to the public, as soon as she became prime minister in 2016, all references regarding her father were suddenly removed from the internet.[258] But fortunately plenty was already captured prior to her overt censorship.

For her Illuminati lineage, the true essence of one Dame Margaret Oppenheimer-Hodge emerges while she presided over the Islington council between 1982 and 1992, the direct overseer in charge of her district's social services for children. During her decade long leadership, all dozen Islington group homes she governed became overrun by infiltrating pedophiles on staff throughout her "care" homes, her council run schools, her social services offices, her own Islington council that as foxes guarding the pedo-henhouse were also at liberty to farm out their susceptible kids to VIPs for yet more systematic abuse.[259] Under her watch a major pedophile ring was booming between her Islington and the queen’s Commonwealth’s Channel Islands of Jersey and Guernsey branching out further across the Isles to Northern Ireland’s Kincora, North Wales Bryn Estyn as well as closer to home in and around London, like Haringey to the north and Lambeth to the south, but also nearby Richmond, Birmingham to Northern England’s Savile country Leeds and Scarborough. Additionally, the tentacles of the London based pedophilia network reach abroad to continental cities in Europe such as Amsterdam, Brussels, Copenhagen, Vienna and Portugal’s Casa Pia. All will be uncovered in detail in later chapters.

Another pedophilic link between the United Kingdom and Amsterdam was exposed over three and a half decades ago by the Daily Star back in August 1983. Norman K. Walker misappropriated government funds through his bogus children’s foundation owning two British care homes for handicapped children located in Suffolk and Norfolk.[260] Social services from those two counties did not place children at those homes but districts like Lambeth, Islington and other London boroughs did. With public social services funding, Walker financed a string of pedophilia rent boy bars and sex businesses in Amsterdam, among them a notorious waterhole called Why Not that included upstairs room accommodations for pedos. Seedy establishments like Walker’s in Holland were/are part of the international child trafficking network, with British rent boys recruited to cater to sex tourism pedophiles and child pornographers that produce and distribute murderous snuff films.[261]

Warwick Spinks, the most wanted British pedophile criminal and international fugitive that for decades infamously engaged in sexually and commercially exploiting underage boys in his sex slave business. In November 2012, Spinks who at one time managed the Why Not bar, was finally apprehended in Prague after 15 years on the run.[262] More on this sleaziest violent kingpin in the next chapter on the Elm Guest House-Westminster connection. One of the reasons speculated that this so called “pied piper of pedophiles” successfully evaded police for so long and was given such light sentences in the past was his likely connections to VIP pedophile clients. Chapter 24 fully covers Spinks’ London to continental Europe pedo-network that includes his Dutch snuff film production as well as moving victims from both Britain and Eastern Europe primarily to Amsterdam, but also to Prague, Brussels, Munich and Berlin.

In 1983 while Dame Margaret recruited pedophiles posing as gay men to do damage to children in her dozen care homes, horrific tragedies struck Islington group home children year in and year out under her leadership. In September 1983 a 13-year old boy was abducted and brought to France by his group home childcare worker where he allegedly sexually abused the victim for nearly two months before his rescue.[263] In 1985 a far more tragic fate befell 14-year old Jason Swift who was kidnapped, sexually passed around a notorious pedophile ring, repeatedly raped, tortured and savagely killed by the Sidney Cooke gang. These sickos murdered up to 17 boys while procuring and trafficking victims to the Elm Guest House for the likes of Sir Jimmy Savile, Home Secretary Sir Leon Brittan and MP Sir Cyril Smith among other “distinguished” VIP guests both domestic and foreign.[264] A year later in 1986 13-year old Tony McGrane was bludgeoned to death with multiple stab wounds by another teenager.[265] Both Jason and Tony were residents at one of the Islington care homes Margaret presided over - Conewood Street Assessment Centre.[266]

When Margaret Hodge was selected by Blair to be Britain’s first minister of children, a stampede of social workers, whistleblowers and victims stepped forward in loud protest to set the record straight. In her defense, Hodge claimed:

> All that happened when we didn't really understand child abuse in the way that we understand it now. This was the early 90s...[267]

Wrong! Years prior to her Islington debacle pedophilia scandals splashed across UK's headlines and TV news broadcasts – for starters the 1984 Dickens' accusations from the infamous "lost" dossier maintaining a Westminster VIP pedophile ring at the heart of the British government.[268] Dickens even went so far as to expose child abuse in Islington while Hodge was council leader.[269] Then there were numerous earlier scandals reported at care homes in places like Newcastle's Tyneside children's home in 1976,[270] Northern Ireland's Kincora in 1980[271] and Piccadilly Circus' Leeways children's home in 1985,[272] plus many high profile cases of pedophiles working with children as priests, teachers and scoutmasters were also being widely reported long before the 1990s. Hodge again pretended pedophiles preying on UK's most vulnerable population was a completely unknown, new phenomenon… total bullshit to cover her own ass. But in her feeble, lame self-defense, she uttered these words:

> This was the early 90s… it was only beginning to emerge that paedophiles were working with children, in children's homes and elsewhere, and so I think my great regret there was believing without question the advice that I was given by the social services managers.[273]

Typically, weak leaders never fail to pass the buck, always blaming subordinates for feeding them erroneous information and advice. Again, another lie as senior social workers alerted her two and a half years prior to the story finally breaking in the press in early October 1992,[274] the year she slipped out the council backdoor in a vain attempt to avoid the heat. The fact remains that by early 1990, social worker university lecturer Dr. Liz Davies and her social services manager David Cofie reported to Margaret Hodge an infiltrated pedophile ring was rampantly operating throughout all her Islington care homes but their warnings went unheeded by arrogant Hodge, condescendingly calling their warnings “hysterical” and “obsessional.”[275]

Overwhelmed by the ever-widening scope of abuse in their outlying community, upon learning it was systemic throughout the district involving child pornography and trafficking, when David Cofie urgently requested increased staff and funding to adequately meet the demand of investigating the major scandal brewing, Hodge severely chastised him, insisting a sound manager should be resourceful enough to work within a budget in the face of social services cutbacks.[276] David Cofie has in effect said she ruined his career. Bent on burying evidence, Hodge actively squelched proven widespread abuse that Liz and David had discovered and painstakingly presented to her.

Dazed and distraught 12 to 15-year old children kept showing up at Liz and David’s social services office in droves, having clearly been abused the night before, sometimes perpetrated by group home staff, sometimes by Islington council staff, and sometimes abused after being trafficked to wealthy private mansions around London.[277] Links that Islington kids were being transported to Elm Guest House and Dolphin Square parties were found. Britain’s director of education at the National Institute of Social Work, PIE founder, sadistic child rapist and pedo-pipeline VIP pimp Peter Righton is known to have picked up children at group homes in Islington.[278]

Recall that big wheel procurer Righton himself was arrested in 1992 for attempting to smuggle in as well as possess child pornography but like Savile for years the pipeline pimp was permitted to freely operate as a key protected player within the Westminster VIP network.[279] Considered the foremost expert on group home care of Britain’s near

100,000 children in the UK Care System (same number of UK kids slipping into poverty in the last year alone[280] and same number of 14-year olds in UK harming themselves, including one in four girls[281] – talk about a broken system and nation), like Savile, Righton freely roamed the Isles with access to hundreds of residential care homes and special schools, brazenly boasting:

Every Islington care home manager knows I like boys from 12 [282][on up].

Just like the Hollywood and Savile pedophilia scandals, founding PIE member Peter Righton was yet another "open secret" where his guilt was sworn to "open" secrecy amongst a select insider group in order to protect the larger national and global pedo-network. After his arrest for importing child pornography and his home raided in 1992, he was simply given a £900 fine and never served jail time, in spite of tons of evidence he was a serial predator and major pimping trafficking ringleader for the VIP establishment.[283] In addition to pornographic images of children found at his residence, a prolific amount of letters, documents and diary entries exposing Righton's exchange of child sex slaves with fellow criminal collaborators in other locations in Europe like the Mediterranean islands of Gozo and Malta, a known sex trafficking haven.[284]

In 1993 Department of Health Minister Virginia Bottomley received a report from Hereford and Worcester social services outing the alarming state of betrayal from UK's Care System sworn to protect children, singling out mastermind Righton as the nation's prime pedo-networker with full access to Britain's children's homes and schools.[285] But Bottomley ignored the report and though the police investigation continued into 1994 as more incriminating evidence was amassed, the probe was suddenly, prematurely shut down. In charge of all UK police investigations, Tory Home Secretary (1993-97) Michael

Howard likely ordered the probe closed in order to protect Britain's VIPs and involvement in the international child trafficking network.[286]

Right after his initial arrest, Peter Righton and his 40-year lover Richard Alston were granted safe refuge by Lord John Henniker to live comfortably at his sprawling country estate in Suffolk for the next four years.[287] But Lord Henniker's estate Thornham Magna was also being used by Islington and other London borough social services as a designated children's activities center for day trips and holidays.[288] It must have also been a pedo-paradise for Righton, Alston and fellow pedophile friend Charles Napier. The Suffolk chief constable even went so far as to warn Henniker he had two pedophiles with national connections residing at his estate surrounded by kids in UK care. Lord Henniker, a longtime diplomat and director general of the British Council from 1968 to 1972, maintained close ties with the queen's hubby Prince Philip who is the godfather to Lord Henniker's firstborn son, his heir and current 9th Lord Henniker.[289] The current lord's son, age 10-13 at the time Righton lived there, committed suicide at 21, leaving speculation that he was a victim.

Protected by the top of the predator food chain, Peter Righton appeared immune from accountability and granted unrestricted access to children right up until his death in 2007 at the age of 81. The full extent of his pivotal role as a major cog in the UK pedo-wheel has been carefully concealed to shield his pedo elite masters he faithfully served from further scrutiny and justice… another illustration of how pedophilia overlords close rank to protect their own criminal self-interest.

Despite being Righton's longtime partner-in-crime and brother to notable diplomat Robert Alston, especially without his deceased lover's impunity, former teacher and headmaster Richard Alston wasn't deemed high enough on the pedo-pecking order to be completely immune from prosecution. In 2015, the 70-year old PIE member was convicted of repeatedly sexually molesting an 11-year old boy in the 1970s, receiving 21 months in prison.[290] The Alston brothers and Peter Righton all attended Ardingly College,[291] which has its own Freemasonry lodge.[292]

Another serial pedophile who often joined Righton and Alston in incidents abusing boys is British Council teacher and PIE treasurer Charles Napier, half-brother to longtime Tory MP John Whittingdale.[293] Napier bragged about using diplomatic privileges to smuggle child pornography into the UK from a British Council school in Cairo. As Napier’s friend and British Council chief, Lord Henniker allowed Napier to work with children despite an earlier pedo-conviction that banned him from teaching in UK.[294] In December 2014 the 67-year old Napier was sentenced to 13 years for committing hundreds of sexual assaults on rent boys and schoolboys over a span of many decades. As a PIE officer within an organization publicly advocating sex with children of all ages, Napier knows much more than he has let on regarding the crimes of other PIE members who happened to be VIP establishment in politics, the church and law enforcement. As alluded to earlier, one of those VIPs was MI6 chief and diplomat Peter Hayman married to Charles Napier’s cousin. Released files prove that not only was Sir Peter Hayman a PIE member, he carried on lengthy correspondence with other sickos indicating that he shared a deranged obsession for sexual torture and murder of children.[295]

To keep a lid on the international implications, Zionist Home Office puppet Michael Howard and Health Minister Virginia Bottomley were no doubt ordered to pass the word down to cease and desist two simultaneous probes by West Mercia and Metro police looking into VIP pimp Righton, the nationally recognized “expert” on child residential care. And it was Tory leader Howard who awarded Virginia Bottomley her peerage in the House of Lords in 2005.[296]

At just 12-years old Virginia (née Garnett) met her then 16-year old future husband, was impregnated by 18 and married by 19 to Sir Peter Bottomley (knighted in 2010), a Thatcher minister-MP since 1974 to present.[297] Peter Bottomley was a member of the Conservative Monday Club linked to pedophile trips to Amsterdam as well as Elm Guest House.[298] Peter’s brother Henry was a member on Hodge’s pedo-enabling Islington council from 1986 to 1990.[299] Sir Peter’s so touchy about any pedophilic affiliation, he has threatened to sue any publication linking him to “untrue” child abuse.[300] But more on him and the notorious Monday Club in the next chapter.

As a related aside, Baroness Virginia Bottomley’s cousin Jeremy Hunt seemingly owes his political career to her nepotism, following her same career footsteps as South West Surrey MP then Cameron’s Tory health minister,[301] quoted worldwide reacting to the Savile bombshell, declaring Savile’s actions have “shaken our country to the core.”[302] Profusely apologizing to Savile victims, Hunt indignantly issued the following stern warning:

If there is evidence that people have criminally neglected claims at the time, behaved inappropriately… in a way that could make them subject to disciplinary procedures, that should happen and we will urge all NHS organisations to look carefully at anyone mentioned in these reports, and of course the police will look at the evidence against any individuals.[303]

We're still waiting Jeremy… Meanwhile, while his cousin was health secretary in 1993 learning of Peter Righton's near four decade long history of horrific child abuse, international trafficking and Virginia's subsequent part in halting an ongoing police investigation, Hunt's tough talk extended to the "Savile greenlight" health ministers' Edwina Currie and Kenneth Clarke was conspicuously absent applied to his own cousin's obstruction of justice shutting down a police inquiry and allowing a known serial abuser and VIP pimp to continue committing crimes.

Speaking of Sir Jimmy, as an intelligence operative and another national VIP pimp, his name comes up in virtually every United pedo-Kingdom scandal, implicated in the Islington debauchery as well. One abused girl said that a fleet of procuring "Jimmy Savile taxis" would show up regularly at her group home to whisk away children for waiting VIP predators.[304] Victims maintain that they were not only trafficked around London but other locations inside the UK as well, and even abroad, indicating yet more evidence of a well-organized international pedophilia network. Another child victim recalls being driven around by abuser Savile in a taxi.[305]

According to the Express, another noteworthy Islington resident "playing a vital role in Britain's biggest child sex ring" was convicted pedophile, another active PIE member, a clockmaker and antique shop owner Keith Harding who, like Cyril Smith, was a Savile featured fellow pedo-guest on a Jim'll Fix It's Christmas show.[306] Harding was known to run with such infamous VIP pedo-politicians as Sir Leon, Sir Cyril and Sir Jeremy Thorpe.

Two and a half years after personally informing Dame Margaret Hodge about the out-of-control abuse, turning to the press in October 1992, whistleblowing duo Liz Davies and David Cofie ultimately found a receptive reporters in Eileen Fairweather and Stewart Payne from the Evening

Standard whose article publicly exposed the pervasive child sex abuse raging throughout the Islington borough and beyond. Council leader Hodge's response this time turned even more aggressive, insulting and libelous, accusing the highly respected, award winning journalists of "a sensationalist piece of gutter journalism."[307] Hodge was later forced to apologize once she could no longer pretend that she didn't permit a humongous murderous pedophile ring to not only freely operate but flourish like never before throughout her ten year reign of child terror atop the Islington council.

In 2008 during the height of the police investigation on Jersey Island's Haut de la Garenne, veteran journalist Eileen Fairweather was dispatched to meet secretly with Detective Constable Peter Cook who told her he had uncovered major links between the pervasive abuse at Jersey and Islington.[308] Pedophile social workers from Jersey ended up working at the Islington social services offices and made unofficial trips trafficking children from both Islington group homes and Channel Island group homes where they were further abused by establishment VIPs. Keep in mind that Jimmy Savile as Britain's main VIP procurer also is linked extensively to both Islington and Jersey child abuse rings. Cook said his superior officers on Jersey prohibited him from reporting his findings directly to London police abuse specialists as part of the larger cover-up, pathetically forced to use Eileen as his go-between. The major VIP pedophile ring operating between Channel Islands Jersey and Guernsey and Islington-North London involving prominent politicians in both Jersey and London also included famous diplomat (likely Peter Hayman), prominent clerics (among them Prince Charles bud Anglican bishop Peter Ball), a social services chief (allegedly Richmond's Louis Minster) and senior police officers.

As an illustration of how the pedophilia-system rewards its own foxes guarding the henhouse, the Islington head of the police Child Protection Team at the height of the scandal in the 1990s - Sue Akers, refused to meet or talk to reporter Eileen Fairweather, despite Eileen begging her to look into a brothel after a 13-year old victim (and relative of Baby P discussed shortly) had reported he recruited dozens of other victims for three pimps.[309] His evidence was suppressed and Sue Akers went on to be promoted as the deputy assistant commander responsible for all of the child abuse investigations for Britain's largest police force Metro. You can easily see why VIPs never get arrested or go to trial and that police probes always lead nowhere.

While investigating abuse at the dozen Islington group homes and special schools in the early 1990s, honest lower level detectives had informed Eileen Fairweather that children's home operators and employees served as "networkers" working the pedophile supply line with child pornographers and hooking up VIPs. Years later while in Jersey conferring with Peter Cook, Eileen was startled by the number of eerie similarities between the two abuse operations, the "recreational outings" often at sea where victims were isolated and easily abused while trafficked considerable distances to awaiting VIP customers and child pornographers in other cities for further abuse.[310] Also identical is the pattern of dismissing and smearing whistleblowers and victims coming forth to report the crimes and then the repeated crime of "misplaced" missing records, all standard earmarks of major cover-up at the highest levels. The cumulative evidence clearly points to sophisticated abuse rings consisting of pedophile operatives running Britain's child trafficking network, from the likes of Jimmy Savile, his MI5, the Kray brothers, Sidney Cooke, Peter Righton and Colin Peters among numerous others as primary child procurers for VIP politicians like Heath, Thatcher, Brown, Blair and Hodge as either pedophiles themselves or pedophile-protecting overlords.

In addition to whistleblowing senior social workers and newspaper journalists sounding the Islington alarm that Margaret Hodge continued only to scoff at, yet another scandal tipoff occurred in 1991 when boarding school sports instructor Roy Caterer was arrested, convicted and sentenced to seven and a half years in prison for sexually abusing seven boys and two girls.[311] Though this case garnered brief local headlines treating it as an isolated anomaly, the coverage either concealed or completely overlooked its linkage to the much wider pedophilia operation that had been thriving in Islington since the 1970s when the likes of Margaret Oppenheimer, Henry Hodge and Jack Straw were leading council members.

A couple of high profile child murder cases in adjacent Haringey in 2000 and 2007 highlight a link to the Islington pedophile ring. Eight year old Victoria Climbié from Ivory Coast was sent by her parents hopeful for a better life for their daughter to live in North London with her aunt and her boyfriend who tortured and murdered the little girl in 2000, bringing much needed scrutiny and pressure on the negligent borough's social services to become more responsive in placing at risk children on the services register preventing severe abuse and death.[312] But rather than rectify glaring deficits that caused the young girl's murder, seven years later Haringey's reputation failed to improve as the same serious problems of incompetence and poor management still plagued its social services department, setting the stage for the next tragedy.

The same extreme dysfunction and endangerment caused the death of a blue eyed blonde haired toddler known only as Baby P at the sadistic hands of the mother's husband and his friend in 2007. The three relentlessly injured the child, ripping his fingernails out, breaking his ribs, soon his back, paralyzing him from the waist down.[313] Fifty injuries despite sixty social worker visits later, the mother persistently lied to incompetent, negligent social workers about his nonstop injuries blindly accepted without question or suspicion. A week prior to his death social services legal department ruled that there remained insufficient grounds to remove the child from his mother and four days before he died a welfare officer was the last outsider to see the 17 month old still alive. No one paid attention to the poor kid's rapidly deteriorating health. The one social worker who did desperately attempt to alert authorities of increasing dangers six months ahead of Baby P's death became targeted as the blame game victim of abuse by Haringey CYA social services.[314]

An older unnamed close relative to Baby P who apparently had no contact with the murdered toddler had been placed in a care home in Islington at the age of 12 in the early 1990s.[315] A child protection expert commented:

The family should have been subjected to forensic examination. Even cursory checks would have rung alarm bells. Social workers might then have removed the baby, as a paediatrician and police pleaded.[316]

The Baby P relative was sexually abused and recruited by local pimps in Islington through money, drugs and coercive threats to procure more boys from local care homes for the larger VIP ring operating in Hodge's domain.[317] The boy tried to get help, confiding in his social worker. Baby P's relative even furnished social services and police with a list of abuse victims and known perpetrators, reporting that he and other children were being trafficked from Islington care homes to Manor Park, Tottenham, Soho and Westminster where they were further abused by pedophiles, some of whom were members of the British VIP establishment.[318]

Neville Mighty, the social services unit superintendent in charge of the boy's placement was eager to intervene on the boy's behalf as the hazardous living conditions for children at the borough's group homes he directly supervised had pimps flagrantly shacking up overnight in care homes openly abusing preyed upon children.[319] As outrageous and unacceptable as it had become in Islington, Neville Mighty's boss called him "a prude" for repressing the sexuality of the group home residents, insisting the pimps were simply the children's "boyfriends." When Neville presented this insanely perverse, out of control situation to then Islington's social services director Lyn Cusack, the Hodge lackey whose husband was a local senior police superintendent, incredibly she threatened to write him up on disciplinary action for being "rude" to her.

In June 1992 social worker Neville Mighty was fired. At this point senior social worker Liz Davies encouraged and supported Neville to blow the whistle going public to expose the scandal. As is so typical, neither the Baby P relative, nor Neville, nor Liz, nor supervisor David Cofie were ever listened to by their higher-ups in social services, the borough council or the co-opted, thoroughly controlled local police as they refused to place the identified VIP child rapists under surveillance or even call them in for questioning. That's how evilly corrupt Islington under Margaret Oppenheimer-Hodge's leadership was. Liz Davies explained to journalist Eileen Fairweather:

We got too close. There were too many powerful people involved. Child sex, pornography and sadism are extremely lucrative industries.[320]

As Neville, Liz and David became increasingly aware and frustrated over the horrific crime network operating in their neighborhoods they were supposed to be protecting, Hodge's hostile suppression and overt criminal cover-up successfully shielded the perpetrators, as Hodge and Cusack summarily dismissed the courageous whistleblowers as “hysterical” troublemakers, ordering them to cease and desist their underfunded, understaffed internal investigation interviewing dozens of key abuse witnesses, victims and parents. Fortunately Nevile, Liz and David’s whistleblowing persisted at grave risk to themselves, all being bodily threatened with harm and death threats. Through their brave, persistent efforts, finally a 1995 independent fact-finding report was compiled and released by Oxfordshire social services director Ian White. It vindicated their heroic efforts, but confirmed the deplorable prevailing conditions of blatant widespread abuse that also included child pornography, trafficking and pimping victims to VIPs both domestically and internationally, allowed to egregiously thrive unimpeded for decades. The White report was based on the 112-page dossier supplied by the series of Evening Standard articles written over the 3-year preceding period, charging Margaret Hodge and her council with allowing at least 26 accused identified child sex abusers working at Islington care facilities to leave its employ without investigation, many even with positive job references.[321]

One such vile pedophile who was a former Islington employee granted a free pass was Nick Rabet, a deputy children’s homes superintendent until his 1989 resignation.[322] Having originally come from Jersey with a background in childcare, Rabet was a key figure linking child abuse in both Jersey and Islington. Under the auspices of providing recreational camping outings to the Channel Island resort, Rabet regularly escorted, or more aptly trafficked children from Islington group homes to Jersey. Like Peter Righton, he developed a reputation as a known pedophile shielded by the system run by Margaret Oppenheimer-Hodge. After leaving Islington, he befriended a wealthy elderly widow who left him her estate in the East Sussex countryside, where he opened his own private children’s activities center as a local retreat utilized by charities, schools, families and social services.

Though Rabet had been placed on a consultancy register barring him from working with children in government facilities, his loophole was working in a private sector setting. At his child activities center on his estate, Rabet was regularly still abusing boys from Islington group homes. The investigative work by journalists like Eileen Fairweather exposed Rabet’s pedo-ring targeting both children and elderly predators in both Islington and Jersey that “befriended” wealthy elderly individuals, manipulated them into changing their wills, and all soon met similar fates, suddenly dying of heart attacks. Rabet and his crew of serial pedophiles appeared protected by Islington council as well as local police in Sussex, Cambridgeshire, London and Jersey.[323] Through media accounts exposing Rabet’s pedo-operations, he fled Britain for the pedophile haven Thailand. After being charged with abusing 30 boys as young as six with estimates of molested 300 children in the sex tourism capital Pattaya, the 57-year old committed suicide with a drug overdose in 2006 to avoid punishment.[324] Another of his cronies found with hundreds of videos and photos of child pornography also OD’d though it’s just as likely they were silenced because they knew too much about VIPs that for years they supplied with child victims.

One severely abused boy in 1989 reported Rabet and others’ sex crimes taking place at both his group home and school to his social worker who was committed to stopping the abuse.[325] But as of Christmas Eve that year, that conscientious social worker was never seen again and neither were the victims’ files. Thus when Islington council was asked in a police probe about placing a child at the school, the council falsely claimed no children under its care were ever sent to the school. Missing files lead to cover-up.

Speaking of which, the Ian White report could only draw from Fairweather's articles interviewing the named whistleblowers, victims and parents because literally hundreds of files were criminally removed from all the Islington borough social services offices in order to protect the countless guilty parties, which included personnel from group homes, social services, Hodge's Islington council, establishment VIP politicians, high court judges, entertainers, businessmen, religious leaders and senior police officers.[326] Unable to enlist interest from the local police department because it took its marching orders from people like Hodge, Straw and Blair, Liz and David finally convinced the Scotland Yard to launch an investigation but sadly by that time, gross obstruction of justice had already been committed. And sadly as always, the Yard's police probe concluded "not enough evidence" justified charging even a single perpetrator.

No doubt to save both her own skin and career from prison along with all her prominent VIP friends, the-powers-that-shouldn't-be saw fit to destroy all the incriminating evidence, just as Sir Leon did a decade earlier. Law enforcement never seriously probed into the massive criminal operation because VIPs were too involved and few if any victims and witnesses were ever even interviewed. Demetrious Panton, an abuse victim who went on to become an outspoken child abuse advocate and barrister, maintains that during the 13 separate Islington child abuse investigations, not once was he ever contacted or interviewed by police.[327]

The pattern of destroyed evidence and criminal cover-up never stops at the earth's pedophilia epicenter. The missing dossier files that would have completely exposed Islington, Downing Street and Westminster sickos will likely never be found in order to ensure their continued full protection. Over the decades, cover-up tactics have always remained the same, not once failing to deliver the same atrocious, predictable outcome, proving that through the impenetrable wall of nonstop cover-up, procurers and predators alike close to the VIP criminals are also shielded and manage to live above the law as well. That way as long as their lips stay sealed, they stay alive and the pedo-party continues unabated to this very day.

Despite the police investigation going nowhere due to so much destroyed records containing hard evidence of Islington's connections to the larger pedophilia network, a full quarter century ago in 1993 the biggest Scotland Yard probe into organized child sexual abuse in British history was launched. According to an August 1993 Sunday Times article:

> The investigation into networks of paedophiles who have been paying for sex with boys and girls, has uncovered several groups across London and other parts of southern England who link up to swap information and abuse children. For the past five months officers from the squad have secretly liaised with directors of social services in more than half a dozen London boroughs amid fears that organised gangs have targeted vulnerable children in their areas.[328]

As in the Righton inquiry, speculation prevails that in 1993 then Home Secretary Michael Howard again intervened to shut down Metro Police's largest child abuse investigation to date that would have likely incriminated Hodge's operation as the nation's connecting hub to all other pedophile rings thriving throughout the nation.[329]

Unbelievably, during Oppenheimer-Hodge's decade long disastrous tenure as Islington council leader, allowing a pedophile ring to both infiltrate and flourish at all dozen of her district group homes, then defiantly denying, rebuking and ultimately having virtually all the insurmountable evidence“ disappear,” in 1992 Margaret Hodge fled the very crime scene she’d meticulously created and tried in vain to completely cover up, escaping temporarily for a few months to a cushy consultant job at Price-Waterhouse before selected in 1994 as Labor’s next MP for Barking where she’s been a permanent fixture ever since. Throughout this entire scandalously grotesque spectacle played out in plain sight within her Islington district, Hodge’s neighbor in Richmond Crescent a few doors down was none other than fellow pedo-enabler-crossdresser-D notice provocateur Tony “Miranda” Blair, and unfortunately for the UK and world as of 1997, the next Labor prime minister.[330]

In 2003 Tony Blair rewarded Oppenheimer-Hodge for building and successfully protecting the nation’s largest, most blatant, “out-of-control” pedophile ring, selecting her as Britain’s first Minister for Children, a new cabinet post within the Ministry of Education designed and created especially for her proven record. After all, she effectively shielded scores of VIP pedophiles routinely victimizing her expendable care home kids with complete impunity and then allowed them to escape, making her the ideal job candidate to go nationwide. Only at the pedophilia epicenter of the world would the nation’s top leader, knowing full well his fellow Fabian neighbor living so close made it her priority to protect child rapists over the well-being of children under her care, ostensibly design a brand new cabinet position to “protect” all of Britain’s children, confident that she’d do as magnificent a job protecting VIP pedophile rings operating throughout Britain at the tragic expense and grave suffering of UK’s most defenseless, innocent population. You simply can’t make up this kind of pure evil shit, nor can you get any more diabolically Luciferian.

Per Illuminati doctrine, as minister of children Hodge pushed for state authoritarianism usurping parental rights and increasing the secrecy of UK's infamous family court system to tear apart British families, separating children from their parents, swallowed up in a pipeline straight into the highly organized, insulated, well-oiled machine called the global pedophilia network. And what better candidate for the job than the unabashed Orwellian Big Brother Zionist aficionado who blatantly insisted:

> For me it's not a question of whether we should intrude in family life, but how and when.[331]

Oppenheimer-Hodge has always been known for her aggression while venomously lashing out, twice committing libel first against "gutter" journalist Eileen Fairweather for her shockingly truthful account of the pedophilia that the council leader did her vicious best to criminally cover-up. The second time she engaged in libelous revenge came after abuse survivor turned child advocate Demetrious Panton bravely went public with his own harrowing story of abuse after years earlier in 1985 sending a 6-page letter to Hodge detailing the torture he was forced to endure a few years earlier living at Islington group homes she supervised.[332] Making unwanted publicity in 2003 for the freshly installed minister of children, in a letter to BBC chairman Gavyn Davis, the vengeful drama queen called Panton an "extremely disturbed person."[333] But in response to her libelous attack, the successful barrister and healthy survivor despite years of institutional abuse smartly consulted fellow lawyers. Metro Police Detective Superintendent John Sweeney countered Hodge's malicious slurs with a glowing public testimonial:

> I found Demetrious to be very articulate... He had a very measured response to what had happened. I have no doubt that if it had got to court we would have had a very strong case. I wouldn't say he was disturbed at all. He certainly wanted justice and he wanted to see Mr Bain [his abuser] in the dock in a British court. That's perfectly understandable.[334]

“Sour grapes” Hodge was forced to publicly apologize for her reprehensible smear in order to quash growing demands that she resign her abusive brand of “ministering” to all of UK’s children. Further, in a transparent act of self-serving political expediency, Hodge was compelled to submit to Demetrious’ demands that she publicly apologize, pay his legal bills and make a financial contribution to a charity of his choice. Both her atrocious past record and latest toxic antics produced an unprecedented flood of calls demanding her resignation from child rights activists, the opposition party and the public at large. In 2003 Tory shadow secretary for health and education Tim Yeo applied political pressure on Hodge to step down, providing a sound and reasonable explanation:

The biggest problem in cases of child abuse is to get the victims to have the confidence to come forward. If they feel that if they do come forward that they are going to be branded by the minister responsible as disturbed people, what does that do to the chances of us being able to uncover more cases of child abuse?[335]

In spite of her slightly bruised ego, the politically weakened, thoroughly compromised minister still managed to barely survive the Islington abuse scandal. A powerful Oppenheimer lives nine lives and to this day at age 74, Hodge still remains a member of the House of Commons.

After all her afflicted damage, both Hodge and Blair continued catching nonstop flack for appointing her overseer of British children’s welfare, barraged by relentless blowback and more than justified criticism for her ghastly pro-pedophilia career. Finally after less than two years as UK’s first Minister of State for Children, no doubt exhausted from constantly having to feebly defend his appalling choice, Blair quietly transferred her to Ministry for Work and Pensions. But she put her foot in her mouth again, flippantly dismissing 6,000 displaced workers from a closed MG plant, telling them in so many words "go work at the grocery store chain Tesco, they're hiring" as reverberations of Marie Antoinette's "let them eat cake."[336] So her Oppenheimer nine lives in politics were once again given new life as the Culture and Tourism Minister, eventually winding up both minister and parliamentary chair for the powerful Public Accounts Office. In 2015 Hodge finally stepped down as a cabinet minister resuming her role as MP, the same year the queen promptly rewarded her with Dame-ship for her longtime service dedicated to doggedly promoting the global elite's pedophilia agenda. But her final ministry resignation was also prompted by more Hodge hubris and hypocrisy.

No accident that while in control over UK public accounting, for the first time in the nation's history, it was announced that the poorest 10% of British citizens end up paying higher taxes from earned income than the richest 10%.[337] While Hodge railed against mega-corporations like Google for not paying its fair share, her Oppenheimer family controlled interest in the world's largest steel corporation Stemcor inherited from daddy pays just a sinful .01% of its colossal £2.1billion a year earnings.[338] Her double standards know no limits as she blasts everyone else while she as the chosen one pays the least.[339]

For a native-born Oppenheimer, money means power and power to her means honor, regardless of how scandalously criminal her behavior to reach it. Like her fellow Jewish pedo-gatekeeping sisters Esther and Edwina, Oppenheimer-Hodge's life has been full of hypocritical inconsistencies and drama queen fakery. On the one hand, she railed against corporate and government waste, but on the other hand, as recently as June 2018 she sought a volunteer job at the University of London that by statute is an unpaid position.

[340] Yet this superrich prima donna refused to “volunteer” without demanding an additional £20,000 annum as part of yet another deal cut especially for her, as if the over two billion pounds her family company rakes in yearly as a spoon fed Oppenheimer or the near £80,000 as MP for the last quarter century is never enough. For this greedy Jewish bloodline prima dona, time is money and money is power and be damned with the rest of us lowly goyim plebeians.

In the post-Savile Operation Midland when police were going through the motions pretending to investigate the VIP pedophiles in government, Savile was linked to Islington abuse and as a result, the local council was once again pressured to conduct yeet another of its “objective” inquiries ad nauseam. And guess who was selected to lead this one in 2014? Margaret’s very own son-in-law Joe Caluori. Even after this blatant conflict of interest was exposed, the Islington council insisted on keeping their man at the helm married to an Oppenheimer daughter.[341] With or without all those missing files, it’s no wonder no arrests have ever been made. So the never-ending saga of UK cover-up shamefully continues to trudge on forever.

Incidentally, in addition to being the Islington council attorney empowered to look into his mother-in-law’s criminal cover-up, Joe Caluori is also very active in his community as Islington’s current children and young people leader.[342] Nothing like keeping it in the family. Joe also is reported to be working for a high-end consultancy firm called Britainthinks (globalized version Worldthinks) that advertises innovative solutions for success boasting such clients as McDonalds, the BBC, the Fabian Society and ebay, all great corporate sponsored covers for the NWO pedo-cabal. Again, nothing like keeping it in the family.[343] Sitting on its advisory board is Baron Lord Daniel Finkelstein, Times of London editor and Savile-Cyril Smith pedo-apologist.[344]

It was reported in 2017 that Sandy Marks, the Islington council member who chaired the social services committee during the years Margaret Hodge presided over the council, attended a conference back in 1980 with a pedophile group known as the Fallen Angels.[345] After initially denying it, when presented with a photo busting her lie, Marks who went on to becoming the Islington mayor no less, finally admitted the error of her ways, claiming she was too easily influenced by the pro-pedophile crowd and culture back in the day immersed in Labor Party left wing politics that embraced homosexuality and sexual liberation for all, including predators pouncing on babies.

That a former popular mayor held views that sex with children was okay and saw her custodial role as social services committee leader making sure washing machines at the homes were in proper working order over protecting the well-being of children proved such a “shocking” revelation that yet another investigation into Islington abuse was initiated. But the 8-month “independent” review by Sarah Morgan QC recently released its finding that “no organized abuse” took place in the 1970s-1990s.[346] The victims that provided their painful testimony to once again relive their traumas felt completely betrayed because they firsthand know it was highly organized and involved well known VIPs. Every so called “independent” inquiry in Britain, from the BBC Dame Smith report to Theresa May’s national IICSA, all are one big whitewash, repeatedly throwing salt on the wounds that can never heal for the victims whose promised justice by conspired diabolical design is continually denied.

Back to drama queen Oppenheimer-Hodge, to this day she continues spewing out her toxic venom to the point of irreversibly fracturing her own embattled Labor Party, nastily turning against her Labor leader Jeremy Corbyn. As current MP from Barking, Dame Hodge just can’t seem to keep her “good” name out of the scandalous headlines. A mere month after her fiasco trying to gouge a salary out of a nonpaid volunteer job, in July 2018 she verbally accosted Corbyn on the House of Commons floor, in an out of control rage screaming:

You're a fucking anti-Semite and racist![347]

Within hours, the foul-mouthed hothead felt compelled to double down, defending her cheap shot ambush of a false accusation with yet more melodrama grandstanding in a Guardian article:

My grandmother and my uncle were murdered by Hitler and many cousins and other relatives were slaughtered in the gas chambers.[348]

True to Zionist form, she used the old Jewish Holocaust card. But in her next statement, Dame Oppenheimer shows her true racist colors:

It [Palestinian/Israeli conflict] appears to have become a legitimate price that the [Corbyn's Labour] leadership is willing to pay for pursuing the longstanding cause of Palestinians in the Middle East.[349]

So the Dame's all for cracking down on free speech in favor of Political Correctness tyranny.[350] In this neoliberal age of pampered crybaby feelings, if you dare hurt someone's fragile ego expressing your own opinion, especially about a Jew or Israel or Zionism, Dame Margaret and those like her wish to send you to prison. Under the burgeoning umbrella of "anti-hate speech laws," spreading their flimsily veiled cover for absolute authoritarian tyranny, more governments are seeking to criminalize the truth, in this case objecting to Israel's rampantly aggressive genocidal policies against the Palestinians.[351] This double standard injustice was taken to task almost a decade and a half years ago in an incisively convincing essay written by Edgar J. Steele who foresaw the coming wave of Zionist led oppression and war on free speech:

Hate speech laws in action, ladies and gentlemen. They are coming to America next. Already, the imprisonments have begun, even in America, albeit by twisting and subverting other laws. Some people have died, too, but their deaths falsely are attributed to other causes. Truly, hate speech simply means anything that Jews hate to hear. That's why we have to have Jews to identify it for us.[352]

Zionism's current zeal to suppress free speech embodied by the likes of British Zionists like Oppenheimer-Hodge and Washington's Israeli First neocons and their ultra-friendly relationship to pedophilia are definitely not two mutually exclusive phenomena independent of each other. Just the opposite. Like Freemasonry and Illuminati, Zionism too is akin to the global pedophilia epidemic.[353] That's why it's so important to briefly delve further into Zionism and its shady dark history in order to understand its full implication in the current global pedophilia crisis.

On September 4, 2018 the site aangirfan.com published a very revealing article entitled "Friends of Israel," succinctly tying Zionism and the international pedophilia network together:

The Zionist modus operandi for shaping UK politics, foreign policy, and public opinion includes the use of Organized Child Sexual Abuse and Child Trafficking – as a tool for rewarding, entrapping, removing or blackmailing parliamentarians and other prominent public office holders and VIPs.[354]

Recall Sir Jimmy Savile's self-description as the "most Jewish Catholic,"[355] concedes his status as a devoutly committed Zionist making numerous pilgrimages to Israel advising prime ministers and Knesset on security matters (covered in Chapter 19). As the British nation's primary child procurer for VIPs throughout the 1970s and 1980s, Savile the Zionist also made frequent trips to Jersey where he and the island's Jewish leader Senator Wilfred Krichefsky regularly abused, tortured and murdered children at Haut de la Garenne,[356] that is when Zionist Jimmy wasn't supplying kids for treasonous Prime Minister Edward Heath on his Morning Star yacht murdering and throwing used up dead boys overboard.

Then there's Mossad-CIA double agent, the longtime Zionist UK resident Uri Geller who lived in the village of Sonning west of London for 35 years, all the while maintaining intimate ties with not only UK's "most Zionist Catholic," but also other Zionist aficionados sharing Savile's same pedo-predilection - Lord Greville Janner, Uri's distant cousin and McCann-linked MP Clement Freud and goyim-pedo MP Michael Portillo.[357] Coincidentally, Uri and current UK PM Theresa May are apparently best buds both residing in Sonning,[358] as mentioned earlier another staunch Jewish State supporter and cabal protector of the VIP pedo-epidemic.[359] So you can see regardless of party or persuasion, Dame Margaret Oppenheimer possesses many likeminded allies in her pro-Zionist camp. By the way, nearby neighbors in the exclusive community of May and Geller (who recently sold his Sonning estate for $15 million) include Crowley's OTO satanic cult disciple Zeppelin's Jimmy Page[360] and by association pro-Israel elitists[361] Lord George and Lady Amal Clooney.[362]

Just as Zionist lobby groups completely dominate American politics, they also control the British government with "friends of Israel" camps firmly embedded in all major parties, bribing them both with hefty campaign contributions but offer more trips to Israel than all politicians from the US and continental Europe combined.[363] Additionally, the British-Israeli Communication and Research Center is a monopolizing influence at the BBC and Sky News as well as the Financial Times. Zionism's power over Britain (and the world) is Incredible considering Jews make up less than half of one percent of the UK population. The Zionist agenda that includes global economic and political hegemony also plays a major role in global pedophilia operations.

A loyally steadfast Parliament member in both Blair's New Labor think tank Progress[364] as well as current member and former chair of Friends of Israel comes the openly gay Zionist Jew Stephen Twigg, originally deputy leader and protégé under Margaret Hodge's Islington council in the 1990s where he was complicit in her pedophilia cover-up and "lost" evidence. As Hodge's surrogate deputy on the council in 1992, Twigg also met with abuse survivor Demetrius Panton but simply passed the buck, deflecting Demetrius's grievance by redirecting him to speak to Hodge herself, yet Twigg never even relayed to his mentor that a justifiably distressed abuse victim came a-calling.[365] Knowing how testy and upset Margaret can be, apparently Twigg didn't want to rile her ire, aware she was taking the heat for allowing the scandal to get so out of control.

Following in Dame Margaret's footsteps and true to form, Stephen Twigg became secretary-general of the Fabian Society. After all, he was raised by Communist parents.[366] Notice the recurring theme of Fabian-communist lineage amongst all the Zionist pedo-friendly Labor Party heavyweights? Twigg's biggest claim to fame was his 1997 upset victory against Conservative incumbent MP from Enfield, UK's standing defense secretary no less - fellow homosexual and reputed pedophile Michael Portillo.[367] This charismatic political figure has quite a colorfully checkered past.

With Prime Minister John Major's defense secretary a flaming yet married homosexual pedophile, Portillo was an easy target for sexual blackmail by both British as well as foreign intelligence. In 1996 private detectives of Egyptian born business magnate Mohamed Al-Fayad, father of Dodi Fayad allegedly murdered in Paris with Princess Diana by the royal family in 1997,[368] reportedly obtained photos of then defense minister Michael Portillo with a young boy allegedly in North Wales.[369] Al-Fayad had moved to Britain in the 1960s where he made a vast fortune as owner of Harrods, the Ritz Hotel Paris and Fulham Football Club. Even prior to his son's death, Al-Fayad had a personal interest in exposing certain British government scandals, and invested in Scalawag, a small satirical monthly magazine begun by a pair of half-brothers with a mission to uncover corruption and pedophilia in its run from 1991-98 before going bankrupt.[370]

The compromising photos of Portillo were passed on to Scalawag Magazine editor and cofounder Angus James who took them on a business trip to northern Cyprus in September 1996.[371] At the time, because Scalawag was going full bore exposing the Westminster VIP pedophile ring exploiting British care home children and even naming VIP names, it was increasingly targeted for litigation by the pedophile establishment and, in a David vs. Goliath battle, the publication was forced from the newsstands to an online site before going under in 1998. Angus James was starting up his second publication Spiked and took the controversial photos to Turkish controlled northern Cyprus to meet another Scalawag financial contributor - British fugitive Turkish Cypriot entrepreneur Asil Nadir.

Turns out the CIA and MI6 had used Nadir's Polly Peck International conglomerate as a cover for illegal British arms shipments to Iraq during the 1980s' Thatcher years.[372]

Nadir had fled Britain in 1993 seeking refuge in his Turkish Cyprus from UK prosecution for bogus fraud charges. James was reportedly there to close a deal with Nadir to finance Spiked with the photos likely providing a blackmail bargaining chip to negotiate a dismissal of charges against Nader back in England.[373] In September 2010, after 17 years in exile, the flamboyant Nadir made his grand re-entrance in a London courtroom under much fanfare, only to be deferred, fitted with ankle bracelet and midnight curfew under virtual house arrest while prosecution re-prepared its fraud case with the trial scheduled the following year.[374] During the trial, key evidence that would have proven Nadir’s innocence was withheld, a CIA dossier[375] prohibited under false pretense of “national security” was never included.[376] Nadir was framed by the US-UK-Israel cabal syndicate. So in August 2012 the tycoon was convicted of “stealing” nearly £29m from his own company and at age 71 sentenced to 10 years.[377]

After attending a party at Nadir’s home in 1996, while driving down a mountainous road 31-year old Angus James met a violent end in an auto accident with a truck.[378] The driver of the car, Angus’s colleague Simon Stander and the two women passengers all connected to the magazine survived. Simon suffered bruises and was hospitalized while arrangements were swiftly made to fly the two uninjured women back home to London. Nadir’s fixer was Peter Diamond who placed Simon in hiding in an attempt to keep his boss’s name out of the headlines. But a journalist friend of Angus writing for the Independent mentioned Angus’s meeting with the multi-millionaire before being killed on the road.[379] With Angus James’s death, whatever deal was reached that night was immediately scrapped. Diamond confiscated James’s files, the photos and his possessions. The featured exposé on Portillo scheduled in the following month’s issue was never published. There was also an apparent break-in at the Scalawag London office, removing additional software and computers containing the edition that would have featured the story outing the top Tory cabinet minister in compromising photos with his abuse victim.[380]

Within a year after Angus James' death, the UK defense minister Portillo lost his election to relative unknown, Zionist Hodge protégée Stephen Twigg. But just two years later in 1999, Portillo was back in Parliament representing Kensington and Chelsea for the next half dozen years. But just two months prior to the 1999 election, just when Tory MP Alan Clark keeled over to conveniently open up a safe seat, Michael Portillo announced in an interview his homosexual past,[381] chalking it up to a phase he went through back in his gay old college days.[382] But the LBGT community wasn't buying it, calling him a hypocrite for refusing to lower the age of consent for homosexuals and lesbians to 16 on par with the hetero crowd and still voting to kick gays out of the military.[383]

Of course the real hypocrisy here is all the titillating soap opera uproar questioning his "phase," providing the smokescreen cover-up to his blackmailed puppet status as a pedophilic criminal. Through the politic apparatchik, the darling of the Conservative party as a still semi-closeted chameleon reinvented himself as a popular BBC broadcaster where homosexuals are most welcomed and pedophiles are most protected (covered in Chapter 21). That's the much bigger issue, along with the illegal arms deal, pedophilia and multiple murders including perhaps Angus James in northern Cyprus.

More death, scandal and intrigue seem to follow this Michael Portillo around like smell to shit. From his college days at Cambridge as 18 year old "Polly," he engaged in promiscuous sex on alternate days with his gay lover while dating his future wife for the next 8 years. With his male lover ending up HIV positive, Portillo was also rumored to have indulged in homosexual trysts with fellow Tory MP Minister Peter Lilley and the first and only professional footballer (soccer) to come out publicly as gay - Justin Fashanu in 1990.[384] Another favorite Portillo activity was rendezvousing with pedo-pals at his favorite hotel in the world - La Gazelle d’Or in Morocco.[385] And among his fave travel companions is fellow homosexual-pedophile-Tory pimp-sadist Derek Laud, lounging at La Gezelle d’Or together doing little Moroccan boys whenever Derek didn’t bring along his rent boys from home.[386] Considered to be a political mover and shaker amongst the elite throughout the 1980s and 1990s, with no formal higher education degree nor holding any elected public office, Derek Laud’s claim to fame was writing speeches for Margaret Thatcher and suppling fresh little kids for elitist vultures. But more to come on this enigmatic boy supplier in the next chapter.

Turning to Justin Fashanu and his link to powerful politicians like Portillo, he was born to a Nigerian barrister and Guyanese nurse in Hackney in 1961. But when his parents’ marriage broke up, Justin and his year younger brother John were placed in Barnardos children’s home, the same pedo-scandal outfit that Tony Blair’s wife Cherie became president of in 2001,[387] no doubt reason enough a dozen years later the queen bestowed a CBE honor for her pedo-gatekeeping “charity” work.[388] By the age of six, Justin with his brother were fortunate enough to move into a foster care home raised by an elderly white couple in rural England. Growing up as the only black kids in town, both were skilled athletes and went on to the pros.

As the only openly gay professional in football, Justin Fashanu paid a heavy price for his bold honesty coming out at age 29, and was never quite prepared for the backlash. Unlike the world of politics where gay men make up a significant percentage of MPs in government, in the world of football Justin stood alone. John Fashanu ultimately rejected his brother for being gay, even paying him £75,000 not to disclose his gayness to the world in order to spare him and his family from embarrassment.[389] But in 1990 Justin took his brother's money and ran straight to The Sun for another £70,000 to declare his sexual preference to the world,[390] creating an enduring rift between brothers that would last till Justin's death eight years later. John took his troubled brother's death very hard with a suicide note saying Justin did not wish to bring any more shame and despair on his family and friends.

But at only 19 playing for Norwich, Justin Fashanu appeared to have the world at the palm of his foot, scoring the famous goal of the decade against Liverpool, catapulting him to becoming the first black million-pound player. But soon after when his Nottingham coach learned he was gay, he was banned from training with the team and soon let go from the club.[391] His confidence shattered, for many years Justin bounced around playing for a series of lesser leagues in England, Scotland, North America, never quite measuring up to all his early hype and promise. According to mainstream press, Justin acquired a reputation and habit as a compulsive liar, making up scandalous stories for some cheap thrill change.[392]

Fashanu found himself mixing socially amongst fellow gays who were government VIPs that happened to get off on raping kids. While frequenting gay clubs around London, he met longtime Conservative MP from Bournemouth East (1977-2005) David Atkinson, the typical church going family man with wife, a son and daughter, and a big secret, his affair with a notorious black football star.[393] But Justin soon learned that David Atkinson also indulged in another far more sinister secret - sex with rent boys. The Tory MP died in 2012 HIV positive suffering from bowel cancer. Two years later Atkinson's son Anthony came forward to also reveal that his father was a serial child sexual predator like Savile.[394] Anthony stated that there is evidence that his MP father was sexually blackmailed by a Westminster Palace staff member threatening to sell details of his dad's sexual life to a newspaper.

Fate would have it that two very different lives, one belonging to an infamous black gay footballer and another highly respected, this time straight white Conservative MP would intersect and each tragically end four years apart. Scalawag wrote about the bizarre death of Tory MP Stephen Milligan in February 1994. At the time the former journalist Milligan was Parliamentary Private Secretary to defense procurement minister Jonathan Aitken,[395] and his day-to-day work no doubt brought him in contact with British intelligence services making Milligan privy to illegal arms deals.

Scalawag suggested that Stephen was approached by MI5, pressing him to intervene as the go-between in an urgent matter regarding Justin Fashanu.[396] Apparently in early 1994 with Justin Fashanu's career on the downswing, in search of another quick cash windfall, the fading athletic star had already gone to the Daily Express ready to tell all he knew about the Westminster VIP pedophile ring based on his alleged intimate encounters with high profile MPs and senior cabinet ministers.[397] MI5 pressured the MP Milligan to convince the footballer to stay quiet. When Stephen approached Justin to inform him that his life was in danger should he persist in disclosing the sleaze atop the British government, Fashanu naively couldn't believe it. After failing to convince Justin to back off from trying to sell the scandalous story to the media, MI5 told Stephen that Justin Fashanu would be killed and made to appear a suicide.[398]

Already appalled by all the suspected pedophilia perpetrated by his colleagues in conjunction amidst a flood of breaking Tory sex scandals at the time coming from the political party that went out of its way espousing family values,[399] MP Milligan also grew increasingly disgustedly upset that a branch of his own government would go so far as to assassinate someone willing to take measures to clean up the filth in high places.[400] Under mounting pressure, the former BBC journalist panicked, making the fatal error of threatening MI5, that should anything happen to Justin, he would go to his former employer at The Sunday Times and blow the whistle.[401] Similar to the impromptu hit on Jill Dando ready to drop the cesspit bombshell just three years later, either Downing Street or senior intelligence very likely made the decision to eliminate Stephen Milligan, leaving him naked laying roped on top of his kitchen table with a bag over his head wearing women's nylon stockings and an orange fruit segment in his mouth to come off as yet another kinky "sexual misadventure," a favorite kill method security services notoriously utilize to avoid major investigations.[402] Recall in Chapter 21 during this same time period of the 1990s, several other BBC employees met similar fates engaging in this so called bizarre sex play gone awry.

But a leading pathologist concluded Stephen Milligan was a murder victim as he had never heard of both a bag over the head and ligature in the mouth as suicides always involve one or the other. Even initial police reports indicated the MP's death appeared suspicious, very likely involving foul play,[403] backed up by all who knew Stephen best, including past girlfriends unanimously certain he was murdered.[404] Stephen's former editor friend from the Sunday Times

Andrew Neil checked with his previous intimates and all concurred:

There was nothing about his private life that would make you think the way he died was possible.[405]

Justin Fashanu's security guard Bobby Munro has stated that Stephen made a rash of calls to Fashanu hours before his death, but Justin refused to take the calls. Also a few years later, the same police investigator - Brian Edwards – responsible for the unsolved, botched-on-purpose Jill Dando murder case in May 1999 was also the lead police investigator in Stephen Milligan's death.[406] It's no wonder the rushed inquest was unwilling to look at any other evidence not leading to the conclusion of a self-induced "sexual misadventure."

It was then that an MI5 agent allegedly paid a visit to Justin Fashanu, threatening that he would be next should he proceed with telling the world about top food chain pedophiles. Instead Justin reportedly decided to accept the hush money offered. The mainstream press reported Justin's agent contacted police detectives urging them to interview Fashanu about Milligan's death, but the police claimed his input was just more pathetic, made up lies.[407] His negative publicity prompted Justin's football club to terminate his contract and Fashanu took the next plane out to America where he played a couple more seasons, bouncing from one league down to the next, 22 teams in a 20 year career including a stopover in New Zealand.[408]

After a 17-year old boy in Maryland accused Justin of rape, he was questioned and then released, escaping back to England before being charged though he maintained the sex was consensual.[409] A short time later the first and only pro footballer bold enough to disclose his homosexuality to the world wound up hanging from a beam in a garage at age 37 in 1998.[410] Since British police and mainstream press both have a very long history of covering up the murderous VIP Westminster pedo-scandal, it comes as no surprise that Justin Fashanu would be portrayed as a pathological lying desprado compulsively seeking money and attention for his so called sordid tall tale stories. Another convenient tactic the state deploys to silence would-be truth tellers and victims is to discredit and smear their credibility and reputation. So the legitimate question lingers on two decades after his death, did Justin Fashanu become yet another murder victim for knowing too much?

A related angle to this sad ending episode is that MP Milligan as Parliamentary Private Secretary to a defense minister would provide him with access to sensitive information involving covert British illegal arms trafficking to Iraq.[411] The CIA and MI6 commonly use front companies like Asil Nader's and Gerald James' arms company called Astra in their booming illegal international gun running trade, right along with drugs, small children and human organs. Gerald James wrote a memoir about his experience that included exposing unusually suspicious deaths of eight individuals such as a former MI6 agent and a journalist who were both very likely murdered/suicided by the familiarly bizarre asphyxiation method for their independent pursuit to uncover the full truth about Britain's illegal arms sales.[412]

Back during the Iraq-Iran war in the 1980s, Reagan/Bush and Thatcher used US and British intelligence to secretly violate their own arms embargos and weapons bans exporting their war machine to warring enemy camps in the Middle East,[413] just as the Rothschilds and more recently the Harrimans and Bushes have been financing both sides to every elite orchestrated war for centuries.[414] Mark Thatcher, the prime minister's son, got 12 million pounds richer selling warplanes to the Saudis in British history's biggest arms deal,[415] so more innocent civilians in Yemen can be massacred with full US-UK complicity.[416] Similar to how Angus James may have died for potentially exposing pedo-Portillo and the British government's illicit arms shipment to Saddam Hussein, two years earlier Stephen Milligan may have been murdered by the Deep State for the exact same reason(s).

Returning to the fellow pro-pedo MP originally from Islington chosen to bring down UK's secretary of defense Portillo in 1997, Stephen Twigg entered Parliament at just 30-years old. But he'd already impressed the newly elected British Prime Minister Tony Blair, then moving from Islington to Downing Street. In 1996 the two fellow Fabians from Islington co-wrote and published through the Foreign Policy Centre their 35-page A Global Alliance for Global Values,[417] outlining their pathway to dystopia through elitist globalization. But eight years later Blair's unpopular war in Iraq had Labor party losing seats in 2005, Twigg's historically conservative Enfield district among the casualties. That same year while dancing the night away in a London gay nightclub, Twigg was attacked by an Islington child abuse survivor accusing him of direct involvement in Hodge's Islington-Jersey child abuse-pornography-murder scandal.[418]

While still licking his wounds from his last election smack-down and forcibly delivered smack-down reminder of his pedophilia culpability, Twigg was rescued by his close ties to Prime Ministers Blair and Brown. In 2010 their New Labor party pressured a 27-year Labor MP veteran to give up his Liverpool West Derby seat 200 miles away from Enfield for big Twigg's relaunch into Parliament.[419] And just a year later the rising star was awarded the post of Labor shadow minister of education. But just two years on after his lackluster performance failing to challenge Tory education minister Michael Gove,[420] in 2013 Labor party leader Ed Miliband fired Twigg.[421] Ed and brother David Miliband were raised as Marxist Jews, with Ed on record looking up to fellow Jew Jack Straw as a “father figure,”[422] yet another former Islington council deputy under Hodge. Ed Miliband worked in 1993 for PIE linked pro-pedo deputy Labor leader Harriet Harman. Note the same ties that bind - Labor-Marxist-Zionist-pedophilia recirculating ad infinitum.

In 2015 two old guard Zionist Jew former foreign secretaries Jack Straw and Malcolm Rifkind, Sir Malcolm still in charge of Mossad infiltrated British intelligence services,[423] were both thrown out of government after getting caught greedily boasting of their corrupt omnipotence before hidden Channel 4 cameras in the “cash-for-access” sting[424] (British variation of the Clintons’ “pay-to-play” racketeering), and as a result, the brass ring of House of Lords peerage eluded them.[425]

But rest assure there’s always the next generation of Zionist Jews controlling UK politics despite Jewish people comprising a miniscule .04% of the total UK pop. Jew or no Jew, what all Zionists share in common is the elephant in the room – Rothschild control over Britain (and much of the world).[426] The next wave of Zionist Rothschild plants in British government are represented by the likes of Stephen Twigg and the Miliband brothers with Polish-Russian connections,[427] their deceased Marxist father a possible KGB asset.[428]

In 2010 Ed Miliband beat his pissed off older brother David out for a half decade of failed Labor leadership, in 2015 upended by the present party leader - non-Jew Jeremy Corbyn. No doubt seething inside, initially Ed Miliband pretended graciously to accept Corbyn, but he seized on the divisive Brexit issue to show his fangs demanding Jeremy’s resignation.[429] The reality of Corbyn's populist appeal has Israel and their London Zionist minions frothing at the mouth to depose the non-Jew who actually recognizes the rights of Palestinians.[430] But remaining loyal to the Blair-Hodge-Straw-Rifkind-Mandelson "old" New Labor-pro-pedophilia-Zionist-Rothschild camp, MP Stephen Twigg is on record staunchly opposing Corbyn.[431] Though hostile to his leadership, it's Twigg's old mentor MP Oppenheimer-Hodge who's leading the mutinous party coup.

Last July Margaret Oppenheimer-Hodge was caught once again treasonously and vulgarly acting out on behalf of her favorite foreign power, attempting to incite a leadership revolt for a second time to rid Jeremy Corbyn for supporting the Palestinians' right to exist.[432] The current political squabble in the UK over Zionism warrants a deeper look within the broader historical context since Zionism and pedophilia go hand-in-hand together. That's why Luciferian planetary controllers thrive and literally get their rocks off waging permanent war and bloody carnage around the world because it provides fertile unlimited ground and opportunity for trafficking guns, drugs, laundered money, children and body parts, financing black ops projects that benefit only the monster squad in control.

The specific reason why Oppenheimer-Hodge threw her public tantrum on the world stage was over her Labor Party recently modifying its definition of anti-Semitism, which only deleted a couple of small examples from the previous definition, from the word-for-word extraction taken directly from the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance (IHRA). The IHRA definition clearly conflates anti-Semitism with any and all criticism towards Israel. The aging Dame had a cow over Labor's recent changes under Corbyn that declawed the "anti-Semitic" label applied to disagreement with Israel’s racist apartheid genocidal policy toward Palestinians.

Margaret needs to grow up and recognize the party’s over - her Jewish State can’t continue throwing its “anti-Semitic” weight around to keep its growing number of critics silently at bay with its weaponized victim card anymore. For years the IHRA has dictated to the world what constitutes anti-Semitism based on anyone calling out Israel’s longtime policy towards Palestinians as “racist,” inhumane and unfair.

But just when you think the dog days are finally over, Zionist pushback arrives in the form of tantrums, harassment and censorship by the likes of Hodge and the Anti-Defamation League’s latest collusions with the Google Gestapo and Facebook Nazis.[433] Like it or not Oppenheimer and the rest of you Zionists, the world is beyond fed up with the whining prima donna Jewish State for all its duplicitous double standards, now caught desperately still trying to use its worn-out victim card forever. It’s not going to work any longer and if you don’t want to be called Nazis, then stop acting like them.

Another chicken bone of contention caught in Dame’s turkey gobbler throat, the IHRA labels us anti-Semitic if we accuse people like her to be an Israeli firster or Zionista. Oppenheimer, all your past bad behavior including your treasonous blind loyalty to that foreign power you represent neither qualifies you or “your people” as God’s chosen ones. You’re definitely not. In the Creator’s eyes, no one group of humans is more favored over another, regardless of race or religion. And IMHO, it’s another flawed human distortion and abomination of God’s true essence to believe otherwise. Nope Dame Margaret, even Lucifer can’t help you now.

The 2018 Pittsburgh synagogue shooting as a weaponized false flag leading up to the November mid-term election is just more rollout of this same nefarious acted out, multipurposed agenda, desperately attempting to mold and control public opinion by casting broad-stroke dispersions, lumping in those critical of Zionist Israel with the violent, anti-Semitic, racist, extremist nutjobs.[434] Truth be told, that synagogue attack would not be the first time Zionists sacrifice their own kind for their so called "worthy" causes, as in the WWII Holocaust itself,[435] or the blown up S.S. Patria murdering 252 Jewish refugees off the Haifa coast in 1940,[436] or the 1950-51 Baghdad bombings killing Iraqi Jews,[437] or Argentina's 1992 Israeli embassy bombing or the 1994 Buenos Aires Jewish community center attack.[438] And that's just the shortlist of Zionist Jews killing innocent, decent Jews. At the 1958 Patria memorial service mourning 252 innocent Jewish refugees' lives assassinated by Zionists that have never represented the vast majority of Jews, former Israeli Prime Minister Zionist Moshe Sharett came right out and said it, giving away the Zionist MO:

Sometimes it is necessary to sacrifice the few in order to save the many.[439]

252 murdered people can hardly be considered a "few." Nor is the inflated Holocaust sacred number of 6 million a few.[440] If you believe all the propaganda, you'd never realize estimates of 5 million non-Jews also died in the Nazi Holocaust, but as goyim, their lost lives don't matter, just like the Palestinians. For many decades Jews killing Jews has been at work by the terrorist organization known as the Mossad, the Israeli government's own intelligence service. The Mossad is crawling with veteran masters of false flag terrorism[441] (9/11 a prime example),[442] falsely blaming "Islam" in the form of al Qaeda/ISIS mercenary stooges as well as providing the pretext for the neocons' fake "war on terror" as yet more Mossad-CIA-MI6 inventions[443] stripping away our Constitution.

The most dangerous extremists out there today placing our free speech rights in such serious jeopardy are the fanatical brigade belonging to the Political Correctness armies largely occupying college campuses around the world.[444] These days they are the neo-Nazis imposing absolute absurdity without limits on free speech rights. The PC gestapo police are banning gender pronoun usage[445] and sarcasm on college campuses in Australia.[446] So called “anti-hate laws” that are spreading worldwide ostensibly designed to protect the rights and feelings of both Jews and Muslims alike are the Luciferian master stroke in censorship and the silencing of free speech and the brain capacity of critical thinking.[447][448]

We are living in a time when the control system’s draconian strategy applies the Hegelian Dialectics in an indefinite, repetitive cycle whereby Western governments identify a self-created problem, then engineer a destructive reaction immediately linked to that problem, virtually always in the form of violent false flags thus providing ample excuse and opportunity for the government’s proposed solution that never fails to facilitate tighter authoritarian control.[449] This endless do-loop cycle is the state’s ticket leading to rising oppression and despotism exploited to the point of demolishing our freedom guaranteed under the Constitution. So called Western democracies are fast turning into the Communist Soviet gulag era of the 1940s and 50s.

Oppenheimer’s House of Commons outburst last July and the October Jewish synagogue shooting are merely staged events designed to identify a problem that major political leaders labeled as “anti-Semitic racists” are leading to a reaction inspiring anti-Semitic racist reactionaries worldwide to violently act out, as in the synagogue shooting. Solution – create more “anti-hate laws” locking up truth with the realists who speak it. Another illustrative example would be pronouncing the 2016 internet Pizzagate hype as “fake news” to be a problem that “dangerously” inspired the Comet pizza shooter’s reaction,[450] necessitating the immediate rollout within two weeks of Obama's pre-written "fake news" censorship legislation as the state solution. Round and round the dialectic gyroscope goes, our Orwellian descent spiraling humanity into despotic oblivion, everyone whose eyes are wide open knows.

The immediate first choice Dialectic solution for Hodge would be materialization of her intended leadership coup to depose Corbyn, but fortunately that failed. Also her Plan B solution would be for the Labor Party to return to its original, more inclusive IHRA definition of anti-Semitism. That failed as well. A longer term solution for Hodge and her beloved Jewish State would be to enact more laws around the globe outlawing "anti-Semitic hate" that under the older Labor Party definition would facilitate the arrests of anyone criticizing Israel or calling it a Zionist racist nation. An extremist reaction to the problem of a so called "racist" party leader that inspires and incites violent racist extremists to shoot Jews then provides the excuse to pass anti-hate legislation to silence truth and opposition to state tyranny as the cabal's "final solution." Using this incredibly revealing lens to filter and process today's world events and unfolding developments, it becomes far easier to figure out the real truth of how the corrupt, morally crumbling international pedo-crime cabal operates day in and day out.

PC tyranny plays a pivotal key role offering a convenient cover for totalitarian censorship and oppression where speakers of the truth such as independent journalists and citizen activists exposing government crimes are slated for incarceration. With US Congress controlled by pro-Israel lobby groups like AIPAC and the ADL,[451] the US Senate is seeking to pass legislation to redefine anti-Semitism to include conflating Israel criticism with anti-Semitism. Under the catch-all category of a "hate crime," in May 2018 South Carolina became the first state to make it illegal to criticize Israeli occupation.[452] With a concentration of Zionist evangelicals voting in South Carolina, they're anxiously awaiting Armageddon and the Second Coming.

Using the "hate crime" lynchpin to tighten the noose, the cabal is killing off what's left of our First Amendment rights to free speech and free press.[453] Telling the truth and activism are fast becoming a crime. In a related development, as of June 2018 Trump's new Assistant Secretary of Education for Civil Rights Kenneth Marcus is pro-Zionist zealot that equates anti-Semitism with any criticism of the Jewish State and has targeted Boycott, Divest, Sanctions (BDS) activism against Israel as his enemy vowing to instill "fear" on college campuses with a plan to shut the movement down nationally. Like Dame Oppenheimer-Hodge, he too conflates support for Palestinians' rights as anti-Semitic. With the Jewish lobby Zionists so powerful yet desperate, expect more states to follow suit with South Carolina.

To counteract worldwide criticism against Israel's genocidal crimes and appalling human rights violations against Palestinians, Zionists are pushing back with the agenda to coerce nations around the world into passing laws criminalizing criticism of Israel as a hate crime by meeting the broader definition of anti-Semitism to include any Israeli form of criticism.[454] First they came for all those who stood up for the Palestinians…[455]

Through decades of social engineering emasculating men while promoting fanatical male bashing PC feminist extremists exercising increasing Marxist power in campus witch hunts, the ruling elite's man-eating attack dogs are actually attacking and undermining man-woman relations and ultimately marriage and family as the fundamental social institutions that for eons of time have provided societies a foundation for stability and cohesion.[456] Recall that centuries ago Illuminati "founder" Adam Weishaupt identified the destruction/abolition of family to be among the primary objectives toward achieving one world government tyranny.[457]

Meanwhile, on another nefariously related front, the ruling elite has an overt, insidious, constant agenda attempting to normalize pedophilia (see Chapter 2). The media propaganda machine utilizing the PC-protected LGBT agenda armed with militant social justice warriors ready on demand to robotically pounce on their next designated target, which in some twisted circles may apparently be the “pedo-basher.” NAMBLA, the North American counterpart to PIE, the North American Man/Boy Love Association in 2017 was tied to the AntiFa radical left’s riots at Berkeley in violent protest of right wing speakers based on uncovered documents.[458] Then at a Columbia University speaking engagement featuring rightwing provocateur Mike Cernovich, a banner clearly displaying AntiFa, NAMBLA and “no pedo bashing” made headlines that the left-leaning press immediately accused alt-right of staging a hoax.[459] Hoax or no hoax, it would come as no shock if misguided social justice warriors looking for their next “cause” would come after pedo-bashers like Cernovich or his writer for that matter. Elitist puppet masters have already hoodwinked America and have too many right where they want them - cluelessly divided and conquered.[460] Fortunately the not so hoodwinked in America now growing in numbers see through their lies and manipulations.

Predatory pedophile scum are lurking just beneath LGBT’s more palatable, socially acceptable cover so en vogue in today’s prurient saturated mass media, now calling themselves Minor Attracted Persons (MAPs), as if a name change makes it okay or normal to have sex with kids.[461] It’s déjà vu of PIE in the 1970s and 80s all over again, when the sickos co-opted the liberal left’s sexual liberation/gay movement, insisting that kids have sexuality too, needing liberation right into the waiting perverted grasp of hungry sexual predators. From today’s warped POV dictating blind adherence to moral and cultural relativism in an “anything goes,” hipster world[462] comes the progressive left’s latest battlefield front, defending against “pedo-bashing,” excusing predatory child rapists simply by renaming them MAPs as just another misunderstood, persecuted, oppressed minority. After all, one man’s sin is another man’s pleasure girl or boy-toy.

Chapter 2 mentioned that the progressive left’s rag Salon in 2015 actually ran a series of articles penned by an alleged celibate pedophile (that Salon abruptly removed from the internet in 2017) as a sympathetic inside glimpse into the distraught, complicated world of society’s most hated sexual pariah for simply being born with a biological predisposition for attraction to children, not by volitional choice (though the author admits he was molested at age 7).[463] The New York Times published a controversial piece in 2014 by a professor asserting pedophilia may be a mental disorder but not a crime,[464] while other accounts are promoting it as a mere sexual orientation or lifestyle preference.[465] For decades the Hollywood A list has made no bones about its unwavering loyal support for such acclaimed aging unprosecuted pedophile directors as Roman Polanski and Woody Allen; and Chapter 15 features how much the Hollywood cesspit is a pedophilia-infested and controlled haven for Luciferian predators.

From professional mental health to academia, and media to entertainment on multi-pronged fronts, be they subliminal or overt, the recurrent, in-our-face message and theme is that like LGBT, society should learn tolerance and acceptance towards pedophiles. Bottom line, only the sexual offenders at the top of the predator food chain possess both the most motive with the most means at their disposal more than any other single group to relentlessly push this over-the-top, highly manipulative, diabolical agenda. Once legal and normalized, all child rapists are home free.

We’re living in an upside down, Luciferian ruled, extremist, polarized world right now where deception is the pedo-elite’s most effectively deployed globalized weapon of mass destruction. The late author Michael Ellner sized it up succinctly:

Just look at us. Everything is backwards; everything is upside down. Doctors destroy health, lawyers destroy justice, universities destroy knowledge, governments destroy freedom, the major media destroy information and religions destroy spirituality.[466]

It’s been the sinister agenda of Illuminati bloodline families like the Rothschilds and Oppenheimers that have deceitfully turned and twisted this world upside down. Controversial but incisive Canadian Jew Henry Makow offers his take on the Rothschild reach into every human’s life on the planet:

The Rothschilds are Cabalist Jews who represent their own demented megalomania that jeopardizes the destiny of mankind. They are imposing their occult tyranny by virtue of their worldwide monopoly over the medium of exchange. They produce credit and currency from nothing in the form of a debt to themselves, something our government could do itself, interest-and-debt-free. Organized Jewry and Freemasonry are accomplices in this scam. Alas, our ‘money’ is just coupons, virtual chips in their digital casino. They can manipulate or void these chips any time they want. Their agenda is to protect their money monopoly by extending it into a monopoly over everything – power, knowledge, culture, religion - by re-engineering humanity to serve them. This is the real meaning of Communism.[467]

Only by spreading this dark secret truth can more of us see through the Rothschilds and their minions’ thinly veiled endgame of nonstop lies spewing out daily from their puppet governments and MSM propaganda ministries as well as from the wide spectrum of today's bloodline controlled, morally bankrupt, corrosive institutions. Too many poisoned, dumbed down sheep are too gullible and blinded to reject the spoon-fed bullshit. But urgent, concentrated dissemination of truth to inform, educate and empower the masses is our best hope, chance and weapon for mobilizing a worldwide grassroots level movement to fully expose and overthrow the not-so-hidden shackles by holding the ruling demons fully accountable for all their egregious crimes against our children, adults and all life forms on this earth. That's what the controllers are most afraid of, that we band together in recognition of the true enemy.

Returning to Jeremy Corbyn's stance on Israel and why militant fanatics like Hodge are going berserk. Jeremy's conspicuously laudable refusal to entertain, wine and dine a Zionist war criminal, Corbyn publicly snubbed blowhard Netanyahu on his November 2017 visit to Britain to celebrate the Balfour centennial fiasco.[468] 100 years ago the then UK foreign minister Arthur Balfour pleased his Rothschild overlord by making it official, Great Britain was paving the way for a future Jewish State.[469] In effect, the long reigning imperialistic British Empire gave the greenlight for 60,000 Jews then living in Palestine to assume rule over the 600,000 disenfranchised Arabs who had zero say in their grand theft homeland despite their 10 to 1 majority.

But then that's how oligarchies are. For some time now numerous Western governments pretending to be democracies are actually oligarchies,[470] never representing the majority's interests but only the small powerful elite minority.[471] Another reason VIP pedos get away with raping and murdering children. As owners of the world central banking cartel, the Rothschilds have exploited this reality for centuries.[472]

Since Jews are lighter-skinned than Arabs, once the Balfour declaration was out, the rest is history. Down through the ages, people with darker skin complexions have nearly always been the prime targets of the worst racist atrocities and inhumane persecution. The historic murderous Balfour proclamation set the stage for the true Semite Palestinians to be illegally run off their land, homes bulldozed and torched and people genocided to make room for wave after wave of non-Semite Khazars known as the Ashkenazi Jews emigrating from Eastern Europe and Western Russia whose ancestors never stepped foot on Middle Eastern soil.[473]

The Balfour Declaration unleashed a 70-year bloody violent reign of terror of nonstop divide and conquer rule over Arab and Muslim states throughout the region, always with totally complicit US and UK support. Hence, with the British crown globally dominant for several hundred years, the Anglo-American-Zio agenda has virtually controlled mankind's fate over the last several centuries. Crimes against humanity remain unpunished because this axis-of-evil has always been a master manipulator in deception, rewriting history, faking science, creating and twisting religion as yet another control mechanism, hiding the real truth from the masses for millenniums. The old world order in fact is the New World Order but with the naked, ugly truth exposed, the jig's about up.

Founder Theodor Herzl's Zionist Movement credited with securing the birth of Israel in 1948 (again through Rothschild support and power) as an independent sovereign nation, having actively co-opted with Hitler's National Socialist Party in 1933 right up to wartime with their mutually cooperative plan to utilize World War II death camp Jews as sacrificial pawns, essentially punished for failing to join the 60,000 that freely immigrated from Nazi Germany to Palestine.[474] The exodus additionally involved over 300,000 other fleeing Jews heavily relocating to the US but also South America and Europe as well.[475] The Zionists shared with Hitler that an Aryan Germany free of Jews and a Jewish State in Palestine full of immigrating Jews from around the world was both the answer and solution to the Jewish question.[476]

The tragedy of the death camp Jews was viewed by the handful of Zionists that bargained their fate with the Nazi devil himself as simply a necessary cost or collateral damage required to whip up the obligatory, undying postwar sympathy worldwide that would then provide the bargaining chip to secure the UN endorsed national Jewish State in Palestine.[477] After all, from the very get-go, Zionism's Modus Operandi has always been that the ends justify the means.[478] Zionists opportunely used the horror of the Holocaust to readily brand and silence critics with the "anti-Semitic" label should they disagree with the Jewish State's brutally aggressive policies towards Arabs in the Middle East. Orthodox and traditional Jews never wanted anything to do with Zionism,[479] recognizing that the suffering of Jews has benefited only the Zionists as a subversive political movement having zero to do with their Jewish religion and that clearly Zionists never had the Jews' interests at heart in their ruthless quest for global power, domination and control.[480]

Both the World Zionist Organization (WZO) and American Jewish Congress during World War II literally turned their backs on fellow Jews dying in the concentration camps.[481] With WZO's full approval, Zionist head of Jewish Rescue and Relief Committee Rudolph Kasztner negotiated with the Nazi architect of the Holocaust Adolf Eichmann in 1944, paying over $1.6 billion for 1,685 of his fellow Zionist friends and the Budapest Jewish elite a safe passage on a train to neutral Switzerland in exchange for helping to round up 460,000 non-Zionist, common Jews headed for Auschwitz and certain death.[482] The story was kept secret until word slipped out while Kasztner was living in Israel and reportedly a Mossad operative murdered him in 1957 in order to keep another dark page in Zionist history hidden.[483]

For well over a century the Zionist Movement established deep roots in both the British as well as the American Empires through robust infiltration politically, culturally and economically. Zionist control over centralized world banking[484] and the mass media propaganda machine[485] along with Zionist government operatives as permanent fixtures still occupying halls of power in Washington[486] and London[487] (like Dame Oppenheimer-Hodge) represent today's Anglo-American-Zionist Axis-of-Evil, still readily sending naïve, patriotic young Americans and British off to fight and die on foreign soil for Greater Israel Project wars, Big Oil and the ever-Bigger Military Industrial Complex, psychopathically killing over four million innocent Muslims in the process just since 1990.[488]

As a bona fide globalist, Margaret Hodge's position on migration is disingenuous at best:

Migration is a feature of globalization. You can't stop it; so every time a political party says it is going to be tough on immigration, it fails to deliver and loses trust.[489]

Hodge emphatically rationalizes the elite's manufactured migration crisis in Britain and Europe as a mere fact of life, pretending that flooding millions of Muslim migrants from Greater Israel Project wars of her Zionist making is not part of the Axis-of-Evil agenda to destroy the West.[490] It is, and her last statement is a boldface lie and she knows it. While hypocritically accepting open border migration as a "get used to it" NWO reality for the nation she supposedly serves, her own beloved Jewish State as the actual nation she loyally serves has always steadfastly maintained a rigid policy completely refusing to accept ethnic and religious diversity of any kind at and within its borders.

Let's look at the effects of her Anglo-American-Zionist Empire. Jewish usury moneylenders triggered Jesus' temple tantrum and paper credit introduced fractional reserve banking out of thin air,[491] traced back to cabbalist-rooted, anti-Jesus Knights of Templar during the Crusades (see Chapter 4). From that lineage the unholy trinity of Anglo-American-Zionism now holds humanity hostage, drowning in insurmountable debt slavery with an embedded pedophilia blackmail-bribery system controlling compromised puppets to do Empire's dirty bidding.

The crime cabal outrageously extorts $40 billion from American taxpayers alone as military aid supporting the Jewish State's "final solution" - its genocidal policy against Arabs.[492] Both the US and UK governments' carte blanche loyalty to Israel has as much to do with sexual blackmail extortion as embracing Zionism's apartheid ethnic purge of an already decimated Palestinian population.[493] US President Trump's moving the US embassy to Jerusalem was simply the Anglo-American-Zionist cabal setting the stage for its ticking time bomb to Armageddon.[494]

Zionists like Oppenheimer can't face the fact that if Jeremy Corbyn ends up prime minister in favor of a sovereign state of Palestine, Israel may no longer rule the roost as it has for seven straight decades now. That's also why Israeli firsters from North America, Europe and Tel Aviv have had Iran in their crosshairs for nearly just as long. The evil controllers would prefer Armageddon over restructured balance of power in the Middle East where a sovereign Palestine, Iran and Syria emerge vibrantly independent from the death clutches of the Anglo-America-Zionist Empire in freefall hegemonic decline, relegating both Israel and Saudi Arabia to minor regional players. That's the real reason behind all the childish hissy fits, acted out temper tantrums and escalating tensions recently.

Rational, peace-loving citizens around the globe have long seen through this most nightmarishly insane, satanic endgame. But as long as aging British foul-mouthpieces like Oppenheimer-Hodge keep spouting off their own duplicitous hate with their worn-out, weaponized “anti-Semite” PC control card, rehashing Nazi Jewish death camps ad nauseam, calculatedly intent on turning free speech and inconvenient truths into codified hate crimes bent on imprisoning anyone daring to criticize their totalitarian Zionist-Marxist fascist agenda, make no mistake, in actuality they are openly, desperately promoting their long-awaited Luciferian-Illuminati-Fabian inspired pedo-cabal of one world governance.

Today’s Labor Party leader Jeremy Corbyn may be much maligned when it comes to Israel,[495] but when it comes to protecting British care home children from chronic sexual abuse in his own Islington-North London district, sad to say, it’s the children who remain most maligned as his record isn’t much different from Hodge’s. As longtime Islington MP, Jeremy has also apparently failed miserably to help abused children. Way back in 1992 and 1993, the good folks Liz Davies, David Cofie, Eileen Fairweather and articulate victim-survivor Demetrious Panton (among others) all had individual meetings with the House of Commons rising star Corbyn, and all report that to their face, he appeared supportive and sympathetic to their cause, claiming he would inquire further to assist stopping the widespread cancer of child sex abuse rocking his and their community (especially after the Dame seized control over the Islington council in 1982). But all the anti-abuse whistleblowers and advocates who met with Jeremy, to a person were gravely disappointed, maintaining that he never once contacted them again, never mentioning the scandal publicly, nor thanking them for courageously putting their lives on the line presenting and exposing the irrefutable evidence to him and the public. Their unanimous verdict - Corbyn was of no help at all.[496]

Moreover, back in the mid-1980s and 90s, after Tory MP Geoffrey Dickens first accused Westminster-Downing Street VIPs of pedophilia, even drawing specific attention to an alleged child brothel operating at Islington’s Elthorne housing state, Corbyn registered a formal complaint with the House Speaker, angry that without informing Jeremy, Dickens had gone to his constituency, Corbyn territorially called the snooping Dickens “irresponsible” on February 17, 1986.[497] Think how many lives could have been saved from the horror of abuse had Corbyn actually taken urgent measures to help protect children by joining forces with the one brave whistleblowing MP who first brought the Westminster scandal to the public’s attention in 1984 with the infamous dossier that pedophile Sir Leon Brittan lost. But instead MP Jeremy Corbyn accused Dickens in the press of “getting cheap publicity at the expense of innocent children.”[498] Unfortunately, like so many of his colleagues, Corbyn denigrated Geoffrey Dickens, ridiculing him for his “wild antics,” and wrongly dismissing all his truthful accusations as unwarranted fuss, melodrama and “cheap publicity” stunts over nothing.

When asked to comment on the July 2015 Daily Mail story exposing Corbyn’s apparent failure to act on what he’d learned in the early 1990s from all the insiders he’d met face-to-face with, his office released the following statement:

Jeremy Corbyn has a long record of standing up for his constituents. He called for an independent inquiry into child abuse in Islington at the time, and has taken this strong line ever since*.[499]*[Bold for emphasis]

Really? Other than the single one line statement below in reply to Eileen Fairweather’s piece in the Evening Standard in 1992 that broke the horrendous abuse story:

> These allegations are extremely serious and must be properly investigated.[500]

No other words or actions by Corbyn can be found, nor is there any public record of Corbyn’s alleged “inquiry” “at the time.” Too bad he apparently never put any of his words or promises “at the time” when first confronted with the truth into any observable action on behalf of so many of his abused children suffering in his district’s group homes. Only when Corbyn was presented with indisputable evidence in person did he ever respond at all, and then merely paying lip service, never backing up his vowed support with any further actions or acknowledgement of any public crisis. Astute anti-abuse advocate Demetrious Panton poignantly points out:

> I am aware that Mr Corbyn is an active campaigner for the protection of human rights of a range of people, including those who have never been his constituents. I am not aware that he ever deployed his obvious zeal and effort to ensure that the human rights of his constituents who were abused while in the care of the London borough of Islington, were protected.[501]

It then seems a fair and accurate conclusion to draw that political expediency during Jeremy’s early career not to rock the boat won out over his acting on the moral and legal imperative to protect his own constituent children being horribly abused “at the time.”

In 2014 Jeremy Corbyn made the following statement in the House of Commons:

> There have been complaints about Islington children's homes in the past and the council has investigated them.[502]

Corbyn’s latter contention is totally false. Islington council has only pretended to investigate the widespread abuse while overtly and aggressively obstructing justice by losing and destroying evidence at every turn, and either ignored, rejected or suppressed claims by victims, social workers, witnesses and whistleblowers. Any so called internal investigations by the council are nothing but thinly veiled cover-ups. Virtually all the child abusers have been allowed to go free with almost none ever charged for their crimes and brought to justice. And the complicit Jeremy Corbyn knows this.

Another blemish filed under the crowded meme, “oops, I didn’t know,” is the fact that Jeremy Corbyn’s constituency agent was Derek Sawyer, the Hodge successor as Islington council leader presiding over the borough for a total of seven years. Derek Sawyer has been a permanent political heavyweight in the local government, first becoming a Labor party council member when Margaret Hodge assumed her position as council leader in 1982 and taking over for her a decade later in 1992 in the thick of the erupting scandal.[503] With his years leading the council in 1992-94 and again in 1997 to 2002,[504] his lengthy span on the Islington council dates from 1982 all the way to 2006. For a quarter century Derek Sawyer held top positions overseeing Islington police operations and probation services as well as the London magistrate courts.[505] He worked under and with not only Hodge but two other Blairites Jack Straw and Stephen Twigg.

The same year that Hodge resigned and Sawyer took over was also the same year that whistleblowers Liz Davies and David Cofie sat in Corbyn’s office sharing the horrific child abuse scandal with the MP who publicly did nothing to assist endangered and abused children. If there ever was a key witness to the nefarious goings-on in Islington for three decades it would be Derek Sawyer. Yet he too claims he never knew abuse was running rampant in all dozen care homes and defended both his own as well as Margaret Hodge’s record and reputation, insisting they did everything legally proper in protecting children on their watch.[506] That in and of itself is simply not true or the abuse would neither have been so pervasive or long lasting. That kind of double talk renders Sawyer even less credible. But the kicker is his super close association with one of Britain’s most notorious, three-time convicted child beating pedophiles.

Derek Sawyer maintained a 40-year friendship with Derek Slade going back to their college days as well as maintained an enduring business partnership involving four different organizations. Boasting he was the best man at Sawyer’s wedding, for many decades the brutally sadistic serial child abusing headmaster Derek Slade beat and sodomized boys as young as 8 at St. George’s School in Suffolk and numerous others to follow.[507] In 1986 when Slade was arrested for violently assaulting one of his students, Sawyer was the character witness who kept Slade out of jail. Slade’s abuse fit the same familiar pattern as Catholic priests allowed to move from church to church to continue abusing. Slade went on from Suffolk to damage more kids at a school in Sussex, where he was arrested and convicted yet again, somehow managing to avoid prison.

Four days prior to the 1995 Ian White report that Sawyer was forced to commission exposing the Islington abuse, Derek Sawyer and Derek Slade cofounded International British Education Projects (IBEP) together, raising money for building international schools in Swaziland and India.[508] Again, Sawyer was complicit, assisting his business partner to change his name (using a dead kid’s name Slade picked from a graveyard) and as chairman of IBEP, supported Slade in assuming a new identity as director of education of an IBEP school in Swaziland where Slade abused yet more boys in Africa. From 1978 right up to his 2010 conviction and 21-year prison sentence (based solely on abuse crimes committed in Britain from 1978 to 1983), Derek Slade physically and sexually assaulted hundreds of victims on three continents for over 30 years. A lawsuit representing abused boys in India was somehow quashed. Again, through his contacts with prominent established figures like best bud Derek Sawyer, Slade's reign of terror over children entrusted in his care committing over 50 convicted offenses of child sexual abuse, child pornography and child physical assault, all the while supported and seemingly protected by Sawyer and friends.

Roger Cook's half-hour BBC documentary entitled "An Abuse of Trust" succinctly chronicles Derek Slade's marathon crime spree,[509] reminiscent of such despicable creeps as Jimmy Savile and Cyril Smith. Though predictably, Jeremy Corbyn's onetime constituency agent Derek Sawyer claims he never knew his friend and partner was a habitual child sex fiend, Sawyer remains neck deep in complicity in both Margaret Hodge's gross mishandling and abuse cover-up as well as enabling a monster on the loose to ruin so many lives for so long. In March 2016, after serving the first half dozen of his 21 year sentence, Derek Slade died at age 66.[510] Sawyer's feeble excuse "I never knew" is a stretch for all but the brain dead.

Though no one can accuse either Derek Sawyer or Jeremy Corbyn of child abuse per se, both their poor judgment and enabling of sex crimes through inaction certainly can and should be called into question. The potential future prime minister of the United Kingdom has seemingly been given a free pass by the press on his culpability in Britain's child sexual abuse epidemic, at its worst in his own backyard. No one in government except MP John Mann has directly confronted Corbyn on his dereliction of duty to protect his child constituents.[511] And what appears most troubling is a statement made in the House of Commons by Corbyn to then Home Secretary May on November 3, 2014:

Finally in my own borough of Islington there have been complaints about Islington children's homes in the past and the council has investigated them.[512]

If he is claiming Islington council ever actually investigated its own abuse, he's dead wrong. The council sat on and withheld the 1995 White report conducted by an outsider for 20 years before releasing a heavily redacted version in 2014.[513] And the White report lambasted Islington council for its abject failure to protect its children. At no time has Islington council on its own effort ever produced anything but a whitewash in the countless go rounds it calls investigations. MP Mann wrote an open letter to his Labor leader colleague:

Your carefully worded excusing of Islington Council in the House of Commons equally demonstrates why it is inappropriate for you to attempt to lead the Labour Party at the critical time of the Goddard Enquiry [IICSA], as child abuse is the issue that will haunt this Parliament.[514]

Though Mann was seemingly the only odd man out faulting Corbyn on his shoddy child abuse record, the Labor Party leader has managed to retain his position for over three years now despite formidable challenges and opposition, led by Hodge blasting him for his so called "anti-Semitism" because he insists on standing up for the rights of the Palestinians.

At this point as an anti-abuse child advocate, here's what I would say to Mr. Corbyn as a means of redemption for his failing children in the past.

As the UK Labor Party leader, it's never too late to make up for past mistakes by uniting with your fellow party peer Mr. Watson to finally do something real about your country's most shameful and disgraceful blight neglecting and damaging your own children, no longer allowing your powerful degenerate peers to forever live above the law without consequence. For that matter, I implore you to use your position and considerable power and influence to unite the world in leading humanity to finally begin protecting the earth’s children as our most precious resource from the godless evildoers who’ve been in control, as no more worthy a human rights cause exists than saving our most innocent, defenseless and vulnerable human population.

If you champion this most worthy cause, you will go far in restoring integrity to the world of politics and faith to millions of skeptical, wary citizens proving that there still does exist at least one public servant and leader who actually does care about the people he’s taken sworn oaths to represent and protect. Fighting for children to bring justice against the VIP criminals would generate such a sweeping, massive groundswell of populist appeal and support that it could easily carry you to becoming the next British prime minister. And perhaps with other major world leaders like Vladimir Putin and Donald Trump, who have both publicly recognized the global epidemic scourge of pedophilia for what it is, together you three could take the lead in making this your urgent priority, ultimately creating a far safer world for our children, humanity and our collective future.

Before closing this long winding road of a chapter, it’s important to point out that former Prime Minister Tony Blair worked for the MI5 prior to becoming Labor Party leader.[515] Have you wondered why virtually all the usual Labor suspects throughout this chapter at an early age started out as left leaning communists and then underwent a fundamental ideological paradigm shift as they ascended the political cesspit ladder carrying out marching orders of the totalitarian Luciferian elite? In Blair’s case, he was employed as an MI5 spy to infiltrate radical circles as an informer for British intelligence. David Shayler, ex-MI5 counterterrorism officer, has disclosed that during his entire political career Blair was a controlled puppet strings attached to both MI5 and Mossad as his political handlers. That explains his meteoric rise from obscure Labor MP to a decade later party leader and three more years to prime minister. He was the elite's choice as their infiltrating order following mole from the get-go, no different from the Bushes, Clintons and Obama. Again, in synch with FDR's slip of the pen admission that leaders are never actually elected by the people but are simply chosen oftentimes at a young age by the planetary controllers using intelligence services as their chosen ones' primary handlers and protectors.

Finally, the hidden hand of MI5 and MI6 left fingerprints all over Scotland's 1996 Dunblane Massacre murdering 19 schoolchildren and teacher in cold blood by a notorious pedophile Hamilton who ran a VIP pedo-ring involving Lord George Robertson. The sticky loose ends prompting the trigger-happy D-notice kid to immediately slap a press blackout for the next 100 years will be given its full due attention in Chapter 25 covering Scotland's pedophilia cover-ups. The intel services and Blair's subversive role in the Madeleine McCann disappearance and the international pedo-network will be detailed in Chapter 26.

The next Chapter 24 addresses the heart of the government pedophilia epidemic unveiling the crimes in Westminster and Richmond committed at the favorite VIP haunts - the Elm Guest House and Dolphin Square.

Throughout his long public career Jimmy Savile curried favor with Britain’s most powerful elite, from prime ministers to the royal family. As a social climbing Mensa member,[1] he mastered the psychopathic game of ingratiation, invited to spend 11 consecutive New Year’s holidays in a row with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at the British PM residence Chequers,[2] just three miles from one of his favorite day or late night pedo-hunting grounds, the Stoke-Mandeville Hospital in Buckinghamshire where he raised near half (£20)[3] of his total £45 million for charity[4] in exchange for being able to freely sexually abuse over five dozen victims and screw dead corpses at Britain’s National Spinal Injury Center alone.[5]

One year the Chequers court jester showed up dressed head to toe in Christmas decorations with a large silver bell around his neck. Lady Thatcher turned to her rather uptight foreign secretary and proclaimed:

Jimmy can ring my bell any time.[6]

Word has it that Savile went through every room at the prime minister’s country estate that year writing on notepads his phone number with instruction that in case of emergency, the PM should ring his bell. Apparently such were the never a dull moment frivolities exchanged between these two intimates. Sir Jimmy fondly reminisced about his Christmases past with his Dame Maggie in an Esquire interview:

I knew the real woman and the real woman was something else. The times I spent up there [Chequers] - Denis, me and her, shoes off in front of the fire.[7]

Early on in her ménage-e’ tau, I mean 3-term premiership, a week after his last luncheon date with the Iron Lady in February 1981, a handwritten letter from Jimmy to Maggie says it all. His love note’s nauseating lip-lock was unabashedly dripping off the page:

I waited a week before writing to thank you for my lunch invitation because I had such a superb time I didn't want to be too effusive. My girl patients pretended to be madly jealous and wanted to know what you wore and what you ate. All the paralysed lads called me ‘Sir James’ all week. They all love you. Me too!! Jimmy Savile OBE xxx O.B.E.[8]

“Sir James” and Lady T would have to wait six more tries and almost a decade later before his knighthood was granted as Savile’s creepy, uncouth nature had her honor committee staff protectively turning down her first five requests, deferring until she was safely out of office. This rather revealing love note was released in late December 2012 after being sealed for 30 years.

Savile closed his gushing confession sharing that all his patients love her, punctuated with “me too” next to his signature and attached OBE credential, the queen bestowed honor finagled back in 1972 through fellow pedophile-murderer the then Prime Minister Edward Heath.[9] Jimmy Savile’s cloying strategy always seemed to work like a charm on Thatcher, but less so on her staff. Per his request, Thatcher donated a half million pounds ($800,000 USD) on behalf of British taxpayers to his Stoke-Mandeville Hospital’s new spinal unit. Her “generous” contribution to his cause, her determination to doggedly nominate him a half dozen times for knighthood and her re-inviting him back to Chequers on countless more occasions solidified their mutual love affair, no doubt motivated by politics than sex. But it shows much weight and power he had over her.

The bulk of the Savile-Thatcher correspondence was withheld, rejecting Freedom of Information Act requests, fueling speculation over what dirty deeds must have transpired between them to cause it to be branded off limits to the public three decades later.[10] But Jimmy and Maggie's crime cabal "fixed it" for the public not to know, having to wait until 2022 before another heavily redacted bundle gets released to the lowly plebeians.

Sir Jimmy's love for Dame Margaret (yep, queenie anointed her with an Order of Merit badge upon Lady Thatcher's resignation in December 1990[11]) never went unrequited. As leader of the opposition party from 1975-1979, Maggie made a guest appearance on his Jim'll Fix It show broadcast on New Year's Day 1977 with Savile promising on the air to fix her election two years prior[12] to her becoming Britain's first female prime minister (1979 to 1990) in exchange for him being her favorite holiday guest the next near dozen years.[13] Her loving tribute to him was expressed on a Savile episode of This Is Your Life:

So many Great Britons have had a touch of eccentricity about them and Jimmy is truly a Great Briton. Miner, wrestler, dance hall manager, disc jockey, hospital porter, fundraiser, performer of good works, Officer of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire and Knight of the Realm, Jimmy, I and millions more salute you. God bless and thank you.[14]

Thatcher selectively omitted his three biggest pastime passions that for years remained an open secret – serial necrophiliac, serial child rapist and most likely serial killer.

And it wasn't just Thatcher who was enamored with Sir Jimmy, every prime minister since has faithfully paid homage to Britain's "national treasure," his nauseating title repeatedly bandied about both before and after his October 2011 death. From John Major[15] to Gordon Brown,[16] Tony Blair[17] [18]and David Cameron,[19] every prime minister after Thatcher also unswervingly kissed his ass. Perhaps that has everything to do with all of them being known pedophiles themselves or minimally known pedophile enablers.[20] It was at PM John Major's invitation that Sir Jimmy spent the afternoon entertaining the G7 wives in 1991 while husbands carved up the geopolitical chessboard for more rape and pillage plunder.[21]

Savile also spent time with Tony Blair at Chequers and made public appearances together.[22] While war criminal dad Tony joined the Bush-Cheney Zionist gang lying to illegally invade and kill thousands of innocent Iraqi civilians, and mom Cherie was busy as president of Barnardos,[23] a large children's anti-child abuse charity with a dubious reputation for child abuse[24] (whose CEO urges more babies be taken away from parents[25]) that operated Duncroft School,[26] Savile's "pedo-sweetshop" for underage girls,[27] their own 16-year old daughter Kathryn in the spring of 2004 tried snuffing herself.[28] Of course just like all his D-notices to suppress the outing of his pedo-filled government[29] or his college cottage days as crossdressing Miranda picking up little boys in public toilets,[30] a news blackout ensured that the people never learned their prime minister's teenage daughter was attempting suicide. What other skeletons does the Blair family hide in their closet besides being best friends with pedophiles (i.e., entertainers Sir "Kitty"[31] and Sir Jimmy aside from Blair's own inside political pedo-pal circles)?

During the 9/11 era the child pimping undercover agent Savile dined with Admiral Sir Michael Boyce, the UK Chief of Defense Staff.[32] Sir Jimmy's long association with the military began in 1966 when the most elite branch of service - the British Royal Marines - bestowed upon him their Green Beret honor, granted only to royals Prince Philip and Prince Charles.[33] The degenerate DJ is said to have been buried clutching his coveted Green Beret cap.

So let’s do a recap, Sir Jimmy Savile was more than chummy with elitist leaders from the military, media, entertainment, royalty, secret intelligence, religion, government, secret societies and the mob, covering every major player operating the globalized pedophilia network. That’s rather telling.

Dame Margaret and Sir Jimmy’s “love affair” was most definitely a royal match made in Lucifer’s Hell. Hidden away in a page 23 opinion piece of the Sunday Times, journalist Janice Turner incisively summed up the essence of their true relationship, coalescing around his Stoke Mandeville Hospital:

> But Stoke Mandeville is the most complex story. It is, of course, still about sexual abuse: the 60 reported victims, almost half of them children, the horror put in cool officialese that here his fondness for groping patients beneath bedclothes probably evaded detection ‘as paralysed individuals would not have felt anything below . . . their spinal lesion.’ But this is also about how politics and money gave him absolute power. Savile, the King. And it was Margaret Thatcher who crowned him*.*[34] (Emboldened for emphasis)

Thatcher’s Conservative Party in the early 1980s was looking for ways to drastically cut social services and healthcare expenditures from the national budget and using Jimmy Savile’s “maverick” celebrity status to streamline privatization for funding National Health Services (NHS) was her party’s preferred choice in a political marriage of self-serving convenience.[35] Given carte blanche keys to the Kingdom’s NHS institutions, Sir Jimmy was kept happy because he wielded ultimate power and freedom to do his predator thing while conjointly serving the queen's Commonwealth supplying sexual blackmail bait to British politicians and foreign dignitaries, while heartlessly and savagely destroying thousands of defenseless mentally and physically debilitated young lives in the process.

In return for Savile's services, PM Thatcher, her health minister Kenneth Clarke, assistant health minister Edwina Currie and their minions in September 1988 pressured Broadmoor civil servants at the nation's top security penal psychiatric institution to accept the BBC entertainer - like it or not - to head their hospital's taskforce after the Department of Health suspended Broadmoor trustees following a series of strikes leaving the Thatcher government firmly in control.[36]

As a Broadmoor volunteer since the 1970s holding the title honorary entertainment officer, gradually the DJ assumed a higher profile and by the late 80s was anointed head honcho by Thatcher and her surrogates. That in and of itself is beyond ludicrous, strongly suggesting that he was granted a political favor in exchange for helping her slash her health and social services budget as well as for pimping kids to Lady T's pedophiles infiltrating her government.

In 1987 a career civil servant that ran the mental health division of the Department of Health and Social Services, the soon to be two time arrested but never charged accused pedophile Brian McGinnis,[37] was instrumental in pushing for Savile's Broadmoor takeover.[38] McGinnis was later hired as a high powered disabilities specialist despite allegedly sexually abusing disabled children as seemingly another protected predatory sentinel guarding the elite's pedo-clubhouse.

Then years later when Savile was finally exposed, in chorus with so many complicit others, a defensive Edwina Currie said she always thought Sir Jimmy was "totally evil."[39] If that’s true, then why in the fuck did she go on public record in September 1988, fully complicit in Savile’s criminality, and select an individual she was convinced was “totally evil,” who neither held proper qualifications nor the moral character entrusted to seize control over the nation’s top security asylum housing Britain’s most violently insane criminals? What kind of moronic decision maker does that? But then immersed in a four year mutually adulterous affair with the then future PM John Major,[40] perhaps Edwina’s “moralist” outrage and judgment was already seriously compromised, contaminated and impaired. Or more likely her immediate supervisor, UK’s health secretary Kenneth Clarke was morally impaired, a few years later accused himself of sexually assaulting a teenage child actor (covered in Chapter 20). Or for that matter, even Maggie the pedo-lover herself insisted that a totally unfit, “totally evil” yet thoroughly vetted and widely known pedophile should lead the Broadmoor taskforce.

Incidentally, Edwina’s boss Kenneth Clarke under Thatcher was soon promoted by Edwina’s lover John Major to the powerful position as UK’s home secretary in 1992-93. And so like the Home Secretary Brittan a decade earlier, the not-so-great Britain had another gatekeeper fox guarding the pedo-henhouse, failing to act on knowledge that both MP Sir Cyril Smith and Lord Greville Janner were also sexually abusing children, choosing not to rock the boat, Clarke swiftly swept it under the rug.[41] And it was while working his next job as Chancellor in 1994 that Clarke sexually assaulted former child actor Ben Fellows when he was 19.[42] For making his accusation public as a journalist,[43] Ben was subsequently charged with perverting justice but cleared in court,[44] which in effect meant his accusation against Clarke could not be disproven, i.e., was true. But as always, when big wigs get caught committing crimes, they never get charged or serve time.

After reviewing her diary in October 2012, in the heat of the post-Savile uproar, Edwina Currie declared:

> … When you look back, it does suggest he [Savile] was prepared to use blackmail to ensure people did what he wanted.[45]

Aided by hindsight, Currie's carefully chosen words are aimed at passing the buck in order to minimize her own criminal culpability. Her statement above reveals that as UK's pedo-pimp commander-in-chief, King Savile's M.O. was throwing his weight around using blackmail threats right and left to subdue, neutralize and silence perceived threats in order to ruthlessly grab whatever and literally whomever he wanted. For example, to silence his Broadmoor critics, he accused his adversaries of collecting undeserved overtime paychecks and allowing family members not employed at Broadmoor to sublet their housing.[46]

Savile possessed the classic psychopath's instinctive knowhow for ferreting out others' weaknesses and liabilities. As Thatcher and the royal family's designated child procuring kingpin, Savile enjoyed a long successful history of aggressive intimidation and threat of blackmail. So arrogantly full of himself and his unbridled, unchecked power, by the late 1970s when Thatcher assumed Downing Street residency, Savile had become the public face of charity while the undercover saint was covertly running Britain's sexual blackmail operations. Pedo-loonies had not only officially taken over the asylum, but the nation's equally insanely pathological government as well. Throughout the Thatcher years sexual blackmail and Zionism reigned supreme.[47]

The bottom line, for decades as UK's pimping child procurer working "deep-cover" with British intelligence services and police, setting up child pipelines across the nation under the cover of charity with care home operators, social services and city councils, Sir Jimmy possessed the dirty lowdown on every top government VIP pervert in both Thatcher's top-heavy pedo-cabinet as well as all the compromised and controlled Parliament members from all three major political parties. He was the macro-to-micro go-between national pedo-operative that made things happen, or as he loved bragging:

The thing about me is I get things done and I work undercover.[48]

Savile's guaranteed protection was fully secured because, under potential threat of mutual blackmail, the VIP child raping club goes to great lengths to protect its own. Additionally, as the loose cannon with loose lips capable of sinking some very powerful ships, Sir Jimmy virtually always got what he wanted. After all, through his blackmail services, the Luciferian Illuminati bloodline families were able to freely implement their Zionist-Anglo-American Axis-of-Evil agenda, making huge strides pushing towards absolute one world government control, so that all their compromised and controlled puppet-stringed public servants simply do whatever they're told in order to keep their high-end jobs safely enjoying their criminal, above-the-law, opulent lifestyles. If for whatever reason they don't, they know they or their careers will die sudden deaths like so many hapless BBC employees covered in the last chapter.

It wasn't just Savile currying favor with Thatcher and her Establishment pedophiles. The predator pecking order food chain has them all beholding to the British bloodline royal family. The Daily Record won on appeal its Freedom of Information Act request to reverse blocking the government's overt attempt to redact all mention of Savile and the royal family on the same official documents.[49] Despite Britain's waning freedom of the press and public right to know, in 2013 while it still had a little left, it was learned that via a memo from a Thatcher aide to the PM dated March 1980 that Prince Charles had already agreed to sign on as the Patron of the Appeal backing Sir Jimmy's Stoke-Mandeville charity campaign, the same one Thatcher got behind. Savile's public and private liaisons with the royals go back to the late 1960s and early 70s when Prince Charles' childhood mentor and fellow pedophile Admiral of the Fleet Lord Mountbatten first introduced the BBC DJ to Prince Philip and Queen Elizabeth.[50] The Windsors' unholy alliance and shared intimacies with Sir Jimmy, their nationally treasured derelict whose buffoonery made even the stoic royals appear more human and less coldblooded and scaly, their mutual romance will be addressed in Chapter 24.

At London's private highbrow Athenaeum Club in 1985, three years prior to heading the Broadmoor taskforce, Jimmy Savile and health minister Currie's assistant (and McGinnis' successor in 1988) - Cliff Graham, met with Alan Franey, the then NHS administrator at Leeds General Infirmary (1975-1985),[51] where volunteer porter Savile remained at liberty for decades defiling underage girls, boys and dead corpses alike. At the posh Athenaeum where no doubt many shady VIP deals get hatched, Godfather Savile and sidekick Graham made Franey an offer he couldn't refuse, joining King Savile's Broadmoor and in short order leap-frogging him to "top dog" as Broadmoor's general manager. Just as Savile was totally unqualified to run Broadmoor, so was Franey who had no experience in security, the criminal justice nor mental health systems.[52]

With another cherry picked fox helping to guard Sir Jimmy's united pedo-kingdom, Savile was bringing Franey along at Broadmoor knowing he'd be beholding to him. Savile shrewdly figured wherever he went, it always helps to install an indebted subservient figurehead puppet implicitly vowing to protect and obey the hand that feeds him.

No sooner was Franey made a Broadmoor executive, in 1986 just two years before Thatcher's pedo-friendly ministers appointed Savile taskforce commander, a Broadmoor nurse was caught in a pedophile ring operating at the hospital and arrested for photographing pornographic images of children as young as 3 and 5 years of age on the high security premises…[53] yet one more criminal Savile link never investigated. A longtime Broadmoor nurse who aptly described Savile as the lunatic taking over the asylum, also maintains that all the line staff knew the madman in charge was a pedophile and observed how as a pedo-magnet, he had dozens of fellow pedophiles gravitating to him both from within and out of the insane asylum.[54] You'd best believe the king of all pedophiles had to be in deep with any pedo-nurse involved in a child porn business on the grounds where Sir Jimmy not only ruled the roost but also lived parttime.

So knowing a pedophile ring had recently been exposed at Broadmoor where insiders knew the most famous pedophile was a fixture, what does the pedo-infested Thatcher government do? It selects British history's biggest pedophile ever to become its next head honcho at its highest security criminal psych institution in the country. Makes sense only if with the most brazen impunity, the already existing VIP pedophilia network is intent on expanding its massive operations, signed off by royalty, the prime minister and British intel services.

In 1996 senior NHS executive Ray Rowden who was hired to oversee England's three top security hospitals claimed Franey bragged to him that back in the 1980s Franey drove Savile around Leeds to the DJ's old nightclub stomping grounds.[55] Franey and Savile allegedly had met back in Leeds while running marathons together. Rowden added that when he first came to inspect Broadmoor, he confronted

Franey over Savile's free, unlimited access anywhere inside the asylum, including the women's section where for prurient kicks, Savile brought along his fellow BBC pedophile pal Rolf Harris for a cheap thrill tour during their bedtime strip down inspection.[56] Of course Franey insisted he never went to a nightclub in his entire life and that said conversation with Rowden never happened. Of course it also goes without saying that Franey claimed he had no clue his good old buddy since the 80s who "fixed" him his job happened to be Britain's worst serial pedophile preying for decades off Alan Franey's patients at both major medical institutions he ran as senior administrator for over two decades.[57] Franey "ran" Broadmoor until resigning in 1997 amidst a police investigation over yet another possible child pornography ring allegedly operating inside the walls of Jimmy Savile's high security institution.[58]

Returning to the Athenaeum Club, how did lecherous crude dude Savile ever gain membership at such an exclusive upper crust Establishment organization? He was nominated by the venerable former Archbishop of Westminster, Cardinal Basil Hume, who also introduced Savile in 1982 to Pope John Paul II to set the stage for Sir Jimmy's 1990 papal knighthood.[59] Wouldn't you know it, UK's top pedo-enabling Church of England and Catholic leaders were also in tight with Savile and Prince Charles - particularly Bishop Peter Ball who also turned out to be a serial pedophile.[60] Again, more on the royals' pedo-love affair in Chapter 24. With the infamous BBC court jester's incredible knack for social networking leading straight to the most powerful people in the world, his intimate ties to the pope, the queen, future king and every single prime minister for over a half century based on their mutual shared pedophilic self-interest, more than guaranteed Savile's untouchable lifetime free bird status.

And due to the entertainer’s fundraising capabilities, Savile was granted unlimited authority and access at virtually any NHS institution, like Leeds General Infirmary and Stoke-Mandeville National Spinal Injury Center where he’d been a longtime volunteer at both facilities. After a roof cave-in, Stoke-Mandeville selected Jimmy as prime architect spearheading both the design and construction of the new spinal unit. Like Broadmoor, Stoke-Mandeville also provided a home away from home to the lecherous kiddie fondling midnight night rambler to fully accommodate his insatiable predator needs. After all, he’d been granted carte blanche keys to the entire British pedo-Kingdom.

According to one child victim’s claim, Sir Jimmy’s personal assistant for 32 years, Janet Cope actually walked in on Savile while he was abusing her.[61] But vehemently denying she ever knew of her boss’s predatory sex habits, Janet Cope was apparently also too afraid to say anything, knowing up close and personal her boss’s vindictive, petty and sheer cutthroat power:

Jimmy was untouchable… He controlled everything. He controlled me. Everybody was - I'm going to use the word frightened - of him.[62]

According to Janet, after 32 years of loyal service to the psychopathic rapist, he selfishly used her up too, rewarding her loyalty and valuable service by firing her on the spot with no discernable explanation. But then without a conscience, that’s what psychopaths do.

As the powerful devil incarnate was granted increasing access, power and control over Britain’s NHS institutions, the mutually self-serving Savile-Thatcher tradeoff helped facilitate Iron Lady’s diversion of millions of taxpayer pounds away from providing much needed social services to financing a jingoistic war against Argentina. Attempting to reclaim imperialistic British Empire status, violently holding onto stolen South American islands,[63] the prime minister seized the moment using a British submarine to sink an Argentine ship killing all 323 sailors aboard with the false excuse that it endangered British forces. Bottom line, her security advisor Lord Victor Rothschild possessed substantial investments in Falklands' vast mineral deposits that he didn't want shared with Argentina.[64] The subservient, order following "Iron Lady" simply complied with his greedily selfish, coldblooded demand offering her a golden opportunity to bolster her tough woman persona and vainly resurrect lost empire glory. It was followed a year later with US Empire's turn to show off its saber rattling might - Reagan's bogus Grenada "invasion" in October 1983 against a few Cuban foot soldiers running loose on the island[65] where a few American med students who couldn't get into stateside medical schools were studying.[66]

These rah-rah military campaigns were analogous to the two neighborhood bullies boldly venturing outside their home turf in direct competition to see who was the biggest and baddest global oppressor. The US Empire couldn't pass up the chance to test out its emerging unipolar hegemony proving it was supreme world policemen and serial nation killer, doing one better than old has-been British Empire in their parasitic neocolonial juvenile jerkoff contest, all the while dutifully working as partners-in-crime as the Anglo-American-Zionist triumvirate, predatorily carving up the entire globe for the carnivorous, pedovore-loving elite's ravenous consumption.

Embracing her friendship with despotic bloodthirsty Chilean dictator General Pinochet who provided intelligence to Britain against Argentina during her Falkland War, then years later once indicted in 1999 for war crimes, Thatcher protected him while on house arrest in London. Taking tea with him long after out of office, Thatcher was still the best of friends with Pinochet, ever supportive and grateful for the mass murderer’s assistance waging war against his old rival Argentina.[67] Overnight Iron Lady cashed in, winning another war for British Empire bravado while concurrently jumpstarting UK’s war machine industry at the expense of the British people, waging class warfare against them to drastically cut their vital health and social services,[68] in part rescued by the likes of Sir Jimmy’s public fundraising campaigns – in effect, a Luciferian win-win for the earth’s baby raping killers.

While stiff upper lip Thatcher was eagerly cutting off free milk and school lunch programs for poor needy British kids, earning the label “Thatcher the milk snatcher,”[69] the unholy Maggie-Jimmy partnership-in-crime was cemented by her regime that oozed blackmailed pedo-slime. The PM Dame and Sir Jimmy’s convenient love affair on steroids bolstered Britain’s sexual blackmail apparatchik, controlling government policymakers that Savile busily pumped kids to, ensuring that the international crime cabal debaucherously fed its own growing satanic pedophilic network.

After all, Margaret Thatcher’s government was overloaded with pedophiles who couldn’t keep their filthy hands off little boys, comprising upwards of nearly a third of her cabinet.[70] Lady T and Savile mutually benefited expanding Britain’s sexual blackmail pedo-operation already long in place. Working “deep cover” for MI5, Savile the child pimp developed care home victim supply lines to an increasing number of her ministers and MPs just as he did a decade earlier under the fellow conservative pedophilic Heath government. As part of their disgustingly perverse “I’ll scratch your back if you scratch mine” collusion, beginning in 1983 virtually every year Thatcher would feverishly and faithfully promote Savile for knighthood, the same year her fellow Tory MP Geoffrey Dickens provided a pedophile dossier to Thatcher’s Home Office Secretary Sir Leon Brittan listing pedos in her regime.[71] More on that caper later.

Per Thatcher’s senior advisor, Savile’s “strange and complex private life” posed a serious obstacle to knighthood. Her first five requests were repeatedly rejected by the honors committee chairman due to fear that the uncouth eccentric could bring dishonor to the British Commonwealth’s highest royal tradition.[72] In the AIDS crisis of the eighties, fear of his self-confessed “promiscuity” tainted Iron Lady’s perennial bid for granting him the coveted accolade. But Thatcher’s persistence along with Savile’s nonstop ass kissing eventually paid off as Queen Elizabeth crowned Pimp King Savile his knighthood in 1990, safely waiting a month after Lady Thatcher left office.

Margaret Thatcher’s 11 years at the British helm was a win-win for the Anglo-American Empire as the unholy Reagan/Bush-UK alliance and Apartheid South Africa (her calling Nelson Mandela a terrorist[73]) were all part of the same diabolical cabal. With the universal principle of “like attracts like” operating, fresh out of office Dame Maggie was also soon honored for her nefarious services rendered with both America and South Africa lavishing her with their highest achievement awards. In 1991 crime family overlord pedo Prez George HW Bush bestowed the Presidential Medal of Freedom honor on to Dame Maggie,[74] followed just two months later by South Africa’s racist President de Klerk’s Grand Cross of the Order of Hope.[75] The demonic pedo-love affair continued two months later when the queen stepped in to honor Lady T as Dame of the Order of St. John, an affiliate of the Knights of Malta,[76] joining her Malta Knight Sir Jimmy whose Order is pro merito Melitensi of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta.[77] Secret societies, knighthood and intelligence services are all guiltily synonymous with the global pedophilia network showing up repeatedly as the same critical players in virtually every pedo-scandal in the world.

Keep in mind that while Thatcher’s pedophile-saturated government was embroiled in the Westminster scandal, with British VIP vultures feasting on freshly supplied pedo-pipelines compliments of Savile, MI5 and their procuring killer gangs abusing UK’s expendable, most vulnerable population – children trapped in group “care” homes, at the exact same time America’s own Boys Town orphanage pipeline funneled in boys for Reagan-Bush’s White House midnight tours in the Franklin scandal (see Chapter 13), also flourishing as part of the same interconnected Luciferian cabal network. While constantly touting “family values,” child rapists Reagan and Bush and pedo-lover Lady T were busily overseeing massive globalized pedophilia trafficking operations. If you don’t believe she was part of it, a brief gander at her closest cabinet ministers and advisors speaks volumes.

Definitive evidence has emerged that the Iron Lady knew that her own Parliamentary Private Secretary Sir Peter Morrison, her own Home Secretary from 1983 to 1985 Sir Leon Brittan, her own Tory Party diplomat and former MI6 deputy director Sir Peter Hayman, leading Liberal Party MP Sir Cyril Smith as well as Northern Ireland Minister Sir William van Staubenzee were all knighted pedophiles of the royal pedo-order, not to mention her intel operative-goodwill ambassador Sir Jimmy.[78] Archive records show handwritten notes written by Mrs. Thatcher insisting that known PIE member Peter Hayman should not be publicly outed.[79] In addition to his little boy diddling, multiple accused pedophile then 28-year old Sir Leon Brittan allegedly raped a 19-year old girl while on a 1967 blind date, questioned under caution by police in July 2014 about a plethora of child rape allegations.[80] Sir Leon was also reportedly arrested by customs officials for attempting to smuggle child pornographic images in a suitcase but the elite’s “hidden hand” ensured that story was suppressed as well.[81] Recall that Mr. Brittan was also a VIP name on Mary Moss's infamous list at the rent boy brothel the Elm Guest House. Additionally from the Daily Star in October 2012:

> Police sources in the minister's home region said there are other unsubstantiated allegations that he was once found trying to abuse the son of a friend.[82]

Time and time again this pedo-cat was free to live out all nine of his lecherous lives. Though outed by multiple accusers in multiple settings, brought in for questioning under caution in July 2014[83] and in March 2015 his homes were raided six weeks after his death,[84] Lord Brittan was never once arrested, prosecuted nor ever punished for his alleged series of sordid crimes. Though unnamed in the above quote from the 2012 Daily Star article, subsequent substantial documented evidence clearly indicates that the Tory minister referred to in both the Star and a February 2013 Mirror piece[85] was Thatcher's Home Secretary Sir Leon Brittan.

Under police surveillance, in 1986 Brittan and a number of other VIPs were photographed attending Elm Guest House orgies and abusing rent boys dropped off by the notorious child raping and murdering Sidney Cooke gang.[86] But since Brittan's office was in charge of MI5 and both his office and MI5 centrally control all UK police investigations, the serial child predator had nothing to fear, given ultimate control over the Great (Pedophilia) Kingdom additionally as the lost dossiers gatekeeper as well. This Lithuanian Jew was granted unlimited power as the kingpin fox guarding his own filthy pedo-house of ill-repute.

Per a police detective that worked on the Elm Guest House case, others frequenting the VIP brothel shindigs included the other untouchable "deep cover" procurer himself Sir Jimmy Savile and the other prolific serial child rapist kingpin that Thatcher also knew about - MP Sir Cyril Smith.[87] Also recall from Chapter 20 that for years co-owner of the Elm Guest House Haroon Kasir had boasted that Sir Jimmy was his best friend.[88] At least 16 VIP politicians, an entertainer (aka "Kitty"), Sir Peter Morrison, a high court judge, a high ranking policemen, an MI5 officer and royal art collector, double agent spy and British traitor Sir Anthony Blunt were all identified as avid partakers in this child sex ring bonanza where all the partying pervs knew each other well, knowing also that the bulk of their victims were supplied by Savile's procuring gang of brutal murderers led by Sidney Cooke.[89]

Speaking of murder, files that the police had lied about, claiming they were destroyed, suddenly resurfaced in 2017 to indicate that the other Elm Guest House owner, Haroon's 47-year old wife Carole Kasir, may well have been murdered in 1990 to keep the dossiers she'd collected on VIP rapists hidden from the public.[90] The so called insulin overdose explanation from her original inquest failed to examine the needles found next to her in bed. Standard toxicology tests were never performed on her body, her longtime GP believes she did not commit suicide and the pathologist maintains that she "did not die from natural causes." North West Leicestershire MP Andrew Brigden and others are calling for a fresh new inquest into Carole's suspected murder cover-up.

Child abuse advocates are also demanding a new investigation into evidence that young Irish boys from Kincora Boys Home were trafficked in as victims at both the Elm Guest House and Dolphin Square orgies as well as to cities in Europe,[91] confirming a wider international pedophilia network that also corroborates claims that Savile pimped care home kids nationwide from England to Northern Ireland to Wales and beyond. Current PM Theresa May's farcical "independent national inquiry" refuses to even look at Northern Ireland's Kincora scandal, much less the UK pedo-network connections to global child trafficking.

[92] She and the elite she represents at the world's pedophilia epicenter have too much scum to hide, like the royal family's involvement at Kincora Boys Home scandal in both Prince Charles' boyhood mentor Lord Mountbatten[93] and Sir Anthony Blunt.[94]

This rabbit hole goes deeper as the Elm Guest House scandal also has yet more links to the international pedophilia network. Abuse victims claim that foreign VIP dignitaries were brought in from Belgium and other places in Europe, landing at Royal Air Force Northolt just outside London to violate the trafficked in British rent boys.[95] This clearly implicates the British Royal Air Force as an accomplice to VIP high crimes as part of the major pedophilia operation run by the power-broking European pedo- Establishment.

On top of all his, the highly frustrated law enforcement insider maintains that his investigative team was about to arrest all the VIP sickos involved in the Elm House scandal when the day prior to the scheduled roundup, "superiors" ordered their police operation disbanded immediately,[96] an overly familiar and consistent outcome whenever members of the pedophilic elite get caught red-handed. The detective said the original whistleblowing victim vanished right after reporting the abuse to the police, an equally common fate amongst those young people courageous enough to immediately reveal VIP crimes committed against them to the authorities.[97] Powerful child rapists never fail to go free while their victims either disappear, commit suicide or suffer the lifelong effects from child abuse, especially when neither given a voice nor a shred of justice. So many precious, innocent lives lost and ruined by so many evildoers hiding behind fame, wealth and power held up on a false god pedestal clearly is Lucifer's way.

So the Elm Guest House police probe discovered links to 10 Downing Street, Parliament and even Buckingham Palace.

For ten straight days in October 1982, even all the mainstream newspapers had a flurried field day - the Daily Express, The Times, The Guardian and The Sun - without naming names busily running story after story reporting the Savile-government connected VIP pedo-scandal.[98] But soon enough it all came to an abrupt, squelching halt. After fellow pedo Attorney General Sir Michael Havers threatened a libel suit against the press protecting his own criminal ilk, the story died a week and a half later after just scratching the surface, exposing the VIP child raping network involving the most powerful figures in the British government. But the pedo-genie can never be put back in his bottle no matter the ironclad efforts sought by sickos in charge to suppress the ugly truth of the horrific crimes committed by the powerful pedo-cabal establishment. The anguished police officer working the investigation stated:

> It wasn't that we ran out of leads but it reached a point where a warning to stop came. It was a case of 'get rid of everything, never say a word to anyone.' It was made very clear to me that to continue asking questions would jeopardise my career.[99]

After his police operation was shot down, the former detective checked the file containing all the diligent work collecting the incriminating photos and carefully documented evidence on Brittan and his VIP pals.[100] But the file was empty of both photos and all the high profile pedophiles' names were missing - proof that the establishment in cahoots with the lowly Metro Police were guilty of another major criminal cover-up.

Would-be jailbirds of a pedo-feather, never fail to flock together in the Savile-Thatcher VIP pedophilia network. Cases in point – Freemason PIE member clockmaker Keith Harding who appeared alongside Sir Jimmy on his Fix It

Christmas episode would also entertain VIP pedophile guests regularly showing up at his London shop,[101] among them Leon Brittan, Cyril Smith and fellow MP Liberal Party leader Jeremy Thorpe who became embroiled in a scandalous case of attempted murder of his former gay lover.[102] But little boy lover Thorpe threatened to tell all he knew to the world, promptly securing his not guilty verdict.[103]

It was former Liberal Party leader Jeremy Thorpe who kept showing up at the rent boy orgies sponsored by the gangster Kray twins back in the 60s that BBC DJs Savile, Freeman and Denning along with music maestros Jonathon King, Joe Meeks and Beatles manager Brian Epstein were regulars, that is until police chiefs caught wind of Thorpe and a few other prominent MPs' presence and shut it down as too high a risk.[104] That was prior to the more flagrantly open days of Thatcher's 1980s when British intelligence and police chiefs along with the usual VIP suspects from government in both UK and Europe were all joining in on the kiddie gangbanging rapes at places like Elm Guest House and infamous Dolphin Square. All these lecherous, treacherous VIP perverts belonged to the same pedo-club yet not one of them ever paid for their child abuse crimes that included occasional murder before dying of old age. And a few are still hiding out waiting to die after living their "good life." Only the low hanging predators like Denning is still in the slammer[105] while King's been in and out.[106] But the likes of Mr. Undercover and his MP Johns belonging to the VIP uppermost tier have always managed to successfully live like unholy gods above all the manmade laws they make for only us to abide by.

Yet another queen-knighted minister in Lady Thatcher's cabinet caught frequenting the Elm Guest House was Scottish Tory MP Sir Nicholas Fairburn who got away scot free after repeatedly molesting and raping his close friend's 4-year old daughter,[107] in addition to raping Elm House kids and carrying on an adulterous affair with Dame Esther Rantzen, the notorious pedo-loving queen as BBC ChildLine-NSPCC pedo-cabal gatekeeper.[108] It's no accident that the names from the same flock of pedo-foxes keep resurfacing again and again at the same crime scene network.

In 1986 (same year Rantzen started her ChildLine), Thatcher's bodyguard and former detective chief inspector Barry Streven told his prime minister straight out that many of her key cabinet members were full blown child abusers.[109] Yet knowing her closest advisors and confidantes were harming innocent kids never stopped Lady T or Queen Elizabeth from shielding and rewarding knighthood to all the worst offenders - Savile (after 5 failed tries), Sir Cyril Smith, Sir Leon Brittan, Sir Nicholas Fairburn, Sir Peter Morrison, Sir Peter Hayman, Sir Jeremy Thorpe and on and on we go. Every one of Thatcher's incoming cabinet ministers as well as the queen's knighthood recipients are all thoroughly vetted by UK's security services whose job is to keep close running tabs on the who's who of VIP child molesters occupying high places within the nation's long established blackmail system. So ignorance is no excuse. It's an indisputable fact that royalty and political leaders favor their child rapist friends over the well-being of their nation's own children and aiding and abetting child rapists has always been their unprosecuted crime (among a litany of others). So by law Dame Maggie and Queen Lizzie were/are also criminals.

Moreover, it's also intelligence agencies' equally important task to ensure compromised and controlled pedophiles are guarding their United pedo-house Kingdom at every level - from the VIP politicians, to their senior civil servants, from law enforcement and high courts to the media. All are overpaid, totally controlled and protected criminals as long as they continue stand vigil guarding their pedo-peer clubhouse.

Thatcher’s home secretary Brittan at age 43 was the youngest UK law enforcement chief since fellow pedophile Sir Winston Churchill assumed the helm before WWI.[110] Since numerous victims at sex parties held at Dolphin Square and Elm Guest House accused Sir Leon Brittan of being a child molester,[111] in 1983 Brittan made sure that the 40-page dossier listing himself and his fellow minister peers and MPs as child rapists given him by Tory Party MP Geoffrey Dickens was intentionally “lost.” Incredibly also in 1983 the Scotland Yard submitted to Brittan a separate second dossier exposing 15 prominent VIP PIE members and Sir Leon “misfiled” that one too.[112] Brittan proceeded to “lose track” of (i.e., destroy) all evidence that would’ve sunk both him and the British Establishment once and for all. Thus Sir Leon became the principal presiding over the infamous Westminster pedophilia cover-up more fully detailed in Chapter 23.

Goes without saying that British intelligence services already had the lowdown on all of these dossier listed perverts but as child pimping handlers and blackmailers, many pedophiles themselves, working “deep cover” with the likes of Sir Savile, for decades throughout the West the power business has always been about controlling top politicians through sexual blackmail,[113] and with adultery and homosexuality gone mainstream, it’s degenerated into misusing children as their cannon fodder kiddie bait on a massive scale. This cold hard fact speaks volumes as absolute proof that to reach the highest echelons of power in this world, be it in the UK, America, or the entire Western world and beyond, you must already be either a certifiable pedophile yourself or a thoroughly compromised, pedo-enabling, heartless, psychopathic, sniveling snake in the grass.

Savile’s Mossad controlled US counterpart is Trilateral Commission and Council on Foreign Relations member Jeffrey Epstein (see Chapter 14).[114] For purposes of maintaining their absolute impunity over the long haul, to be invited into this diabolical inner sanctum, pathetically it means you must already be one of them. Their earthly dominion controlling fallen angel Lucifer wouldn’t have it any other way.

Still unconvinced that Prime Minister Thatcher and Sir Jimmy’s love affair was a pedophilia front for the global cabal’s pedo-network? In July 2014 a onetime Tory Party insider and little boy procurer himself for Tory VIPs became a pedophile namedropper outing yet more ministers from Thatcher’s notorious cabinet.[115] In addition to the aforementioned handful, former Tory activist Anthony Gilberthorpe said that Thatcher’s Education Secretary Sir Keith Joseph, Minister of State Social Security Sir Rhodes Boyson, Attorney General Sir Michael Havers and another still serving as MP today were/are abusing rent boys that Gilberthorpe supplied at sex parties.[116] Joseph and Boyson are even listed as PIE members in the second dossier given to Brittan in 1983.[117] Yet with all this undeniable evidence, they either go to their graves unblemished or are still serving in government unblemished.

As illustration of the unbelievable hypocrisy exhibited by these elite pedophiles, the knighted Sir Rhodes Boyson was a raving homophobe claiming that being gay was “unnatural” and “biblically wrong.” Yet privately it never stopped him from attending drug sexed orgies homosexually ravaging little boys while mouthing to the press such classic, ignorant, bigoted lines as:

If we could wipe out homosexual practices, AIDS would die out.[118]

Eventually at 87 so did he in 2012, of course unpunished and unexposed for his lifelong sins “against nature.”

Anthony Gilberthorpe went on to state that as a friend he also personally informed Margaret Thatcher that many of her closest right hand men were using more than their right hands to savagely violate underage boys at Conservative Party orgies. But Anthony the whistleblower naively failed to realize that Iron Lady was already well aware she was surrounded by carefully placed, thoroughly vetted sexual predators having received multiple “tips” from multiple other inside sources.

Gilberthorpe elaborates further:

> I outlined exactly what I had witnessed and informed her I intended to expose it. I made it very clear to Mrs. Thatcher most trusted ministers had been at these parties with boys who were between 15 and 16. I also told her of the amount of illegal drugs like cocaine that were consumed.[119]

But Gilberthorpe fails to mention to the prime minister when he planned to expose all those pedophiles, as apparently he safely chose to withhold this damaging information from the public until years later after Thatcher and virtually every one of his identified VIP sickos had already died off.

As if all this isn’t incriminating enough, just a year later in July 2015 yet another “discovered” bone was thrown to the citizens for mass consumption to reveal that again in 1986 MI5 chief Sir Anthony Duff sent a letter “informing” the prime minister that prominent MP Cyril Smith was a pedophile.[120] The notion that the head of British intelligence responsible for coordinating UK pedophilia blackmail operations would disclose in a letter that a single member of the House of Commons from an opposing party just happened to be a flaming pedophile is an affront to our intelligence when we know that the Thatcher government was by design swarming with meticulously infiltrated child molesters and rapists galore.

This is the British establishment's cunningly deceptive methodical strategy to minimize the pedo-scandal in the post-Savile era, unwilling to admit even half-truths, instead choosing to trickle it down to one-one thousandth truths in piecemeal fashion. But the far more significant bottom line issue here is that the Duff letter serves as yet one more among numerous sources unequivocally confirming that Maggie the pedophile lover knew all along that creepy crawling degenerates of the worst order had saturated her government. Based on Duff's written assessment below, it's made perfectly and assuredly clear to all involved that from both head of UK intelligence to prime minister and all her pedo-filled cabinet members:

At the present stage… the risks of political embarrassment to the government is rather greater than the security danger.[121]

In other words, the ongoing, unchecked grave risk to their nation's children being permanently scarred and damaged was never even part of the equation. In his warped mind, saving the government from public embarrassment was a much greater priority than either their welfare or national security's (i.e., foreign Zionist or Soviet interests controlling Britain's government through blackmail was deemed less risk). This telling disclosure reveals the pure evil and wickedness that guide all of these major power players' every move and why a satanic spook like Jimmy Savile was so usefully important to them. For a very long, long time, since the Babylonian Baal worshipping, satanically ritualized practices of pedophilia and child sacrifice (see Chapter 3) along with sexual blackmail have always been how this world has operated atop the subhuman pedo-food chain.

In another overt, incriminatingly explosive episode demonstrating that Thatcher engaged in a massive, widespread cover-up to conceal her hardcore pedophile ministers within her cabinet, in 1982 Maggie was joined by her then Home Secretary Willie Whitelaw, a senior policeman and an MI5 officer to discreetly meet with one of her top ministers, a rising Tory Party star being groomed at the time for higher office, to warn him to be more careful in his personal taste for little boys.[122] But the press's watered down version includes this Thatcher quoted admonishment:

You have to clean up your sex act.[123]

Give us a break! Like making sure her pedo-crew would ever stop raping little boys was ever really even close to a priority during her entire 11-year reign. Instead the "warned" minister, knowing full well he could safely continue acting out his sickness living above the law, he ignored his boss and was again observed four years later in a Scotland Yard sting operation still soliciting sex from underage lads at the Victoria Railway Station.[124] Of course because Standard Operating Procedure for UK police has always protected and ignored pedophilia in its VIP ranks, police politely requested the serial child rapist to not hang out at railway station toilets anymore. This information came to light after an inside Scotland Yard source in 2014 disclosed the story to the Sunday People. Again, proof that by careful Luciferian design, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was surrounded by hardcore pedophiles, brazenly lurking in complete impunity inside her den of iniquity at the very heart of the British government. And you can bet that nothing has changed since, except that in 2018 the pedo-cabal remains not only alive and well but bigger, more powerful and more protected than ever.[125]

A brief glimpse into Thatcher's earlier life growing up raised by her strict Methodist lay preacher father Alf Roberts[126] proves very illuminating. Little Maggie adored her neighborhood grocer patriarch, who also possessed quite a notorious reputation within the community as a pervert groping any underage girl he could get his paws on.[127] While pitying her mother and older sister for their more maternal, traditional ways,[128] Margaret admired the strong work ethic of her frugal, “puritanical,” intellectual dad who instilled in her ambition, hard work and austerity alongside repressed inner conflict between self-righteous, holier than thou hypocrisy and arrogant pride overcompensating her closeted embrace of sexual deviance and wicked predation. As her father’s favorite, perhaps she herself was a pedophile incest victim. Similar to Dame Rantzen who alleged being molested as a child by a family member,[129] this dynamic goes far in explaining such strong attraction, affection and tolerance towards so many known child predators like Savile and all her gay pedophile gang atop her government. More gatekeeping female pedophile-loving dames standing guard for their pedo-cabal that’s in turn treated them so well.

As a former MP hailing from Finchley, the one district containing the largest Jewish constituency[130] in a nation with an overall population of less than half of 1% Jewish,[131] Prime Minister Thatcher filled upwards of 25% of her cabinet with Jews.[132] Several were accused pedophiles like Brittan and Joseph. Others like Sir Leon’s foreign minister cousin Sir Malcolm Rifkind, later parliamentary committee chair presiding over Mossad run British intelligence[133] [134] and adulterous Jewish princess (more Rantzen echoes?) Edwina Currie who appointed known predator Savile to head Broadmoor are more pedophile enabling apologists. Another Jewish minister David Young whose proud Lithuanian father bragged:

One son deputy chairman of the government, another [Simon] chairman of the BBC -- that's not bad for immigrants.[135]

Yet another Jewish minister Michael Howard went on to become the Conservative Party leader but not before working with the Rothschild City of London shepherding through Thatcher's hated poll tax,[136] leading to today's shameful inequality mess where the top 10% of British wage earners pay less of their income to taxes than the poorest 10%.[137] Thanks to her and Howard's poll tax, outside one other among the world's developed nations, UK has suffered the worst inequality gap between the rich and poor.[138]

Additionally, the most powerful Jew in the Thatcher government was Lord Victor Rothschild as her security advisor. Thatcher selected, or more likely Rothschild selected her as his puppet prime minister, and then the head of the bloodline family's banking dynasty controlling the Bank of England was entrenched throughout the 1980s as her closest security confidante.[139] But Rothschild was also a Communist and the fifth and actual leader of the treasonous KGB Cambridge 5 spy ring consisting of gay pedophile Anthony Blunt, longtime British intelligence operative and art curator for the royals who were fully aware of both Blunt's treason[140] and degenerate taste for little boys.[141] Other Cambridge spies were the 1951 Soviet defectors Guy Burgess who introduced Blunt to the gay pedo-lifestyle along with fellow defector Donald MacLean and Kim Philby,[142] who the Mossad helped flee to the Soviet Union in 1963.[143]

After Blunt recruited Rothschild to the KGB while at Cambridge University in 1936,[144] Rothschild wound up a very close friend to Prime Minister Churchill throughout WWII, providing updated intelligence to Stalin throughout. In 1940 it was Rothschild's turn to invite Blunt into MI5.[145] Over the course of the next half century, until his death in 1990, Victor Rothschild and his four fellow KGB traitors working in MI5, MI6 and the British Foreign Office (that controls MI6) gave away critical allied atomic and nuclear secrets to the Soviets. During the 1980s along with Home Office Secretary Brittan, double agent Lord Rothschild used his immense influence to oversee MI5 and MI6 operations[146] and is believed instrumental in leaking nuclear secrets to the Israelis as well.[147]

Additionally, Savile and one of his early protectors Blunt were both pedophiles with enormous kiddie appetites, both intimate with the Windsor family, both worked undercover for MI5, both were instrumental in setting up blackmail operations throughout the British Isles extending blackmail pedo-rings to top establishment VIPs, and both maintained strong loyal ties to both Israel and Jewish banking family patriarch-spy-Thatcher security advisor Victor Rothschild.[148] Sharing a mutual vested interest in the global pedo-blackmail-trafficking apparatchik, the links between Savile, Blunt, Rothschild and the royal British bloodline that feed both the parasitic pathology of pedophiles and the obvious control mechanism over compromised puppet politicians, these same sexually deviant Zionist traitors' names keep popping up all the time. It was definitely no accident the planetary controllers made certain their Dame Margaret Thatcher as Britain's first female prime minister stack the deck with controllable pedophiles fervently loyal to Zionism during Iron Lady's near dozen year premiership.

Still another from Thatcher's inner circle that stood accused of pedophilia crimes was her Chief of Defense from 1982-85 - Lord General Edwin Bramall, who served years earlier under royal pedophile Lord Mountbatten. Metro Police Detective Superintendent Kenny McDonald found Bramall's accuser Nick a highly credible source from 2014-2016, disclosing on record:

> Nick has been spoken to by experienced officers from child abuse teams and experienced officers from murder investigations. They and I believe what Nick is saying is credible and true .[149]

Still alive and kicking turning 95 in December 2018, as of 2016 the old accused pedophile soldier was no longer considered a suspect because suddenly the police did a 180 reversal and publicly concluded that Nick's (and undoubtedly others') allegations were somehow false.[150] The Establishment rules dictate that only dead monsters can be accused and believed, but dare call out any famous still alive pedophiles and the system makes mincemeat of them. Why were Nick's allegations deemed so credible by the top cop for two years running and then abruptly declared false and discarded? Several police officers are also under investigation that worked on the failed £2.5 million fiasco Operation Midland that netted zero pedophile arrests, based on compiled accuser Nick's allegedly bogus allegations,[151] sending the loud and clear message to both accusers and police to not even think about going after the VIP child rapists.

This unsettling development is more pedo-Establishment pushback, a psyops designed to place doubt and second thoughts on future victim accusers.[152] Lots of propaganda mileage to be gained here from making false allegations against one "innocent," distinguished, highly decorated famous old war hero, then declare the accuser dishonest and under arrest, vindicating the victimized VIP ala Sir Cliff. Like every other child sex abuse inquiry, investigation and police operation into historic UK child abuse, despite numerous victims implicating powerful VIPs as their abusers, always the outcomes remain the same – "not enough evidence."[153] Not one minister, MP, military general or intelligence chief has ever been prosecuted, much less found guilty. Yet all the compiled evidence over the years is overwhelming.

Meanwhile, thousands of alleged victims and witnesses have emerged in recent post-Savile years providing incontrovertible evidence for arrest and prosecution sharing identical or similar corroborating accounts against the same identified VIP perps. Once the Savile scandal broke, both abuse that occurred recently as well as historic abuse reporting have soared, in just one year rising to over 31,000 reported cases, up by more than a third from the year before.[154] Just based on media reports and police records alone, back in the 1980s thousands of British children in care homes were systematically trafficked around the UK and abroad, regularly abused by Britain and Europe's elite at many places, particularly Dolphin Square and Elm Guest House as well as dozens of other locations around the British Isles, Amsterdam and Brussels. Yet VIP convictions remain zero. The indisputable fact that the Establishment has historically shut down police investigations, wilfully destroyed or lost evidence, obstructed justice, chronically using the lie of never having enough evidence to prosecute every single powerful pedophile that's been accused (other than the minor BBC has-beens that can be counted on one hand), the fact that all the major politicians never go to jail proves beyond any question or doubt that the cover-up only continues.

It's sickening to know that so many victims have reported abuse to authorities yet UK's pedo-foxes infiltrated into government, police, Crown Protection Service, social services and the media have successfully closed ranks to tightly guard their pedo-henhouse, effectively blocking the truth from fully coming out, resulting in countless VIP perps never brought to justice. It's the same old despicably disgusting story - evildoers in high places abuse their power that allows them to forever get away with unimaginable, sordid perversions simply because it's their granted privilege as elitist members . As the truth spreads amongst us citizens of the world who outnumber members of the VIP pedophilia club a zillion to one, our message is we're coming after you and your days of impunity are numbered.

Just like Jimmy Savile, Ted Heath, Cyril Smith and all the rest, virtually every accused VIP pedophile is permitted to safely live out their lives to the end, rotting away in their graves, or better yet, roasting in eternal hell, after never spending a single day in prison for all their heinous crimes. By design, overly stringent UK libel laws protect VIP criminals[155] - made even more pedo-friendlier with Sir Cliff's July 2018 court victory[156] (covered in last chapter), striking a major blow against both freedom of press and freedom of speech. And now morphing into Cliff's law, interchangeably synonymous with LIVING ABOVE THE LAW, it's designed to further seal off protection for perpetrators at the top. It delays if not eliminates unwanted exposure of prominent pedo-monsters until they're all safely buried in the ground from natural causes despite a lifetime of committing the most debaucherously unnatural transgressions.

Back in the 1980s when even mainstream newspapers dared to cover pedophilia ring arrests, after four ringleaders were caught and convicted, the Daily Telegraph crime correspondent admitted in a February 1989 piece:

Despite the convictions, police believe there is still a flourishing pedophile network in Britain, with a sophistication said to resemble the Mafia.[157]

Of the four men convicted and sentenced, the one considered highest in rank was Colin Peters, an Oxford trained former senior advisor at the British Foreign Office,[158] which exercises control over MI6 operations.[159] For sodomizing young boys and pimping them to VIPs, he received only a 6-year sentence. Interrogated during the pedo-ring investigation was at least one senior member in the House of Lords, a West London vicar and a number of other government officials. Like always, VIPs at the higher levels avoid prosecution with the overly familiar excuse specified in the Telegraph:

But the police did not have sufficient evidence or manpower to pursue their suspicions.[160]

Code word: VIPs are high enough on the British Establishment food chain to be immune from arrest. The pipeline procurers that did go to jail were bottom dwellers feeding off runaways, junior soccer league players, a probable an MI6-Savile-Barry Bennell (see Chapter 18) link. Another source was one of the convicted pedo-ring operators owned a cleaning company business and would regularly advertise want ads in local newspapers for potential recruits. The Telegraph article went on to explain a familiar theme found throughout the global child abuse trafficking network on how boys as young as 9 get:

> Passed around its [pedophile] members for sexual degradation and, when the attraction faded, abandoned to a life of prostitution, drugs, and petty crime… The boys were tempted off the unfamiliar London streets with promises of food, accommodation, money, and a sympathetic ear. Some were plied with drugs, including cocaine, and sexually assaulted while under their influence.[161]

Police in Italy, UK and the US found links between Colin Peters' UK pedo-ring and the international network. A wealthy businessman in Italy, Allesandro Moncini, arrested in the US in 1988 for attempting to procure an underage girl for satanic ritual abuse served just three months in prison for smuggling child pornography.[162] Italian investigators working in America believe they uncovered "a most exclusive ring of international pedophiles." Recall that the Vatican secret societies and P1 Masons work hand-in-hand together with bankers and organized crime in Italy, Europe and far beyond.[163]

The satanic ritual abuse of trafficked children around the globe is perpetrated on victims of what experts maintain is a highly organized, sophisticated, interlocking network run by Illuminati, Freemasons, Malta Knights and Jesuits among other infiltrators operating at the highest levels of national governments, the intelligence community, law enforcement, organized crime, the military and mainstream media. A mind control-child abuse victim turned courageous survivor-activist, Australian Fiona Barnett who as a child was passed around globally and raped by presidents, prime ministers, Reverend Billy Graham and a number of the world’s most powerful men, has this to say in her International Tribunal of Natural Justice (ITNJ) testimony[164] recalling her firsthand experience and direct observation:

Child trafficking is run as a_single integrated world operation. This operation is coordinated by the CIA in collaboration with British and Australian intelligence services. Retired NYPD Detective James Rothstein was appointed to the first US taskforce to investigate this child trafficking operation which, he found, went all the way up to the White House. Detective Rothstein found that the CIA were behind a blackmail operation in which child prostitutes were used to honeytrap and compromise politicians, military brass, top businessmen, and key government officials… Luciferianism is arranged according to a hierarchical structure which vaguely resembles a caste system. At the very top sit 13 family dynasties including the Rothschilds and the British Royal Family. These are recognised by the cult as demi-gods. Below these sit approximately 300 Luciferian bloodlines who are generally high IQ, although this tends to have been watered down in some families due to intermarriage. Below this group sit the commoners who can never attain higher status because they lack the desired bloodline.[165] (boldface for emphasis)

Other than her oversight not mentioning the Mossad-Zionist slant in the global pedo-operation, her insider insights accurately explain how the Luciferian pedo-cabal works.

Also it’s important to note that Thatcher’s Westminster scandal was flourishing at the same exact time that George Bush’s CIA Finders Cult (Chapter 12) and Nebraska to Washington Franklin scandals (Chapter 13) were also in high gear. The UK branch of this vast interconnected worldwide pedo-network was fronted by Prime Minister Thatcher, ravenously participated in by her derelict political cronies she fiercely protected and largely run by Savile and his British intelligence services coordinating procuring gangs like Colin Peter, Peter Righton and Sidney Cooke’s recruiting from the streets and group homes. But only this lowest rung of pedophile traffickers are ever subject to busts and actual jail time. The rest of the low-lifes in this heinous operation remain insulated and unreachable from their elitist, thus far impenetrable perch.

Even before she became PM, no doubt Thatcher had accepted as a precondition to her storied rise to historic glory that it was her cabal duty to “appoint” her heavily MI5 vetted cabinet intentionally flooded with flaming pedophiles. After all, her biggest holiday guest was Britain’s biggest pedophile ever. In the UK the precedent had already been set a full decade earlier with Savile as “deep cover” pimp supplying victims for another compromised Tory Party prime minister who happened to be a PIE linked brutal child rapist and coldblooded child murderer.[166] Edward Heath had been strategically planted by his Luciferian puppet masters to secretly strip Britain of its national sovereignty, coercing it into what would become the European Union monstrosity.[167] As saber rattling warmongers on steroids, both the Reagan/Bush and Thatcher role was to facilitate transference of Western oligarchic wealth out of UK/Europe/US as foreign investment largely into Asia, ushering in the next wave of neocolonialist theft in the longtime overexploited, conquered Third World, while introducing permanent austerity and hardship to the everyday British/US household trying to eke out daily survival in an increasingly hostile world on the brink of economic disaster.[168]

From across the pond back in the 1980s, Maggie's chosen counterpart cutout Ronnie Reagan, for all intents and purposes, was replaced a little more than a month into office by a "wayward" bullet[169] when his opportunistic CIA directing VP, crime family pedophile-drug overlord Daddy Bush moved in.[170] Once the Luciferian controllers had their perfect US-UK-Zionist puppets in place, using their old divide and conquer standby, they heightened tensions in the Middle East, engineered the bloody Iraq-Iran War, promoted jingoistic expansion wars abroad, and created an emerging enemy called "war on terror" using Islam as scapegoat. Finally, they set the stage for the military industrial complex to become the driving force behind imperialistic Anglo-American-Zionist Empire aggression that's been ravaging the planet ever since.[171]

Maggie, Ronnie and George simultaneously ushered in the death of the US[172] and UK middle classes[173] to deliver austerity and hardship overseeing a Fortune 500 exodus overseas for cheap Third World slave labor in order to gut the domestic manufacturing sectors. One in four manufacturing jobs disappeared within Thatcher's first term alone.[174] And to ensure the undoing of America and UK proceeded as planned, sexual pedo-blackmail reigned supreme, producing compromised robots who smile on cue for the camera while their puppet masters celebrate in orgiastic satanic ritualized gluttony their New World Order fast closing in on absolute control over the masses during the home stretch of their depopulation plan called human genocide.[175] Pretty despairing picture unless we stop the Luciferian sodomizers from raping and destroying our entire planet, now in the 11th hour and 59th minute.

Years after Bush senior and Iron Lady did their damage decimating US-UK affluence and sovereignty in favor of rich-poor inequality and globalization, the NWO architects then installed their two bisexual cottage boys "Miranda" Blair and George W[176] for their turn to drive the world closer to the edge. With Bush-Cheney's treasonously masterminded, neo-conned "new Pearl Harbor" vis-a-vis 9/11 false flag as more dirty bidding for Netanyahu's Greater Israel Project.[177] By elite design, the Anglo-American-Zionist axis-of-evil then launched its ambitious, willfully destructive 7 nation in 5 year takedown plan,[178] demolishing Iraq, Libya, Sudan, Somalia, Lebanon and Afghanistan into failed states. A decade and a half later still raging unfinished wars in Syria and Afghans' "empire graveyard" for heroin pushing[179] at the precipice gateway to the 7th and final vowed nation to vanquish Iran, a diabolically twisted suicide pact is now plunging humanity off the Armageddon cliff.[180]

Once the Anglo-American-Zionist pedo-axis manufactured its perpetual state of war in the Middle East and North Africa,[181] the NWO architects engineered[182] the earth's largest displaced population in history as of 2014 and a year later the worst refugee crisis since WWII.[183] Flooding millions of Muslims into Europe and North America under the euphemistic Trojan horse guise of "multiculturalism," just to jack up the cultural, racial, religious divide and conquer violence and upheaval, bankrupting the euro[184] and EU[185] with Italy now at the breaking point,[186] like dominos ultimately crashing the global economy just as elite controllers trigger the West versus East WWIII showdown,[187] the crime cabal is closing in on destroying the West and creating such dire, turbulent, desperate global conditions that offer the excuse to bring on the long awaited one world government as humanity's only "salvation" for survival. This is the child fuckers' nearly accomplished endgame as its sleight of hand answer to its Achilles pedo-heel.

The post-Savile revelations in recent years once again placed unwanted spotlight on the Achilles heel again, especially the notorious Thatcher government and the Westminster scandal cover-up, featured partially in a book co-written by Labor MP Simon Danczuk exposing one larger-than-life, villainous character, the over 400 pound (29 stone, 12 pounds or 190kg[188]) gluttonous pedophile Sir Cyril Smith.[189] Hailing from the same Rochdale district, Simon Danczuk was elected the same year the rotund Sir Cyril died in 2010. I July 2014 Danczuk asked the aging Leon Brittan what happened to those missing dossiers from the 1980s.[190] Unfortunately exercising a gross lapse of moral judgment in 2015, the married Danczuk was caught sexting a 17-year old girl a-la Weiner style,[191] completely self-sabotaging whatever legitimate voice he may have had to further expose the pedophilia network. The Labour Party suspended him and when he announced he would run as an independent in the 2017 general election, a woman accused him of rape. Chalk another victory up for the pedophilia cabal subduing yet another potential threat.

The October 2012 Savile exposure inspired Labor leader MP Tom Watson to take up the cause that MP Geoffrey Dickens initiated three decades earlier to once again call for an actual real police investigation looking into the pedo-infested British Parliament and prime minister office, forcing the then pedo-enabler Prime Minister David Cameron to begrudgingly initiate the latest “pseudo-probe” to placate public interest. With his dramatic October 24th, 2012 confrontation on the House of Commons floor, MP Watson demanded UK’s prime minister and police:

Investigate clear intelligence suggesting a powerful pedophile network linked to Parliament and Number 10.[192]

Dramatically caught off guard, Cameron halfheartedly pledged to look into the matter after pretending he didn’t grasp which 10 Downing occupant Watson was referring to, knowing full well it was Margaret Thatcher.[193] Of course it could've been Edward Heath, Gordon Brown or Tony Blair or even himself, as Cameron knew every UK prime minister over the past half century was/is a pedophile or pedophile protector. And as a cousin of PIE supporting Harriet Harman and 5th cousin to Queen Elizabeth herself,[194] a loyal pedo-enabler to the end, three years later it was David Cameron in October 2015 self-righteously striking back, imploring anti-pedophile crusader Tom Watson to "examine his conscience."

After Watson dared to mention Lord Leon Brittan's alleged pedophilia (without even bringing up his infamous "lost" pair of pedo-dossiers), instantly Watson became an easy target having the nerve to call for a new investigation nine months after accused pedophile Brittan's death.[195] The ensuing drama played out once again before the House with Cameron and his indignant fellow pro-Brittan pro-pedo-defenders demanding Watson's resignation, yelling "shame, shame" after Watson reiterated the need to revisit investigating government pedophilia on behalf of the thousands of victims never heard nor ever given any true justice. The UK pedo-Establishment never fails to jump on the political bandwagon to demonize every rare MP who's ever been bold enough to try and hold his powerful pedo-peer majority accountable. Watson's righteous proposal obviously hit way too close to home for VIP child rapists.

In 2014 Home Office then under current Prime Minister Theresa May admitted to 114 pedo-related files gone missing or destroyed.[196] Using the "never enough evidence" mantra, by design, the pedophilia epicenter of the world appears incapable of honestly holding establishment pedophiles accountable. Hence, Operation Midland ostensibly set up in late 2014 to investigate the alleged Westminster MP pedophilia scandal collapsed for “lack of evidence.”[197] Though both Operations Midlands and Fairbridge were ostensibly set up after Savile died to investigate government VIP abuse, both probes shamefully failed to arrest a single Elm Guest House or Dolphin Square VIP… some things never change.

Then Metro Police’s onetime key witness “Nick” whose accusations between 2012 and 2014 of widespread abuse and alleged witnessing three boys murdered deemed “credible and true,”[198] by top cop himself suddenly was charged with the crime of perverting justice with so called “made up” lies.[199] This latest legal development is meant to frighten off victims from ever coming forth. So the government pedophiles once again remain fully protected and unreachable. And with Theresa May’s floundering national “independent” Inquiry hoax into child sexual abuse that doesn’t even include Northern Ireland’s MI5-Savile[200]-Mountbatten-Heath-Blunt linked Kincora Boys Home scandal, nothing ever changes.[201] Because all these biggest names in British pedophilia were all such major VIPs directly linked to royalty striking at the heart of the over-the-top UK pedo-cover-up, Prime Minister May will never dare allow the Kincora scandal into her pathetic whitewash.

Incidentally, a former detective probing early Jimmy Savile crimes angrily maintained that fellow pedophile, royal historian, MI5 double spy and traitor Sir Anthony Blunt successfully blocked police investigations into the infamous BBC DJ,[202] just one more indicator that Savile was an employed MI5 operative. Of course for Soviet spy Blunt’s confession of treason, as a member of the “hidden elite,” in 1964 Blunt was granted full immunity from prosecution as both a pedophile and national traitor, and protection from public exposure for another fifteen years.[203] This allowed Blunt to freely travel to Northern Ireland often to sodomize yet more boys from Kincora and other group homes in the area, again completely without fear of exposure or arrest.

According to the late British intelligence insider Anthony T. Stokes, Victor Rothchild, Anthony Blunt and many other Establishment VIPs practiced satanic ritual abuse and murder at black magick orgies, specifying that Blunt asphyxiated child victims causing their bodies to contract to heighten the orgasm for the sodomizer.[204] Jimmy Savile was right at home in this element. This is the above the law club of monsters ruling our planet that ensure protection of their own.

A former MI6 agent assigned to surveillance of right wing loyalist extremist groups in Northern Ireland has reported that British intelligence was fully aware of both illegal arms trafficking as well as child trafficking sex abuse but looked the other way not wanting to blow its cover or "tread on the toes" of Ulster Constabulary.[205] The ex-spy claimed a sophisticated international pedophile ring trafficked boys from Kincora Home to London, Brighton, and abroad to Amsterdam and Vienna. The simple reason nothing was done to intervene to save the exposable children being sodomized is that it was a British intelligence operation to traffic children to gain sexual blackmail control over politicians both domestic and foreign.[206] For many, many decades now, multiple child sex slaves have been moved around the globe through the massive worldwide pedophilia network primarily coordinated through the international intelligence community, particularly the CIA, Mossad and MI5 and 6.

Just like the Vatican and Catholic Church, the royal crown, the UK government, the BBC and entire British Establishment's long been completely taken over by Luciferian demons. For the pedophilia crisis endemic inside the putrefying United Kingdom to ever effectively be ameliorated, much less eradicated, the entire government needs to be scrapped and totally replaced from ground zero on up. The US and virtually the entire Western world are in the same pathetically depraved dire straits. But since we know that will almost never happen, a good place to start would be to at least replace Britain’s antiquated, grossly unfair, abominable family court system.

As it’s existed, the UK’s secret closed court system has been in the diabolical business of systematically breaking up and destroying British families, removing children en masse from parents without justifiable or due cause, and unmercifully sending them to be further abused in institutionalized[JH1] “care”[207] that serves as the child raping pipeline for the international sex trafficking trade. By sinister design, this enormous systemic flaw in Britain has allowed the vitally fundamental social institution of family to be obliterated, literally killing both children and parents alike, customarily placing kids in peril within the very broken system set up to protect them, just as my own direct experience as a child therapist in America confirmed.[208] In keeping children safe, like the one in America, the British child welfare system has only proven to be a failed abomination that like its larger government needs drastic overhaul.

This same diabolical dysfunction and process currently gripping both the US and UK’s child welfare systems is largely the same worldwide. But then for a very long time the international cabal has also insidiously been at war with the basic family institution, particularly the diminishing nuclear family unit as an impediment to the cultural Marxism inherently behind today’s neoliberal movement embracing one world government totalitarianism.[209] In 1786 Illuminati funder Baron Rothschild and founder Adam Weishaupt concurred, the basic family unit along with religion and national sovereignty were identified as the primary enemies obstructing their path to centrally controlled tyranny and coveted prize of one world government.[210] Weishaupt also articulated the key value of strategically deploying sexual blackmail as the Illuminati's "ends always justify the means" Modus Operandi.[211]

In 2013 newly appointed President of the High Court Family Division Judge James Munby went public stating that the most drastic legal matter that British judges deal with today is the pervasive removal of UK children from their families.[212] Judge Munby has called for a more transparent and open family court system that doesn't place gag orders on parents from being able to talk to the press. Munby also wants to reform the system to make both the court decisions available to the public as well as the identity of judges, social workers, attorneys and expert witnesses. In the past too many parents with legitimate grievous complaints have been unjustly imprisoned for calling for public scrutiny in family court cases where gross miscarriage of justice is systemically perpetrated. But the wall of resistance to Sir Munby's proposed changes that support the status quo of institutionalized child abuse and the prevailing pedophilia epidemic still rigidly persists.[213] Paradoxically, family court has used strict confidentiality laws to ostensibly "protect" the anonymity of children as its primary justification for secrecy when in fact it's been tearing the institution of family apart for systematically placing children at far greater risk of harm.

Another despicable misdeed willfully imposed by Justice Secretary Jack Straw in April 2009 intended to strengthen the blight of British pedophilia impunity was his unilaterally changing British law to prohibit children in group home care to the basic human right of speaking out against abuse or maltreatment received while trapped in the closed off, insulated child welfare system.[214] Step by step in the face of increasing exposure of the ongoing Savile-Westminster scandal, the elite has closed ranks to busily construct systemic barriers designed to muzzle and frighten victims and seal off the no longer free press from unveiling the filthy truth.

Because of the proliferating exposure of Savile related abuse along with so many other high profile pedo-scandals like Pizzagate/Pedogate in recent years gaining traction in growing citizens’ awareness of the ruling elite’s global child sex trafficking epidemic,[215] as mentioned previously the pedo-cabal in the UK has aggressively pushed back with two enormous court victories culminating in the same month of July 2018. The prospect of placing alleged abuse victim “Nick” behind bars for so called false allegations of a murderous Westminster pedophile ring lends the pretext for officially proclaiming the entire British VIP scandal an exaggerated myth and total hoax.[216] Then days later Sir Cliffy destroys what little freedom of the press is left, rendering its future capacity to report on and investigate high profile pedo-suspects impotent.[217] No doubt these days UK’s pedo-elite are celebrating in their mansions as these recent relatively unknown monumental setbacks validating VIP pedophiles’ above-the-law immunity from justice only embolden the powerful British Establishment to commit yet more crimes against innocent children.

This sad reality must change and we the people as protectors of our children must make it happen. A good place to start is advocating for truth and reconciliation commissions, supporting organizations like the International Tribunal for Natural Justice (ITNJ), presently gathering testimony from victim-turned-survivors[218]

With the cabal’s designated blackmail “specialists” Jimmy Savile and Jeffrey Epstein working in cahoots with the global intelligence community, joined by popes, corrupt churches, royalty, organized crime and their infiltrating satanic secret society allies, each dutifully play out their respective roles facilitating sexual blackmail pedophilia operations to gain absolute control over puppet politicians worldwide.[219]

Figureheads like Maggie, Blair and Cameron along with their US counterparts the Bushes, Clintons and Obamas serve as chosen (not elected[220]) public face pedophile overlords while behind the scenes their Luciferian bloodline masters quietly pull their order-following strings.[221]

Sir Jimmy Savile is linked to both abusing and pimping kids at virtually every major group home scandal in Britain. From Jersey Island's Haut de la Garenne[222] to Elm Guest House,[223] he was there. From Islington[224] to North Wales Bryn Estyn[225] where 650 children from a total of 40 group homes were sexually assaulted,[226] from Northern Ireland's Kincora Boys Home[227] to Surrey's Duncroft School for Girls, Jimmy was there doing his thing.[228]

One big orgiastic demonic death cult dance uses the elite's flourishing child sex trade booming larger than ever today[229] to own and control the planet and their minions through sexual blackmail[230] carried out with an accompanying permanent war against humanity agenda[231] that includes spreading global destabilization, deploying military wars around the world, using both fast and soft kill eugenics,[232] increasing covert psychotronic warfare[233] and nonstop disinformation propaganda and mass mind control.[234]

All this while the planetary controllers' collapsing, unsustainable global economy now shuddering in death throe implosion,[235] has been orchestrated to tighten the neo-feudal grip of their debtor slavery system[236] along with unprecedented global habitat destruction[237] that's fast leading to earth's sixth mass life extinction and first by a demonically executed human genocide.[238] Meanwhile, depopulation doomsday globalist Bill Gates has recently been at it again, frothing at the mouth to raise alarm over the impending "30 million dead" pandemic from infectious disease,[239] doing his nefarious duty to prep humanity for forced vaccination[240] amidst false flag biological warfare terrorism,[241] like AIDS[242] and Ebola[243] launched out of a Fort Detrick Petri dish.

Just in case it somehow escaped your attention, it appears that to even be considered qualified for such regal honors as British royal knighthood, you must already be a card carrying member of the VIP pedophilia club first. That way, every compromised politician holding higher office is subject to sexual blackmail and control by elite fascist Anglo-American-Zionist interest.[244] To the pedophilic puppet masters and their sexually blackmailed, controlled politicians throughout the world, it's never been about sworn oaths of loyalty towards any one country or one's country of citizenship, not with Israeli first dual citizens comprising the embedded neocon core still running Washington, or when a handful of Luciferian families from a few nations (most notably yet not exclusively from the West)[245] are pulling the international cabal strings rapidly bringing mounting geopolitical conflict, polarization, destabilization, uninterrupted war, financial hardship, economic disparity[246] and psychological trauma worldwide.[247]

In the meantime, widespread battlefields of war and overcrowded migrant camps caused by all the manufactured global conflict provide the ideal cover and setting for trafficking illegal arms,[248] illegal drugs,[249] illegal child sex slaves,[250] illegal body parts[251] and illegally laundered trillions into the pedophilic elite's international crime coffers,[252] which in turn are used to finance the deep underground military bases,[253] secret deep space program and limitless, deep pocketed CIA-DARPA black budgets[254] and black ops[255] that include Frankensteinian research into genetic engineering across species interbreeding,[256] Artificial Intelligence,[257] transhumanism,[258] robotics,[259] mass mind control,[260] advanced technological warfare[261] amongst numerous other unknown, dangerously destructive, nightmarish developments. As Luciferian masters of secrecy and deceit, all participants involved are betrayers of their constitutions, their governments, their nations, the entire human race, our planet and our One Creator.[262]

In recent years the NWO movement towards the coveted one world government and Luciferian one world religion has accelerated its collision course in a race against time[263] while the ruling elite's hourglass to materialize such dire, deplorable and extreme conditions risks running out of time. The elites' desperate timetabled mission through increasing geopolitical instability, global turmoil, massive censorship (especially targeting the worldwide web), draconian oppression and tyranny[264] is intended to thwart critical mass from taking hold when enough informed, educated and empowered, pissed off citizens around the globe ultimately unite in solidarity[265] to demand the planetary controlling pedophiles finally be held fully accountable for all their crimes against both children and humanity. That day is soon approaching… if the enemy elite doesn't unleash their Armageddon and nuclear winter agenda first.[266]

Chapter 23 exposes the full gamut of the widespread UK government pedophilia scandal and its never-ending cover-up that's been allowed it to flourish for far too many decades. By self-serving design, the criminal concealment of pedophilic crimes has enabled Establishment VIPs to always live above the law due to designated pedophile foxes always guarding their pedo-henhouse through centrally controlled, fully sabotaged police investigations and totally bogus "independent" child sex abuse Inquiries never leading anywhere, co-opted by the pedophile-infiltrated, thoroughly corrupted government, high courts, security intelligence, social services and mainstream media. Sadly, the pedo-cabal at the earth's epicenter - not so Great Britain - remains a fully operational, thriving criminal enterprise to this very day.

Married couple Haroon Kasir (aka "Harry" originally from India) and Carole Kasir (recently learned not from Germany but England) opened up their Elm Guest House initially as a bed and breakfast for gays in Barnes, South West London in the mid-1970s, less than a decade after adult homosexuality was decriminalized in the UK. As part of the sexual liberation of the 1970s, the Elm Guest House that has since been converted into flats, began as a meeting place for gay men to hook up and comfortably enjoy sex with an adult consensual partner. But a group of evil men had other nefarious plans. Enter South African transplant out of Amsterdam Peter Glencross, commercial manager for the international Spartacus Club, who convinced Carole Kasir of the opportunity to make gobs of money catering to the sick whimsical perversions of homosexual pedophiles. Queen Elizabeth's 1977 silver jubilee was considered the turning point. The Elm Guest House used the queen's celebration to transition towards a boy brothel for demented child abusers, throwing the first of many King and Queen Balls where powerful VIPs, some dressed in drag, marked the occasion indulging in their deviant sexual appetites with delivered boy toys at what quickly morphed into a house of horror assembly line for trafficked in hapless care home residents.

Defiling children was the main course on the menu, mostly rent boy runaways and care home youth brought in for orgies and regularly plied with drugs and alcohol by UK establishment figures, rich and famous predators lustily seeking gratification through molestation, rape, torture, and perhaps even murder,[1] paralleling the eerily identical goings-on at VIP sex parties held at the notorious Dolphin Square complex in nearby Pimlico (covered later in the chapter). A short list of household political names identified as perpetrating heavy hitters at the Elm Guest House are Leon Brittan, Cyril Smith, Anthony Blunt, Nicholas Fairbairn, Peter Hayman, Peter Morrison and Jimmy Savile, every single one of them high-powered, queen honored knights celebrated as Very Important Persons within the British Empire.[2]

The earliest victim to come forth and divulge his shocking, sad story to the Sunday People in February 2013, just four months into learning about Jimmy Savile's depravities, was a family man in his late 40s. As a 14-year old boy, he, his 13-year old brother (in the press later identified as deceased Peter Hatton-Bornshin[3]) were frequently from trafficked 8 miles away to the Elm Guest House within a year after their 1978 placement in Grafton Close Children's Care Home in Richmond.[4] Told that they were in for "a treat," upon arrival at the Barnes guest home they were lured into drinking hard cider and competing in beer guzzling contests to first intoxicate and sedate the VIPs' targeted prey. Then they were ordered to dress into girls' fairy costumes for picture taking (no doubt for blackmail purposes) with disgusting older, well-dressed men with upper class accents, constantly pawing at them as paying house guest patrons, salivating as they verbally compared notes - "he's cute," and "oh isn't he nice."

The boys were then coerced into hideous hide and seek games before the perverted sickos moved in for the kill, committing the most vile acts sexually assaulting the youth. As he recounted his trauma years later, he broke down in tears. Their father had died in an industrial accident and then their mother committed suicide, placing them in the UK Care System. The horror they experienced while trapped in UK's "Care System" as Grafton Close residents caused his brother ten years out of the system to commit suicide over his abusive, tormented past. The courageous surviving orphan concluded:

> The people responsible have blood on their hands. I shouldn't think my brother is the only one to have taken his life because of this. I'm speaking out now because I want justice done for me and for my brother. What went on was absolutely disgusting. When we told the staff at the care home what was happening at Elm they used to say 'They are friends, they are good people.' No one was listening to us. It's taken 30 years for anyone to listen.[5]

A month prior to this article, in January 2013, a police raid had taken place at the home of child campaigner-social worker Mary Moss who a quarter century earlier had befriended Carole Kasir, gaining access to many of Carole's Elm House documents. From their confiscated items the police discovered that South African pedophile Peter Glencross was instrumental in turning Elm Guest House from a gay guest house to a boy brothel in the late 1970s.[6] Glencross operated out of Holland along with his boss, the Spartacus underground network founder - ex Catholic priest John Stamford, who had fled the UK to the Netherlands after a conviction for sending child pornographic material through the mail. Spartacus maintained a membership in Britain alone of 25,000 followers. From his office on the outskirts of Amsterdam, Stamford was the publisher of Spartacus International, a directory of worldwide resources marketed for adult predators bent on abusing boys and Glencross was assigned the task of establishing boy brothels like Elm Guest House all around the world. In effect, it was a perfect, albeit most sinister, unholy union between the likes of the CIA-MI5/MI6-Mossad blackmailers and Spartacus "boy loving," sickos, among them sexually compromised and controlled VIP perverts from around the globe.[7]

A Spartacus advertisement in the Capital Gay newspaper touting a 10% discount for Spartacus club members at the Elm Guest House is believed to be an encoded message informing homosexual pedophiles that children were readily available for sex.[8] Just eight months after the June 19, 1982 law enforcement house raid at Elm, the Sunday People explicitly exposed Stamford's pedo-holiday tours, boasting where the best havens in the world for sex with boys younger than 12 could easily be arranged, mentioning Sri Lanka and the Philippines in particular as pedophile paradises.[9] Of course the despicable sex tourism and sex slave trafficking industries promising illicit sex with children in Asia have spread like a cancer to the earth's four corners as a global blight. Currently sex trafficking falls just behind illegal arms on its way to overtaking drug sales as the largest, yet fastest growing, most profitable illegal trade on the planet.[10]

Eventually in 1995 at only 56 years of age, John Stamford wound up dead in a Belgium prison from a heart attack, another apparent victim of the common fate befalling criminals who know too much just days ahead of standing trial for sexual abuse.[11] Undoubtedly the criminal cabal knew Stamford's prosecution posed a serious liability to high-powered VIP pedophiles in Britain and Europe alike.

Up to 1983 the Kasirs entertained many British Establishment figures at their spacious Edwardian three-story guest home with regularly scheduled parties held day and night featuring trafficked in children predominantly from Grafton Close Home to satisfy the lustful, demented tastes of MPs, cabinet ministers, entertainers, judges, police commissioners, spy chiefs, high level civil servants, clergy, top businessmen, lawyers and doctors, no different from the elite pedophile rings that were simultaneously springing up in the US, Europe and Australia (through CIA and friends).

Though the Kasirs owned and operated the hotel-turned-boy brothel, from the get-go it was implicitly a joint British intelligence services’ operation not unlike the Mossad sponsored Jeffrey Epstein’s web of Caribbean-Palm Beach-Manhattan child honey-traps, as the modern mechanism used to sexually blackmail targeted politicians, judges, royalty, entertainers, and high-end VIPs for obvious international cabal control purposes. By the late 1970s, underage children had already become the preferred honey trap commodity, holding more bang for the buck than old fashioned heterosexual adultery or even homosexuality in the shady world of sexual blackmail and global espionage.

Sexual blackmail threatening to expose the perversions of royalty and powerful members of the elite for money had been around for well over a century,[12] but especially over this last half century, the elite bloodline puppet masters increasingly utilized blackmail to control leaders from around the world by deploying the global intelligence community led by the CIA as blackmailers as well as chief engineers and child pimping procurers. Hence, in Britain the dot connecting links of MI5/MI6 fingerprints are left at every single pedo-crime scene – from the Elm Guest House,[13] Northern Ireland’s Kincora Boys Home[14] to the North Wales Bryn Estyn scandal.[15] All are interconnected as irrefutable evidence confirming that care home children from Northern Ireland, Jersey in the Channel Islands and North Wales have been systematically trafficked into London to be victimized by VIPs at Elm Guest House as well as posh flats at Dolphin Square.[16]

Jet setting British VIPs are also known to travel abroad to abuse children in Northern Ireland, Jersey Island, North Wales and European cities like Amsterdam within the larger international pedophilia network,[17] that is whenever they’re not being showered with perks and money bribes by Zionists sponsoring free trips to Israel.[18] The mushrooming Israeli pedo-network will be covered in a later chapter. Additionally, evidence shows that MI5 has regularly brought in foreign diplomats and dignitaries from mainland Europe, America and elsewhere to both London’s Elm Guest House and North Wales, videotaping their sexcapades as evidential leverage for blackmailing foreign dignitaries as well.[19]

It’s an ugly sick world at the top of the power pyramid that systemically misuses innocents in this most appalling, diabolical way as the common currency of elitist blackmail bait. Luciferians running this planet have gotten away with it for far too long and their age-old addictions to both young flesh and blood literally feed their unquenchable thirst for absolute power and control. Soaring to unprecedented demonic heights today like never before, the pedophilia business is the devil’s playground and must be eradicated if the human species is to survive, much less evolve and thrive.

Early in 1982 the Scotland Yard was tipped off by a boy asserting that he was sexually abused by none other than Thatcher cabinet secretary Leon Brittan. The victim was terrified of repercussions for revealing the abuse done to him and other children victimized on an ongoing, near daily basis at Elm Guest House at 27 Rocks Lane on the Barnes Common. Shortly after he spilled the beans on his VIP sexual predators, the youth disappeared altogether, never to be seen nor heard from again, one victim among many missing and murder cases. Good, honest rank and file cops wanted to bring justice for this vanished boy and his many child peer victims being gravely, savagely harmed for life. But once the initial investigation confirmed that household names belonging to such powerful men running the country were identified as the prime suspects, what may have begun as a local police probe was quickly taken over by the British security services and Metro’s Special Branch as is always the standard custom in the United Kingdom.

To prove that it was British intelligence services that abruptly ended Metro's policing operation in order to eliminate incriminating evidence in the subsequent cover-up, just six days after MP Tom Watson's House of Commons speech in October 2012 linking a widespread VIP pedophile ring to Westminster and Downing Street, the Daily Star published a highly revealing article with the explosive headline "Tory Paedo Cover-up."[20] A former Met detective who had worked on the original case in early 1982 disclosed to the Daily Star that he and his team of investigators were told they must immediately halt their police inquiry. The still angry, frustrated, honest copper explained:

> It was a case of 'get rid of everything, never say a word to anyone.' It was made very clear to me that to continue asking questions would jeopardise my career.[21]

The 1982 police investigation determined that the then current Home Office Secretary Leon Brittan was among the top VIPs abusing boys at Elm Guest House as young as ten.[22] The police source said that MI5 had vetted Brittan prior to his becoming a Thatcher cabinet minister and that both security services and Thatcher were already well aware of his illicit sexual proclivities with underage boys, as has been proven repeatedly with her other royally knighted, demented minister monsters like Peter Morrison and Peter Hayman among a startling number of purposely selected creeps atop her government.[23]

It's simply by sinister elitist design that so many of the most powerful political puppets are mentally ill perverts who get rewarded for their despicable indulgences and systematically cherry picked to occupy the highest offices as easily controllable pawns doing the Zionist-Masonic-Illuminati bidding[24] - making war on the planet permanent,[25] enslaving the global population in insurmountable usury debt,[26] now topping over $244 trillion where near half the world lives on $5.50 a day,[27] while rapidly poisoning the earth[28] to kill off at least 90% of the human species.[29] The more suffering inflicted on humanity, the more these Luciferian beasts are rewarded with more power to harm.[30]

Because Scotland Yard discovered VIP heavyweights were perpetrating pedophilia crimes at the Elm Guest House, on short order Special Branch was called in to shut the policing operation down. As the lead agency within British intelligence reportedly setting up nationwide sexual blackmail operations, MI5 worked with the likes of Sir Jimmy, Peter Righton and Colin Peters and even murdering thugs like Sidney Cooke and his clan to serve as both dutiful procurers and avid partakers of children primarily from UK care homes and rent boy runaways off the mean streets of London. As ravenous child sodomizers feeding and exploiting the same child pipeline network, more than solid evidence links Sir Jimmy Savile, Peter Righton, Sidney Cooke and Colin Peters supplying children to the likes of such VIP politicians as Sir Leon, Sir Cyril Smith and dozens of other sirs pathologically serving themselves in government.[31] Recall from an earlier Savile chapter how for years Elm Guest House proprietor Harry Kasir boasted Jimmy Savile among his best friends, allegedly taking tea with him countless occasions.[32] MI5 had its web of go-to procurers and pimps that lined up VIPs at Elm and Dolphin Square with a steady diet of supplied victims. By the way, a Savile cohort and fellow derelict BBC DJ showing up on the Elm House guest list is none other than serial pedophile Chris Denning, still serving time after multiple child sex convictions.[33]

From the last chapter we learned that Peter Righton was considered the foremost policy expert on the UK Care Home System and like Sir Jimmy, enjoyed unlimited access to exploit and abuse hundreds if not thousands of victims in children’s homes and schools throughout the nation and beyond. His 1992 slap- on-the-hand fine of £900 for possessing child pornography followed by another “order from above” to prematurely close down his police investigation was no doubt due to Righton’s international trafficking reach to such notorious pedo-havens as Malta and Holland as well as Denmark and Sweden that to this day still await full exposure.[34] Among Righton’s closest pedophile buddies sharing boys between them is convicted, currently imprisoned Charles Napier, whose half-brother is the longstanding Tory MP John Whittingdale.[35] Child protection officer Peter McKelvie’s testimony and longtime quest to unveil Righton and Napier’s powerful links to the UK pedo-establishment is the very reason why MP Tom Watson in October 2012 proclaimed in Parliament:

> The evidence file used to convict Peter Righton, if it still exists, contains clear intelligence of a widespread paedophile ring. One of its members [PIE treasurer-Foreign Office teacher Charles Napier] boasts of his links to a senior aide [Foreign Office diplomat-PIE member Peter Hayman, convicted of child porn] of a former prime minister [Margaret Thatcher who blocked stripping Hayman of his knighthood[36]], who says he could smuggle indecent images of children from abroad [Cairo, Egypt]. The leads were not followed up, but if the files still exist, I want to ensure that the Metropolitan police secure the evidence, re-examine it and investigate clear intelligence suggesting a powerful paedophile network linked to Parliament and No 10.[37]

We’re still waiting for the full truth to come out, no help from the long faltering Home Office fiasco – Theresa May’s anything but Independent Inquiry.

As the tireless former child protection team manager who supplied key information resulting in Peter Righton’s 1992 conviction as well as Tom Watson’s 2012 Commons speech, Peter McKelvie has uncovered historical evidence of child sexual abuse committed by anywhere from 10 to 20 MPs and Lords still needing to be further investigated in Operation Fernbridge focusing on abuse at the Elm Guest House.[38] Along with MP Watson, 138 other Parliament members were convinced that an independent inquiry into VIP government abuse investigating crimes over the last three or four decades is necessary due to the cover-up by criminal obstructionists at Westminster and 10 Downing Street. Initially in the early days of Fernbridge, yet more overt evidence of cover-up appeared.

In 1982, the same year the Elm Guest House was raided, UK Customs Officer Maganlal Solanki employed at the Dover point of entry seized a package of child pornography consisting of three 8mm films, three video cassettes and an order form discovered in the possession of Russell Tricker.[39] One of Tricker's videotapes included footage of Leon Brittan sexually abusing a young boy.[40] That video was labeled "LB," matching the exact same initials as the only minister in the UK government in 1982.

But this is no first, recall that Sir Leon was captured on film before. From a March 2014 Mirror article:

They [Met Police] are understood to have already spoken to the ex-minister about another video that places him at a sex party involving teenage boys three decades ago. Now they are expected to speak to the customs officer.[41]

After a two hour hold in 1982, Customs released Russell Tricker free to enter England minus his child porn videos that were then allegedly handed over to MI5. Placing child abuse videos in the hands of the security services agency chiefly responsible for both creating and protecting the British pedophilia blackmail network is just what the MI5 boss Sir Leon would want. They don't call it security services for nothing. But the question becomes, whose security is served? Definitely not the abused children. Brittan's sick secret was safe with MI5, ensuring that such explosive evidence that could take down the entire Thatcher government would never see the light of day. It would later be learned that Russell Tricker was a PIE member whose job as a coach driver ferrying underage boys back and forth from Britain to Amsterdam[42] also worked alongside the likes of MI5 agent-fellow PIE member-pedo-procurer John Rowe and Spartacus advertising agent Peter Glencross to convert Elm Guest House from a gay B&B to shielded VIP pedophile sex orgy haven. And like his MI5 boss Leon Brittan, John Rowe was also a frequent visitor at the Elm boy brothel.

Onetime English teacher Russell Tricker was among an army of English expatriated predators living in the Dutch capital, forced to leave UK after getting caught buggering, then opportunistically profiteering from child sex trafficking as well as making and distributing child pornography. Besides the tape with "LB's" initials on it, another confiscated video tagged "GB10," according to a child abuse victim, is nothing short of a sweet shop catalogue serving up fresh British boys for sex slave orders within the international pedophilia network typically featured through organizations like Spartacus Magazine. After several minutes of train footage, yet another video entitled "Amsterdam Tramway Museum" suddenly switches to showcasing European boys on fully displayed abuse for salivating perverts to order, a slight variation of the window prostitutes in the city's red light district, except they're legal and child abuse isn't. The Amsterdam Tramway Museum was simply Tricker's front company for his trafficking ring, no different from the CIA always creating fronts for its nefarious and illegal undercover operations worldwide. Toff Travel and Toff Apartments were another angle of twisted Trickster's business web, masquerading behind his other child trafficking job as a coach driver ferrying young sex slaves across the channel.[43]

Claiming he was merely an innocent courier having no idea of the contents inside his seized brown paper package in 1982, the vile trickster's Tricker treats could trick no more, running into a temporary obstacle in 1992 when he was convicted of child sex abuse back in Holland. But like the notorious Warwick Spinks (discussed in more depth later in this chapter), perhaps because Tricker was also an early player in the London-Amsterdam pedo-nexus, he only did 5 months of a two and a half year sentence while his abused victim soon wound up murdered.[44]

Customs Officer Maganlal Solanki had another this time direct encounter with Leon Brittan himself at the Port of Dover also in the 1980s.[45] Spotting Sir Leon's chauffeur driving suspiciously, the diligent customs agent pulled the vehicle over and subsequently discovered yet more child pornography films in the cabinet secretary's personal possession. Solanki confiscated them but just like Tricker except with less waiting time, Sir Leon was allowed on his way. But Fernbridge detectives confirmed that they were in the process of being able to procure both Tricker's and Brittan's highly incriminating illegal videotapes. Apparently journalist-documentarian Tim Tate was able to learn from a Fernbridge insider that UK law enforcement held the videotape with conclusive evidence against Leon Brittan, yet purposely sat on it, keeping it from public exposure and the government's highest profile pedophile out of prison.

Also according to Tim Tate based on a recovered document from Richmond council archives, on the night of the Elm Guest House raid in June 1982, apparently the only young boy discovered inside the brothel was allegedly taken into police custody and interviewed that evening by a detective and a social worker. But Neil Kier was not a typical Richmond social worker but Officer-in-Charge (OiC) of Grafton Close Home.[46] No subsequent news accounts of the raid mention any boys from Grafton Close Children's Home ever being present at Elm Guest House on the night of June 19th, 1982. It would make no sense for standard protocol to be breached where a Richmond social worker fails to accompany the Special Branch raid on the Elm House unless the prearranged plan was to remove Harry and Carole Kasir's 10-year old son Eric from his home on 27 Rocks Lane and place him as the newest resident at Grafton Close Home that night.[47] It's more than likely Eric Kasir is yet another Elm Guest House abuse victim, and that VIP monsters like Leon Brittan sodomized him too.

Eric Kasir as the only young boy found inside Elm Guest House that night explains why Grafton Close Home's OiC Neil Kier was designated as the accompanying raid "social worker" since it had already been decided that Eric Kasir's new home would be Grafton Close Children's Home, ironically the very source of trafficked in victims abused by VIP guests at Elm. This premeditated arrangement also goes far in explaining why the Grafton Close fall guy of the Elm Guest House scandal would eventually be Kier's deputy head John Stingemore rather than mystery man Kier himself who's rarely mentioned for his part in supplying sacrificial lambs to the VIP child slaughterhouse.[48] Also the one count charge directly involving Elm Guest House abuse that Stingemore was facing at his upcoming 2014 trial no doubt would've implicated his partner-in-crime Neil Kier. Conveniently for Kier, just before trial Stingemore suddenly wound up dead. Neil Kier was off the hook, never in trouble with the law and never properly investigated by police because he was more than likely part of the MI5 blackmail operation. That same year 1982 Stingemore was hit with a sexual assault charge and terminated from Grafton Home but since the scandal was swiftly covered up, Stingemore was granted a 30 year reprieve to harm yet more boys in East Sussex.

It wasn't until MP Watson's speech on the post-Savile 2012 House of Commons floor that eventually launched Fernbridge to eventually bring down the lowest hanging rotten fruit at Elm - John Stingemore. With Fernbridge and Midland in dire need of suspects after millions of taxpayer pounds were invested ostensibly to uncover the Westminster scandal, similar to post-Savile Yewtree, Stingemore was thrown under bus as the pedo-cabal's sacrificial slime ball that in turn soon caught up to his fat unpriestly friend McSweeney who had also been shielded up to that point. Meanwhile, back in 1983 Neil Kier was quietly permitted to move on after two years as Grafton Home OiC and throughout the decades has clearly been protected from accountability, reportedly considered a witness and never a suspect by Fernbridge investigators. But a handwritten note from child campaigner Mary Moss based on conversations with Elm Guest House victims exposes Neil Kier in all his perversions:

Systematically buggered by Kier and other older boys. Too frightened to complain. Introduced to H by Keir. He used to ring & tell them were (sic) to go to pick them up and take to mens homes[49]

The three nameless MPs often referred to in the August 1982 press coverage of the Elm Guest House scandal as interrupted guests the night of the raid may well have included popular young Tory MP Jocelyn Cadbury elected to Parliament in a major upset in 1979.[50] With his father linked to Knights of Malta, the 36-year old heir to the Cadbury Brothers chocolate empire was questioned by police over the Elm House affair.[51] With an older brother and sister both dying mysterious, tragic young deaths, barely a month after the Elm Guest House raid in an apparent suicide, on July 31, 1982 Jocelyn Cadbury allegedly shot himself with a shotgun blast to the head at his parents' Birmingham estate.[52] Yet no one has been able to figure out his motive when golden boy had so much going for himself and according to friends never appeared depressed or suicidal before snuffing himself. If it was related to the raid, it's not like a VIP at Elm Guest House had anything to worry about as all have been fiercely protected. And if murdered, why and by whom? At the time, MP Cadbury was also Parliamentary Private Secretary (PPS) to then Minister of State for Industry Norman Lamont, among the most powerful men in the British government.

A well-known journalist was told that a decade prior to his death, a young victim is alleged to have reported Cadbury to her doctor, calling him a "sadistic pedophile."[53] Another reputable reporter claimed that Cadbury killed himself just two days after police had interviewed him about his involvement at the Elm Guest House. Might Cadbury have been among the three alleged MPs reportedly caught at the Elm Guest House the night of the raid, and if so, was Jocelyn the MP referred to when the only young child at the house "was rescued from horrific sexual assault" per a July 2014 Telegraph article?[54]

Aside from disclosing to journalist Mike James in 1986 that future Labor Prime Minister Gordon Brown is a satanic pedophile (see last chapter), Lord Norman Lamont possesses his own share of shady elitist ties to organizations as a faithful Rothschild employ, leading member of the Cambridge mafia, the Privy Council, the powerful Pilgrims Society, head of Le Cercle and Savile friend appearing on Jim'll Fix It,[55] in one way or another all linked to the unholy marriage between covert intelligence and high finance pillage and plunder, and its darker, hidden hand in illegal arms sales[56] and the global pedophilia network.[57] In the meantime, the man who thought the world of both his fallen PPC as well as Sir Leon, slammed Met Police for investigating historical child abuse.[58] Wonder what deep dark secrets he has to hide making him so nervous and upset over historic child abuse investigations?

The currently retired police officer who originally interviewed the one boy found in Elm Guest House in the 1982 raid was tracked down by Fernbridge police in 2014. The former officer described the victim as the most sexualized child he had ever observed. In 2014 this abuse survivor – now an entrepreneur in his early 40s residing in the United States – informed journalists from The Telegraph that he was sexually assaulted by at least one “senior MP.”[59]

This retired detective who interviewed the boy reported that the victim claimed he had been sodomized by at least nine men at Elm Guest House, but appeared surprised that the police were even involved since he’d apparently been repeatedly told that “Uncle Leon” “at the big house” (referring to Westminster/10 Downing Street) would take care of any problems that arose.[60] This again sounds more like the words coming from a young boy who’d been living at 27 Rocks Lane, not a trafficked in child from Grafton Close. No doubt with customers like a naked Sir Leon photographed with naked boys, and tea buddies like Sir Jimmy, the Kasirs must have had a false sense of inflated security and impunity while also begrudgingly paying an extortion police fee for added protection.

Immediately the interviewing officer realized “Uncle Leon” was Thatcher Minister Leon Brittan. Fernbridge police were perplexed that the council document failed to either mention “Uncle Leon” or include the boy’s signature. The retired officer explained that since the boy had been interviewed late at night, Neil Kier and the Special Branch officer agreed he could sign it in the morning after getting some sleep. But the next morning the child apparently “acted out” and allegedly refused to sign. This explanation may be a cop-out as the more likely reason the signature was never obtained may have more to do with the boy's last name.

When the interviewing officer from 1982 was then asked why the "Uncle Leon" reference was omitted from the original report, the former copper quickly grew agitated over the Official Secrecy Act leaving him vulnerable to prosecution, loss of pension and/or death. But with such crucial evidence left conspicuously hanging, Fernbridge sent a US Marshall previously on secondment to Metropolitan Police to interview the key witness in America. Though he initially did cooperate, by the time Scotland Yard was ready to dispatch detectives to speak more at length with him, he suddenly changed his mind.[61] This also makes more sense if it's Carole's son changing his mind knowing what they did to his mother. Also during Operation Fernbridge, police raided Harry Kasir's Richmond home in January 2013, the same month they raided Mary Moss's domicile in efforts to remove the last traces of VIP Elm House evidence. After that, Harry Kasir reportedly was planning to leave Britain to join his son Eric in Connecticut.[62]

Of course Harry Kasir is still denying that VIPs ever victimized kids (much less his own) at his Elm Guest House, insisting right to the bitter end that his three story eight room hotel only served gay consenting adults. Meanwhile, the key witness capable of blowing up the entire Elm Guest House cover-up, revealing the sordid filthy truth is none other than the proprietors' long lost son. But again, after the cabal murdered his mother, it's understandable that the entrepreneur would much prefer leaving his abusive past long behind rather than risk a family repeat a generation later. How can anyone blame him? Even without his explicit testimony, through bits and pieces enough of the truth has gradually emerged to form an increasingly clearer picture of what diabolical hell went down for kids trapped at 27 Rocks Lane between 1977 and 1983.

Eric Kasir's vacillation of telling what he knows segues into addressing the pertinent topic of victims changing their minds over talking to authorities about their past abuse. This has always been a major problem over the years as children far more than adults do not report their sex crimes, and only one in 10 adults report sexual assault. When the power differential between offender and victim is so extreme as in the Westminster scandal, especially when taking the dismal outcome into account of those who've tried to honestly report their abuse in the past, the small minority that might be inclined to report probably won't. And the reason is all too obvious. When the thousands of abuse victims throughout the decades whose firsthand allegations never resulted in any justice but only an enduring record of nonstop cover-up and subsequent pain, understandably it's rendered both UK law enforcement and legal system institutions not trustable.

Unfortunately this is the all too common result when hundreds of thousands of victims' past abuse disclosures have fallen on deaf ears and been summarily rejected, smeared and dismissed with no action taken against the perpetrators, producing a deep distrust and doubt that testimony given years later would be deemed any different, more credible or effective in facilitating their long-awaited justice. To have to relive past traumas in the face of providing yet more agonizing detailed evidence years later that's consistently failed to deliver a single conviction to any VIP pedophiles delivers the natural consequence of deterring already reluctant victims from ever coming forth again. To victims for all too obvious reason, UK law enforcement's disgustingly shameful track record covering-up pervasive elite sexual abuse justifiably relegates all legal authorities as thoroughly untrustworthy and criminally complicit. When the top-on-down system is historically so morally bankrupt, corrosively corrupt and grossly unjust, this is the resultant frustratingly painful pattern. Eventually victims give up trying to report abuse, especially when the one-sided power differential between perpetrator and victim has proven so unbreakably fixed and stacked against them.

Official channels like Theresa May’s Inquiry or the Metro police are not purveyors of truth at all because as systemically deployed truth suppressors their built-in purpose at all cost is simply to whitewash and maintain status quo of the tightly sealed cover-up. Otherwise, the plethora of collected photos and videos graphically proving Leon Brittan and other famous pedophiles would have been made public eons ago. By design Metro’s Fernbridge and Midland investigations hit a brick wall just as they were supposed to, complete with designated fraudsters to effectively smear all honest victims, not for lack of them offering real evidence to prosecute but simply because the system is so irreversibly rigged against truth and justice ever prevailing in a British court of law. Predictably by 2016 both VIP investigative operations were shut down in utter failure and waste, and still not a noteworthy creep or peep’s been heard or brought to justice from either a courtroom or the IICSA currently on artificial life support a full half decade after its proposal. The British Establishment will never come clean, too many gatekeeping pedo-foxes ensure that the massive cover-up will continue on forevermore. The Scotland Yard, Crown Prosecution Service and the IICSA alike are all rabbit hole deep in complicit criminal cover-up and they should all be indicted for gross obstruction and perversion of justice if the complete truth ever finally does emerge.

That can only happen when courageous victims as seasoned survivors resolutely unite in solidarity (like the Shirley Oaks Survivors Association as the prototype model) to empower and give voice to bravely speak out against their rapists, regardless of the unpunished criminals’ power, status or position. But because as separate individuals the victim’s voice has systematically been drowned out, negated and silenced by elites' consistent non-response, overuse of D-notices, libelous lawsuit threats, harassment and/or death, truth suppression is their reigning M.O. allowing aging perpetrators to successfully hide behind a colluded cover-up decade after decade after decade. An approaching critical mass soon to be reached among informed, educated and impassioned world citizens for justice, committed to supporting survivors' truth is the people's most powerful weapon of elite mass destruction. Clearly it's the elite that can't handle the truth, running like cockroaches for the nearest safe cover(up) of darkness. Like so called "Murun Buchstansangur's" valuable website,[63] it's up to us to keep the "spotlight on abuse" using the light of truth as both our guide and weapon.

For one solid week in June 1984, two full years after the Elm Guest House raid, mainstream newspapers across Britain and even America ran story after story of rumors circulating about an unnamed Thatcher minister caught having sex with boys during the so called "Cabinet Secretary scandal."[64] The press at the time reported that it could be the sex scandal of the century,[65] and, had the UK elite not resorted to its blatant cover-up, it definitely would have. Margaret Thatcher's then Home Secretary Leon Brittan was again the thinly veiled VIP culprit, although with so many of her gay pedophile minister pals craving little boys, it could have just as easily been "eeny meeny miny mo." (See Chapter 22)

The London newspapers reported that the government countered the "assassination by gossip" and "trial by media rumors" by sternly vowing it would not be tolerated. The prime minister herself threatened any publication that named the rumored pedophile minister would immediately be slapped with a costly libel suit. By month's end, Iron Lady's aggressively viperous response effectively shut down all further coverage, just like two years earlier when after little more than a week of newspaper frenzy, breaking headlines about the most infamous of all VIP boy brothels - the Elm Guest House - was suddenly silenced for the next several decades, likely with more D-notices.

During that final week of June 1984, one publication - Private Eye Magazine, went so far as to identify Leon Brittan as the alleged child abuser but made sure to call the allegation a smear leaked by a disgruntled rogue element within MI5 in retaliation for the home secretary warning he'd impose a major MI5 shakeup for "mishandling" the April 1984 Libyan embassy attack when London constable Yvonne Fletcher was gunned down.[66] Another lame explanation given for MI5 "spooks and loonies" to make up such a "lie" about Britain's first Jewish home secretary is the Zionistas' old familiar standby – anti-Semitism. But forensic evidence soon emerged to indicate the 1984 embassy gunfire volley was a CIA led false flag in cahoots with MI5 to whip up Thatcher tag team support for Reagan/Bush's vilification of Libya's Muammar Gaddafi,[67] the same criminal element echoed years later in 2011 with Hillary's hideous reaction upon learning that her assassination hit on Gaddafi was successful:

We came, we saw, he died, [hee, hee, hee].[68]

The treasonous Bush-Clinton-Obama cabal still lives on in today's deep state havoc.

The now defunct Private Eye rag did have strong links to MI5.[69] On top of a Jewish Home Secretary being the MI5 boss in 1984, by that time British security services were heavily controlled by Thatcher's security advisor - bloodline Jew Lord Victor Rothschild. In short, MI5 in 1984 was not anti-Jewish at all. At the height of the scandal, the Private Eye article went out of its way to emphasize that Brittan was innocently maligned, definitely not a pedophile but simply a target of a maliciously false, racist smear campaign, reportedly already confirmed by News of the World.

In a ploy to convince the head of the Press Association, Leon Brittan cunningly invited him into his office expressly to read the article as proof of the home secretary's "martyrdom."[70] So the "MI5 leak" was strategically and timely inserted with the intent to take the heat off its "venerable" yet unfairly maligned leader Sir Leon. At that very same time with Brittan losing/destroying two incriminating dossiers as the deserving object of unshakeable multiple abuse allegations over the ensuing decades, regardless of how hard the police, the complicit media and the corrupt UK politics machine try to cover-up his pedo-crimes, far, far too much evidence has long implicated Sir Leon as a slithering prolific serial pedophile.

British security agencies had set up the Elm Guest House as a boy brothel with a sauna and both hidden and unhidden cameras (for child porn purposes) installed in every room (a la Jeffrey Epstein style) to serve as a sexual blackmail operation to control not only British VIPs but elites flown in from Europe as well. Recurring media coverage reported in 1982, in 1984, and again every year since 2012 (once deceased Savile was publicly outed) that a litany of police probes and whistleblowers have confirmed surveillance evidence exists of video footage and numerous photographs of Brittan in action along with pedo-porker pig Sir Cyril Smith, royal traitor Sir Anthony Blunt, our old friend Sir "Kitty" and a host of other decked out, totally compromised VIPs either entering, frolicking inside or departing Elm Guest House. As is often the case when it comes to the voracious appetites of dead sexual predators, Fernbridge detectives played it safe confirming Cyril Smith visited Elm Guest House.[71] The fat man was reportedly even banned from Elm Guest House for a short spell after breaking a toilet seat and refusing to pay for it.[72] On another visit he got stuck in the sauna and had to be hoisted out.[73] Like Sir Leon, Sir Cyril was a guesthouse party regular.

Longtime social worker and child protection consultant Chris Fay testified that he had viewed compromising photographs of Brittan taken with young boys dating back to the early 1980s.[74] Reportedly abusing boys as young as 8, 9 and 10, a nude Lord Brittan in one photo is allegedly wearing only a scanty French maid apron with a naked youth sitting on his lap.[75] Recall another photo lost and found at a London train station a few years earlier depicting Sir Kitty dressed in women’s underwear surrounded by underage boys that in a flash was scooped up immediately by dispatched thugs from Special Branch, Britain’s longtime organized crime fixers. Reportedly that photo was used by Mossad to manipulate and control the aging superstar to pay homage to Zionist controlled Israel, which explains his frequent Tel Aviv trips.

But ultimately it was Iron Lady’s Home Office minister as the Lithuanian Jewish central pedo-gatekeeper from 1982-85 whose job was in charge of both British intelligence as well as all police operations, ensuring every investigation into pedophilia was called off and every dossier given him was lost or destroyed. While still alive during the post-Savile Operation Fernbridge, only once in a long pedo-career was Sir Brittan ever even questioned by detectives under caution over his alleged rape committed years earlier on a teenage girl,[76] yet even that critical piece of evidence was lost when someone accidentally-on-purpose “forgot” to push the record button.[77] Right up to Leon Brittan’s January 2015 death, Metro Police was purportedly still investigating fresh historic child abuse claims against him.[78] But like all his fellow derelict VIP monsters before and after him – Sir Jimmy, Sir Cyril, Sir Ted, and subsequently Sir Greville to name a handful, unpunished, aging child rapists exit this planet without facing their victims who are consistently denied their day in court.

So let’s do a quick recap of Lord Leon’s known and confirmed sex crime history against underage children. Over the years he’s undoubtedly had multiple accusers from the sex orgies at Elm Guest House and Dolphin Square alone, not to mention the one in South Yorkshire, he’s been frequently naked while photographed with naked boys, he’s played the child molesting villain abusing a boy in kiddie porn, was caught possessing child pornography videos by the same government agent who also separately observed Brittan on film abusing a child, was accused of date raping a teenage girl, was called in for police questioning but never recorded, was responsible for losing or destroying at least three different pedo-dossiers, and by as early as 1984, he was already being rumored and virtually outed as the most offending pedophile amongst Thatcher’s platoon of pedophile ministers. Yet his widow was awarded a million tax-paid pounds worth of police apologies in undeserved compensation while all his countless victims received no justice at all but for nearly all, only a lifetime of pain and hardship. For sake of his victims, we need to finally uncover the full truth and nothing but the truth so help us God.

Another important survivor’s story released through the Sunday People links two serial predators Peter Righton and Cyril Smith to sex orgies at both the Elm Guest House and Dolphin Square. While stuck in the UK Care System and groomed and abused by Righton and his VIP pedo-network from age 11 in 1977 until age 16, in April 2013, the man in his forties disclosed what he observed while on one of Righton’s trips to a local London park.[79] The boy witnessed Righton get out of the car and walk over to talk to a very obese man that the victim later identified on TV. While speaking to the famous MP, Righton would regularly look back over at the boy and Smith each time would nod and smile at him. As mentioned earlier, Peter Righton was one of Britain’s major child procurers delivering boys in the UK Care System to VIP pedophile politicians and high level civil servants, corroborated by the abuse survivor recalling that networker Righton would often boast of his bigwig contacts so high up in government. In the informant’s words:

> People have talked about a paedophile ring working in the UK. This was not just a ring – it’s more like the Olympic rings, interlocking on a large scale. It went everywhere. I believe it went to the heart of the Establishment. It needs to be investigated properly.[80]

After sharing his story with the press, the man said he was planning to talk to detectives at Metro working Operations Fernbridge and Midland investigating child abuse committed by Westminster members. Unfortunately as in every other UK police operation, Fernbridge and Midland also made sure to fail at arresting and charging any MPs, conveniently because of so much “lost and destroyed,” “unsubstantiated” evidence.

A closer look at listed frequent Elm House guest Colin Peters is also very telling.[81] Despite his and a buddy’s arrest in their early 20s for committing child sexual abuse in Naples, Italy back in 1967, swiftly patched over by diplomatic immunity and their Foreign Office boss Robin Jasper,[82] the British government saw fit to strangely seal the record of their Naples arrest at the National Archives for the next 87 years until 2056.[83] In 2015 after the Sunday Times raised the question over why would two junior Foreign Office employees Colin Peters and colleague Alastair Laing’s pedo-crimes be locked away for nearly a century, the Home Affairs ministers “agreed” to look into it.[84] In view of the fact that Oxford educated barrister-career diplomat Peters was essentially set free to abuse boys again and again over the next couple decades, at both the Elm Guest House and then in 1989 caught running the largest known pedophile ring in British history,[85] the question begs answering why 22 years earlier Peters' buggery crime in Italy would be so guardedly shielded from the public.

It's been speculated that Peters and Laing were procuring young Italian boys for such British cultural luminaries as WH Auden who for years rented a villa on Ischia in the Bay of Naples, regularly entertaining guests like Benjamin Britten[86] and EM Forster[87] as well as employing the services of underage local Neapolitan rent boys.[88] The then UK Minister for the Arts, Baroness Jennie Lee, may have rushed to their aid to not only protect British Empire's most acclaimed national treasures of arts and letters but also the internationally expanding pedophilia network as well. The same year that adult homosexuality (21 and over) was no longer deemed a state crime in Britain, the government may well have been invested in protecting both its world famous gay pedophile icons living abroad as well as its Foreign Service pedo-pimps, unwilling to risk public disclosure until 2056. Again to the depraved establishment it's a no-brainer, protecting pedophile VIPs ranks a far higher priority than protecting a few street urchins from Italy or the UK.

Speaking of the arts and pedophiles, Colin Peter's fellow shielded partner-in-crime in Italy - Alastair Laing - went on to become art curator and author for the National Trust,[89] as well as co-author of a book with the queen's art curator-Soviet spy traitor-fellow pedo Sir Anthony Blunt and Blunt protégé architectural historian Christopher Tadgell,[90] who's married to prominent Somerset Tory MP Jacob Rees-Mogg's mother-in-law who's an ex-MP herself.[91] Mogg's 2007 wedding guests included a couple known Elm guests as well. Lord Peter Brooke whose online essay on man-boy love is on full display[92] as well as Peter and Virginia Bottomley. As Health Minister she played a key role in closing Righton's criminal investigation while all three Peters – Colin, Brooke and Bottomley made the infamous Elm House guest list… small world amongst the pedo-elite.[93] Yet another Elm

Guest visitor is deceased Tory MP Solicitor General of Scotland, mentioned in previous chapters as pedo-gatekeeper Esther Rantzen's adulterous lover boy Sir Nicholas Fairburn.[94]

Another little dark chapter to add in the unending book of British pedophilia cover-ups on Health Minister Virginia Bottomley's watch (1992-95) involves a claim that the Hereford and Worcester head of social services for 20 years David Tombs went to senior civil servants in her health ministry while apparently she was busily closing down the police investigation on Peter Righton after his 1992 arrest. David Tombs, an office colleague of whistleblowing child protection manager Peter McKelvie, had access to the local police investigation on Righton and his VIP cronies in UK government and abroad, clearly indicating that a Westminster pedophile network was flourishing.[95] With such a childcare expert and UK policy kingpin like Peter Righton under criminal investigation as a serial pedophile, on behalf of UK Health Minster Virginia Bottomley, UK Chief Inspector of Social Services Sir William Utting requested from David Tombs a report based on the Righton police probe findings with social services' recommendations on how to prevent future child abuse in the face of predators operating within the UK Care System.[96] It was Peter McKelvie who wrote the report in 1993 alerting the Health Department of the alarming trend that pedophiles like Righton and Westminster VIPs pose to thousands of at-risk youth, having infiltrated all levels within the UK Care System. It included specific recommendations necessary to tackle the national pedophile ring engulfing Britain, urging deployment of a joint police-social worker investigation team.[97] Though the report was sent, Health Minister Bottomley completely ignored it, shutting down the ongoing Righton police investigation.

David Tombs as head of social services urgently also tried bringing the Westminster pedophilia network to the health department's attention as a major "national concern." During a July 2014 BBC Radio 4 program, David Tombs stated:

> It was coming across to me at the time that there were names there that were linked into the establishment, if you like.[98]

His dire warning of grave "national concern" to a senior health official drew the following reply, in David Tombs' words:

> I was told that I was probably wasting my time, that there were – and the words used were along these lines – that there were 'too many of them over there.' Now, I was talking about paedophilia. I was in the Department of Health and the 'over there' to me indicated, although the words weren't used, within Parliament or within Government and Whitehall.[99]

So on the one hand while the Health Minister's ignoring McKelvie's report and shutting down the police probe because it's implicating pedophiles atop the government, one of Baroness Bottomley's senior civil servants openly admits there's too many pedophiles in government to even bother trying to deal with them. Keep in mind this rampant pedo-epidemic and cover-up comes during the post-Thatcher years of the 1990s. Again, it's not about a particular era, leader or party because British culture-bred pedovore vultures running the United PEDO Kingdom have been doing it seamlessly and with full impunity for nearly a century.

Chapter 8 covered the satanic ritual abuse at daycare facilities throughout the 1980s from the controversial McMartin case in Southern California to military daycares at West Point and the Temple of Set's Lt. Col. Michael Aquino's

Presidio scandal. Chapter 10 further exposed Col. Aquino as a master mind control, programming wizard and pedophile in the CIA-Tavistock-MK Ultra Monarch mind control programs exported worldwide. Evolving from the Babylonian-Cabbalistic-Egyptian rooted deities that are currently still practiced today in various forms as Satanism, the Illuminati Order, Freemasonry, Knights of Malta, Jesuits to Luciferianism, the ruling elite have for centuries engaged in occult rituals involving blood sacrifice and satanic ritual abuse (SRA) of children (also addressed in earlier chapters).

The inner club of powerful pedophiles and their enablers often are members of these malevolent secret societies. When in the 1980s satanic ritual abuse caught America’s attention by storm, the CIA pedophile scientists swiftly dipped into their bag of tricks, pushing back with dubbing the sociological phenom gripping the nation as “satanic panic,” followed by their next rabbit out of the hat called the False Memory Syndrome, “scientifically” backed up by the FM Foundation to plant the seed of doubt in every abuse victim’s testimony, chalking it up to kids and misguided adults’ overactive imaginations and paranoia, i.e., nothing to see here folks, no such thing as satanic ritual child sex abuse.

Just as the CIA labeled critical thinkers and doubters questioning the official government’s false narrative behind the JFK assassination as “conspiracy theorists” as the forevermore M.O. calling card to instantly instill doubt and disbelief toward those intelligent enough to be skeptical of authoritarian lies. Embedded into the mass media propaganda machine, these CIA false labels are simply fabricated machinations strategically unleashed to shape, manipulate and control mass public opinion and perceptions of consensus reality within mainstream popular culture. In effect, the cunning elite are masters at turning the gullible masses into easily brainwashed, mind-controlled, misinformed, enslaved, non-thinking, robotic automatons addictively placated, mesmerized and distracted by addictive, button-pushing magic, while insidiously programmed to reject, scorn and ridicule those still capable of engaging in critical thinking, original, independent thought, or those who readily see through the government bullshit behind regularly staged false flags of state-sponsored terrorism at times killing its own citizens (3,000 on 9/11). This deceptive, sleight of hand defense mechanism utilizing cognitive dissonance to instantly on cue evoke a blindness through disbelief effectively burying and smothering the truth unfortunately has been extremely successful. So when child abuse victims' allegations are made, they're easily discarded or rarely taken seriously, especially when it's the famous perpetrators participating in satanic ritual abuse. Too unbelievable say the naysayers and deceivers as the Luciferian way to utilize propaganda as a WMD to systematically negate, obscure and silence the truth, discrediting and marginalizing those who seek it over elite's nonstop lies and calculated mass manipulation.

This temporary diversion can now come full circle, returning to the lovely Bottomleys. As a former psychiatric social worker turned Health Minister, after closing down the Righton police inquiry and suppressing evidence proving links to the Westminster VIP pedo-scandal, in 1994 Virginia implored British social workers and childcare workers "to take heed" of a report her health department financed, written by her friend and scholar Jean La Fontaine, claiming that there's no such thing as satanic ritual abuse.[100] Upon the report's release, Bottomley arrogantly declared that the "myth of satanic abuse" has been thoroughly exposed.

While over the last 31 years the Baroness has been Governor of the Fabian founded London School of Economics where she earned her master's degree (recall also Margaret Oppenheimer's alma mater),[101] for decades her pal Jean La

Fontaine as LSE’s anthropology emeritus professor has faithfully provided the “scientific” cover to subvert public exposure and awareness that organized ritual abuse is both real and far more prevalent than commonly known. Jean La Fontaine’s latest application of her lifelong work helped a high court judge in 2015 declare the alleged satanic cult’s reported ritual child sex abuse in the Hampstead scandal a complete hoax.[102] This story and its cover-up will be fully dissected in Chapter 26.

The genius Stanley Kubrick wasn’t murdered for nothing four days after his near final editing cut on “Eyes Wide Shut,” boldly revealing the elite’s inner secrets of perversion, occult ritual and death. With his next scheduled pet project purported to be an exposé on the rulers’ obsessional agenda with pedophilia, the treacherous crime cabal had seen enough of Stanley Kubrick. The man knew too many secrets and had the audacity to want to share them with the world. He often would remind his wife:

Be suspicious of people who have, or crave, power. Never, ever go near power. Don't become friends with anyone who has real power. It's dangerous.[103]

It’s as if he knew his own tragic fate, an all too common outcome of those who “step out of line and the man come take you away” as Stephen Stills once wrote. Staged murder made to look like suicide or in Stanley’s case a heart attack is untraceably common, and yet another running theme of this book befalling dozens who knew too much. Be it through academia, mass media or hired assassins, the elite’s waging an all-out war on truth on countless fronts with a hi-tech arsenal of lethal weaponry we don’t even know about.[104]

The evildoers in control of this planet that regularly practice organized satanic ritual abuse and murder of children en masse of course would rather have us all believing it doesn’t exist at all. Deferring to a post on the bold, feisty Chris

Spivey website entitled “The Who’s Who of Satanic Abuse,” a list of alleged members belonging to or affiliated with a particular British satanic cult or coven that includes such luminaries as both the former health minister Virginia Bottomley and Professor La Fontaine in addition to Ted Heath, Dame Margaret Hodge, Lord Peter Mandelson and other likeminded ministers, lords and MPs.[105] It appears to have been compiled during the years leading up to 2010 by an organization called the Ritual Abuse Information Network & Support (RAINS), an advocacy support group for ritual abuse victims, in this case a mind control SRA victim diagnosed with dissociative disorder named Helen G.

Since former Tory Prime Minster Ted Heath from 1970 to 1974 was mentioned in previous chapters and the paragraph above, this blackmail controlled Luciferian pedophile-murderer-traitor who sold Britain’s national sovereignty to the international cabal behind the European Union was involved as noted earlier in PIE, Jersey Island pedophilia and murder with procurer Savile and abusing boys in Northern Ireland’s Kincora scandal. But according to The Sun, the Wiltshire police probe apparently interviewed women claimants who as young girls maintain that Edward Heath sexually attacked children as a member of a satanic pedophile cult run by their own parents.[106] They accused the cult of engaging in ritual child sacrifice in churches and woodlands in southern England as well as Africa, stabbing, maiming, torturing and slaughtering up to 16 children from babies to teenagers, then as cannibals resorting to blood drinking and consuming organs. This of course would support other allegations like the one mentioned above that Ted Heath was a satanic cult participant.

After a thorough albeit heavily challenged and controversial investigation named Operation Conifer begun in 2015, in February 2017 Wiltshire Chief Constable Mike Veale gave “120%” confidence behind the alleged 30 people who came forth with allegations of abuse against Heath being "genuine."[107] Veale said their accounts are "strikingly similar" and "totally convincing," corroborating their veracity. At one point, Heath had no less than five police forces investigating him - the Met, Wiltshire, Hampshire, Kent and Jersey.[108] But his political power ensured cover-up. Veale's inquiry included 42 allegations from seven alleged victims from 1956 to 1992 that police claim today would require questioning under caution.[109] Turns out Heath's name was also on that dossier Barbara Castle gave to Don Hale in 1984 that Special Branch thugs swiftly scooped up. Of course David Icke outed him as a murdering pedophile-Satanist in his 1998 book The Biggest Secret, but too few were listening then a full seven years ahead of Heath's death in 2005.[110]

Now for a last look at fellow Tory, thin-skinned hubby Sir Peter Bottomley. Thatcher's former transportation minister sure knows how to get around. In addition to Elm Guest House and Monday trips across the Channel, a most memorable trip to Brussels on May 29, 1985 placed Peter Bottomley at the Heysel Stadium disaster where 39 rowdy, hapless football fans were crushed and trampled to death.[111] Two years later the queen honored knight happened to be at the Kings Cross underground station fire that killed 31 on the evening of November 18, 1987.[112] Rent boys in an underground café at Kings Cross may have been targeted by what's now been concluded to be a very deadly arson fire.[113] And just like clockwork, two years later again Sir Peter witnessed the Kegworth air disaster on January 8, 1989 when 44 passengers died. Unclear whether the lucky man was one of 79 passengers who survived or just happened to observe the tragedy while at the East Midlands Airport that day. Bottomley did not appear to be among the 300 guests attending the 30-year commemoration ceremony at Leicestershire in January 2019.[114] Bottomley's first close encounter with death during his harrowing 80s decade of disasters came while representing the British Council of Churches attending the funeral of assassinated Archbishop Oscar Romero in El Salvador on March 30, 1980, when 14 mourners around him were mercilessly gunned down.[115]

Imagine in less than one decade the odds of one man surviving four extremely deadly close calls and, at 74-years old today, still be alive to tell his grandkids, not to mention Sir Peter not slowing down as senior Conservative Member of Parliament for the last 44 years.[116] But then it appears that all his traumas from the 1980s may have caught up to both him and his wife in the 1990s. Her bizarre, reactive, anti-children's crusade as heath minster and his volatile, erratic, highly irrational, acting out misbehavior speak volumes. For instance, in a March 1993 article for the Independent, journalist Beatrix Campbell responds to the health minister's call to get tough on disciplining children under her brand of health care:

> Mrs Bottomley's attitude is a symptom of the public's retreat from its awareness of children's pain. Her vaunted vocation as a social worker ended when the new age began. Her message, indeed Britain's message, is simple: when children don't oblige by being innocent victims, when they are demanding and difficult, when they are awkward accusers, and when they don't care whom they hurt, including themselves, then adults are absolved. No longer ashamed, we blame the victim.[117]

While his wife Virginia was busy betraying at-risk kids in 1993, hubby Peter was doing his own anti-child thing too. In 1993 when a staff member working at Melanie Klein children's home in Greenwich was being investigated for his sexual debauchery abusing and contributing to the delinquency of underage girls, MP Bottomley rushed to the abuser's defense, barging in to interrupt a council disciplinary hearing with his unprovoked, off-the-wall tirade.

[118] An even more disgraceful meltdown on full public display was exhibited when the ranting madman tried in vain to halt Thames television from filming an investigation on the case. Not only did Sir Peter insist the program not move forward, but screamed in rage at the Thames board for allowing it. It was as if he was the sexual abuser being accused. What does that man have to hide if he never abused a child?

To put it mildly, neither Mr. nor Mrs. Bottomley were acting the least bit kid-friendly in 1993. As Beatrix Campbell alluded, the 1990s were even more unsafe for British children than the preceding decade when MP whistleblower Geoffrey Dickens first tried to alert the government about pedophilia amongst his peers. Was Sir Peter Bottomley unraveling because his name was being bandied about as an Elm Guest House regular, the notorious house of horror gnawing at the heart of the Westminster VIP scandal? Or perhaps it was those Monday Club cruises to Amsterdam and Brussels. Or maybe he was suffering from PTSD survivors' guilt. In any event, Bottomley was bottoming out, allowing all the rumors to rattle his cage to the extreme, only leaving observers with the impression that either the loose cannon was having a nervous breakdown or he was a man with much too much to hide for his own good. Eventually he threatened libelous action against any and all who dared make reference to his association with child sexual abuse.

Scalawag Magazine pointed out that he'd been groomed from a very early age for bigger and better things, yet the height of his political career prematurely eclipsed as mere Junior Minister for Northern Ireland, while his baroness wife's pinnacle reached the much higher perch as Health Minister. [119] Perhaps his questionable past and psychological instability as the ticking time bomb undermined and arrested his ambitious climb to the top. Or just one too many personal traumas from the 1980s.

In 1986 - two years into Virginia Bottomley's 21-year Parliamentary stretch, Dame Esther Rantzen began her BBC ChildLine operation reportedly filtering out calls from child victims of VIP sex abuse. It's rather telling that in a February 1989 Daily Mirror article covering the biggest pedophile ring bust in British history, that the final paragraph be devoted to soliciting Esther Rantzen's reaction. The ChildLine pedo-gatekeeper was promoting the idea that Britain urgently needed "a Ministry of Children" a full decade and a half before pedo-enabling Tony Blair made Esther's wish come true, selecting his former neighbor and Esther's Jewish "pedo-sister" Dame Oppenheimer the nation's first minister of children.[120] It's as if the elite's diabolical plan had already been mapped out years in advance, which is exactly how the Luciferian planetary controllers operate.

Skip ahead just four years to 1993 and we have on full display the health minister in charge of the UK Care System and her longtime MP husband blatantly not operating in the best interest of children. If only Britain followed the immediate advice of gatekeeper Rantzen and had a caring, nurturing minister of children like Dame Oppenheimer Hodge whose maltreatment towards her own poor Islington kids at that time was finally being exposed in the press, how under Margaret's loving care, kids were being sexually mauled and attacked every single day on her watch. Margaret and Virginia's system of care was crawling with so many child sexual predators that their public records were clearly protecting. Leave it for another decade before the "compassionate" Prime Minister Tony Blair to finally implement Dame Esther's splendid idea to create the position especially for Dame Margaret to so fiercely protect rapists, I mean children. Again, regardless of decade, leader, party, male or female, those entrusted with the responsibility of taking care of children, by their own overt actions on public record took care of rapists first and children last.

By far the biggest theme of this book on modern pedophilia is that the same protected child sodomizing VIP criminals keep getting away with it their whole lives through, with few if ever caught and brought to justice. As a semi-notable on par with Peter Righton, it took Met's Operation Hedgerow (1987-89) to finally temporarily stop career Foreign Office diplomat-serial pedophile Colin Peters (with nearly two dozen others' arrests as well), resulting in their 1989 convictions and his eight year prison sentence.[121] Police determined this enormous pedophile ring procured mostly local runaways off the English streets and public toilets as well as from one of his crime partner's cleaning business and youth football club. But despite the QC Foreign Office barrister's London based sex ring having links to the much wider international pedophilia and child pornography network stretching to Italy (recall Naples 1967 sealed till 2056)), Asia and the US, Operation Hedgerow was too underfunded and understaffed to follow up on its critical global leads.[122] Reporting on the case in 2013, the Independent stated:

[Colin Peter's pedophile ring] was used by highly placed civil servants and well-known public officials.[123]

A prominent MP and a member of high society were also implicated in the Hedgerow bust. But because trespassing on the cabal's worldwide pedo-operations was taboo even back in 1989, the two lead detectives' chain of command requests to expand the operation and establish a specialized international pedophilia unit were summarily rejected, especially once high society VIPs like a House of Lords peer and a West London vicar emerged as suspects. One of two lead detectives behind Operation Hedgerow, the retired Detective Chief Superintendent Roger Gaspar went on record in 2014:

I was warned off… 'Don't open the box, you will never get the lid back on.' I was warned not to open the box to find what else is going on because it would just carry on and on. [124]

Hmm… kind of like the IICSA and UK's never-ending cover-up.

Despite making 23 arrests resulting in 14 convictions compiling evidence of abuse of at least 150 boys in the biggest pedophile police operation in UK history to-date, after two years Operation Hedgerow was shut down in 1989 with no further media coverage exposing this tip of the global pedo-iceberg. Again, another police probe got too close to pedophiles at the top of the predator food chain caught sprouting their international tentacles far and wide. And let's face it, Colin Peters along with the likes of Peter Righton and Jimmy Savile were among the elite's prime crime players busily working, in Jimmy's own words, "undercover" with MI5 and MI6, coordinating pedophile rings serving the British Establishment VIPs nationwide and far beyond, but most importantly, serving the control matrix through its globalized blackmail apparatus.

In its ever-expanding control over blackmail operations, even further back in the 1970s, MI5 made sure to infiltrate Britain's largest, most influential pedophile organization - the Paedophile Information Exchange (1974-1984).[125] A longtime civil servant turned whistleblower at the Home Affairs Office maintains that Metro's Special Branch funded PIE in the late 1970s and early 80s as a subversive means of implementing sexual blackmail control over PIE member politicians.[126] Recall former MI6 deputy head Sir Peter Hayman was an active PIE member with a particular penchant for sexually fantasizing about torture and murder of children.[127]

With Scotland Yard's Special Branch having infiltrated PIE, Met Police obtained possession of a PIE membership list in 1984.[128] Additionally, the same week in 1983 that MP Geoffrey Dickens submitted a 40 page dosser on infiltrated pedophiles high up in government, the Scotland Yard also sent Home Office Secretary Sir Leon a PIE dossier outing 15 known pedophiles.[129] The then pedo-enabling Director of Public Prosecutions Sir Thomas Hetherington also received a copy. Yet he too sat on it. But more on Sir Thomas the protector later. Of course pedophile Leon Brittan proceeded to do what he did best, lose and destroy all evidence, especially when it incriminated himself and/or his VIP pedo-pals. Unsurprisingly, Brittan also refused to take action to abolish the Paedophile Information Exchange that Dickens had railed against, passively allowing public exposure pressure to disband the group by 1984.[130]

Geoffrey Dickens used Parliamentary privilege to name diplomat and MI6 deputy director Sir Peter Hayman as a pedophile due to a package found on a bus belonging to the pervert containing child pornography.[131] Yet while lesser known P. I. E. members were prosecuted and jailed in 1978 on either the same or lesser charge of conspiring to corrupt public morals as a mere member, Hayman was protected and later knighted by the queen. In January 2015 a secret 37 page file was released by National Archives detailing Margaret Thatcher and her then Attorney General Michael Haver’s preoccupation over concealing Sir Peter Hayman’s sick habits from going public in anticipation of Dickens threat to expose him in Parliament.[132]

For four years between 1981 and 1985 the courageous MP Geoffrey Dickens spoke continually of a Westminster-Downing Street pedophile ring linked to child pornography and organized crime, recognizing the evil and “vast sums” made abusing children on camera.[133] Geoffrey spoke of “big, big names – people in positions of power, influence and responsibility” involved in child abuse. How correct he was.

For calling attention to such a disturbingly taboo topic, MP Dickens was a very brave and honorable man surrounded by pedophiles and wolves in his midst. On November 29, 1985 he spoke for the final time about the scourge engulfing all around him and his nation:

> The noose around my neck grew tighter after I named a former high-flying British diplomat on the Floor of the House. Honourable Members will understand that where big money is involved and as important names came into my possession so the threats began. First, I received threatening telephone calls followed by two burglaries at my London home. Then, more seriously, my name appeared on a multi-killer's hit list.[134]

Yet for the trouble of telling the ugly truth, Geoffrey Dickens paid a price. The vast majority of his peers scoffed and laughed at him… again, the usual treatment of a truth telling whistleblower bold enough to utter such shocking allegations. And in an evil system, the good guys always get punished with character or bodily assassination while the bad guys always remain protected and even rewarded. After his 1985 speech until his death at 64 in 1995, the 16-year MP never raised the topic of pedophilia again, perhaps because he feared assassination for him and his family. Dickens' widow also allegedly destroyed her husband's only dossier copy because she thought it was too "toxic," probably code word for lethal.[135]

After Met Police submitted its PIE dossier to its Home Office boss Sir Leon and it too was lost or destroyed, it fails to absolve Britain's largest police force from its moral and legal duty and responsibility to make life safe from its long list of 300 known criminals.[136] And a high number of PIE members from that 1984 list were serial sexual offenders who acted out their perverted desires for many more years. In fact, a slew from that list were later arrested, often times even decades later.[137] But back in 1983 up to the time of their arrests, the Met Police Services (MPS) grossly failed to protect hundreds of child victims from self-confessed, known pedophiles, a most serious and grave dereliction of duty that an apology can never excuse.[138] One member was arrested 27 years later. Imagine how many young lives could have been saved from the lifetime damage and suffering caused by the reoffending crimes of 300 degenerates.

The most pressing question becomes why didn't Metro Police Services (MPS) do anything to stop known pedophiles from hurting children? The answer no doubt lies in the same reason the Met had virtually every investigation of a pedophile ring shut down prematurely from "orders from above." Clearly the MPS follow(ed) orders to let child abusers remain free to repeatedly harm children, especially if the perps happen to be MPs, lords and cabinet ministers. So the question becomes was there ever an explicit order, as in all the police probes stopped from "on high," not to investigate or surveil these identified men known to be on the prowl for their next child victim? And if so, who? Also from the notorious Elm Guest House list alone[139] as well as media covered chief constables outed for their pedo-crimes,[140] [141] it's more than evident that police chiefs too often turn out to be pedophiles themselves (not to mention order-following enablers),[142] and in the same way Sir Leon refused to out himself, senior pedo-police officers no doubt criminally resort to the same self-preservation tactics.

Investigative journalist Tim Tate in recent years has pressed the IICSA to thoroughly examine the Met's pervasive, systemic failure to protect children, in this case, passively sitting on a list of known PIE pedophiles.[143] But despite the fourth presiding IICSA chair Alexis Jay's stated objective to probe PIE regarding its VIP connections, no official criticism or substantive uncovering of police failures have emerged from her "independent" inquiry during the past four years since it began.

Don’t hold your breath. Just like Westminster, the Home Office, the Scotland Yard, and the Home Office mismanaged IICSA fiasco, none are willing or able to take a hard honest look at themselves and do the self-policing required to flush out the cold hard self-incriminating facts, much less out themselves for perverting and obstructing justice.[144] Yet even the most casual observer can readily see that the emperor wearing no clothes has been committing criminal cover-up for decades. Like the zillion past inquiries before it, unwilling to examine the mountains of UK child abuse and more mountains of cover-up evidence, the IICSA has only proven itself to be yet one more enormous smokescreen for gross incompetence leading to more avoidance and more cover-up.

The IICSA as a poorly staged Home Office production of half-truths has chosen to focus almost exclusively on Church of England and Catholic Church horror, so far sidestepping the elephant in the room, the wider web of horror inflicted on children by a powerful network of so called famous government leaders, several of whom have been Home Office ministers. Though the cherry-picked victims providing abuse testimony at clerical run schools have a history of horrendous trauma that deserve a public forum as well, the bulk of the pedophilia at the heart of the British government’s been forever covered up and so far conveniently glossed over by this sorry excuse of an inquiry.

Merely scratching the surface with Rochdale’s Cambridge House hostel and Knowl View residential school abuse only touching on the relative safe zone of one obesely dead whale is hardly getting to the core truth. And then for the IICSA to pass off the blatant lie, concluding that no “deliberate cover-up” of Cyril Smith’s over 40-year crime spree occurred is an insult to any human’s intelligence with half a brain.[145] The Inquiry panel also bogusly claims that police never quite possessed enough evidence to prosecute the queen's knight when everyone in his giant shadow knew full well he was a pedo-monster with incredible amounts of incriminating evidence over the years to secure a number of convictions.

Moreover, the timing of the stretched out Brexit saga designed to overshadow the feeble, never-ending now four-year run of the Independent Inquiry into Child Sexual Abuse are both scheduled to culminate at the same time in March 2019.[146] These two co-timed events are no accident. With the March 29th official EU exit, Brexit's been set up to provide sleight of hand distraction drawing attention away from the inquiry's scheduled public hearings on the Westminster VIP cover-up.[147] If it is anything like the Rochdale/Smith whitewash, this inquiry will go down as another duly noted government scam, a forgettable footnote in history books. Rather than expose the VIP child fuckers at the top of the predatory food chain, which would be the natural targeted objective of any actual independent inquiry, so far it's just been another sugarcoated version of nauseating cover-up. Meanwhile, a vast pedophilia network remains alive and well, feasting off the flesh and blood of child victims in today's booming global sex trafficking slave trade. Unless radical truth bombs begin surfacing in March, the IICSA will be regarded as the devil's charade. Hence, the Brexit debacle's been scheduled to take center stage.

As the "Jimmy Savile" of the British government, Liberal Democrat Cyril Smith and the infamous DJ's criminal lives ran an uncanny parallel course, intertwining constantly as close friends with the same addiction cut from the same predatory cloth active during the same five decades. Britain's two most prolific, high profile predators met each other at a medieval banquet in 1977 when Cyril sang and Savile invited the politician onto his Clunk Clink show.[148] Together they shared the same sick sadistic passion for destroying upwards of thousands of young lives, getting away with their countless crimes linked to many of the same crime scenes - Elm Guest House, Northern Ireland’s Kincora,[149] the Moors outside Scarborough and Manchester.

Both were openly rumored to be serial pedophiles for many decades but never served one day in prison. Born less than two years apart (the younger Smith in 1928), their crime sprees spanned the same marathon stretch from the 1950s to their year apart deaths (Smith in 2010, Savile in 2011). And they were both knighted by the queen as major players in the same pedophilia network, fully shielded by the uppermost echelons of British Establishment power structure - the government, royalty, police, intelligence agencies and Crown Prosecution Service. And early on in their illustrious careers, both Savile and Smith gravitated to immersing themselves tirelessly into philanthropic youth charities as the convenient cover to seize unlimited opportunity to prey on a deep reservoir of defenseless kids in care.

As a Rochdale businessman, council member turned mayor in 1966, Cyril Smith helped establish Cambridge House hostel for troubled youth, Knowl View special school for the learning disabled, the youth charity Rochdale Childer and, at one point, was governor of 29 local schools.[150] Uncovered Knowl View documents indicate that up to a quarter of the children at the school may have suffered sexual and physical abuse by Cyril Smith and friends.[151] The staff is accused of dereliction of duty in its failure to protect its vulnerable young students with learning disabilities.

Like Savile, Smith’s orchestrated “altruistic arrangement” at multiple youth facilities gave him free day and night access with keys to buildings to waddle from classroom to classroom and children’s center to children’s center with no questions asked, typically playing the depraved role of either “medical examiner” or disciplinarian or both in his abuse ritual of young boys. He’d unlock the door to boys’ bedrooms at Cambridge House and order youngsters to take their clothes off. His stated deceitful purpose:

I've been told you're ill and I've come to examine you.[152]

Three to four times the size of his victims and overpowered by his authoritative, intimidating presence, one victim recollects:

I remember his eyes watching me like a beast sizing up its prey. In the folds of fat around his neck I could see rivulets of sweat. Shaking with fear, I did as I was told. He bent down and clasped me with huge hands like shovels. Suddenly he grasped my private parts and began to squeeze. I screamed. Violence flashed in his eyes. 'Now, now, lad. I'll have none of your petulance. This is for your own good. I'm checking to see if there's anything wrong with you,' he said, as he forced his way between my thighs again.[153]

Thirteen survivors of Smith's abuse have come forward at Cambridge and Knowl View alone, indicating a likelihood of perhaps hundreds more during his near half century reign of terror, with his first confirmed incident dating back to 1961 grooming a Christmas carol choirboy. Eight brave boys from Cambridge House made abuse allegations against Cyril Smith as far back as the 1960s.[154] Most of his victims were unaware of his political title, only that the "fat man" as they called him was "Mr. Rochdale," and everyone in town knew Cyril Smith to be an extremely powerful local Godfather-like figure. The lifetime bachelor made his mother the "First Lady of Rochdale."

No matter if you're awakened in the middle of the night and forced downstairs to a room where the waiting fat man demanded a blow job, or if you had an allergy to eating meat and the big man brought a plate full of ham sandwiches and ordered you to eat, nothing else mattered.[155] Smith stuffed the sandwich down his victim's throat and within seconds, when the young boy became sick, the sadistic, enraged punisher delivered a swift backhand paw swipe with such force that the boy’s head hit the wall, causing a gash requiring stitches at the local emergency hospital room and knocking out his front teeth. But just like Sir Jimmy, victims were either disbelieved or deemed too powerless to go up against the most famous big man of Rochdale.

As Smith ascended to national prominence within the Liberal Party becoming an MP from 1972 to 1992, just as Sir Jimmy’s crimes were hidden in plain sight, both utilized the mass media to cultivate their larger-than-life, iconic personas that helped conceal their diabolical natures and insatiable appetites for perversion and wickedness. While Savile’s abuse was known to both police and BBC, Smith’s too was well-known to police as well as Westminster. But with their link to the power establishment knowing the inside dirty lowdown on scores of other VIP pedophiles, their open secret was kept secure, tightly sealed in complicit cover-up, a lifetime guarantee until after their deaths.

However, just 7 years into his two decades in Parliament, in May 1979 a little local monthly paper called the Rochdale Alternative Press known as RAP ran the front-page headline “Strange Case of Smith the Man,” graphically detailing the MP’s systematic abuse of boys at Cambridge House.[156] The astounding newspaper article printed in one of the two editors’ cellars was the culmination of checking out barroom rumors firsthand with staff, former residents and nine victims (four with signed affidavits) along with local police accounts that confirmed the shocking reality of what was going on. The powerful Smith the Man threatened a libel suit that he never carried out for obvious reasons that the truth is not libelous. Though the story immediately created quite the local stir, with larger London newspapers descending on Rochdale and the RAP editors for interviews, like all similar complaints, evidence and persistent rumors over the years, other than one more Private Eye piece rehashing the RAP fact sheet, it too passed and Big Cyril of Rochdale prevailed, increasing his voting majority at his next election. Smith's working class, man-of-the-people charm as a regular on the TV talk show circuit and countless public appearances, along with help from fellow VIP peers, police, security services and the CPS, the fat man managed to thrive for the next three decades before succumbing to cancer in 2010. Upon both Smith and Savile's passing, the queen honored evil giants were revered as "national treasures," prior to the truth of their darker sides posthumously emerging in sensational shocking exposure.[157]

At fat man's 80th birthday party, Liberal Democrat party leader Nick Clegg touted such praise as:

[Smith was] a beacon for our party in the Seventies and Eighties.

And upon fat man's death two years later, Clegg gushed:

He was a friend to everybody in Rochdale. Cyril Smith was a larger-than-life character and one of the most recognisable and likeable politicians of his day.[158]

Clegg, I got news for you - your demagogue was not a friend to the hundreds of his victims in Rochdale or anywhere else.

MP Cyril Smith represents the embodiment of corrupt collusion and cover-up at the highest levels - the nefarious nexus between criminal politician and his protectors - the police, DPPs, intelligence services and fellow pedo club members. In both the Savile and Smith cases, decent rank and file cops were repeatedly thwarted trying to bring justice to victimized children, putting away the beast only to be reprimanded and ordered to stand down, muzzled and threatened with prosecution under the Official Secrets Act.[159] Smith was in detectives' crosshairs for prosecution at least three times,[160] while Savile was investigated in at least seven probes.[161]

When police discovered indecent photos of children in Smith's car, suddenly a mysterious call from London arrived with instructions not to charge him.[162] The serial molester was apprehended on numerous occasions at the St. James Park public toilets in London for gross indecency but orders from above were delivered like clockwork to always bail his lard ass out. In 1981 police set up surveillance of a flat in the Coronation Buildings in pedo-infested Lambeth, less than a mile from Parliament. Cyril Smith and a senior member of British intelligence were caught on tape attending a sex orgy.[163] Police picked him up and detained him a few hours before his release. The sergeant wanting to hold him was warned. After a police instructor leaked that there were 144 formal abuse complaints against Smith, she was abruptly silenced and reassigned. That's the screwed up system. Like the child victims, good cops wanting justice are always punished or threatened.

It's worth interjecting here that although Elm Guest House may be the most infamous of all locations where VIP child abusers gathered for orgies through several highly organized, convergent pedophile rings, it's definitely not the only place. Recall the plan to franchise the Elm brand to bring a boy brothel to every community. Though typically victims from Grafton Close Home and other children's residential facilities across Britain were sexually assaulted by staff and occasional outsiders in their own care homes, besides Elm Guest House, youth were frequently transported to other private homes as in Lambeth's Coronation Buildings or Dolphin Square flats or individual estates belonging to VIPs in the Greater London area and beyond. Plus it was also common for children from other areas in Britain and Northern Ireland to likewise travel to sex parties in any number of destinations around London and elsewhere. At times boys and girls from London were trafficked to other distant locales such as Northern Ireland, North Wales, and Jersey Island or abroad to Amsterdam and other cities. Elm House victims maintain they were brought to Amsterdam to be further abused there.[164]

As alluded to earlier, Britain’s pedophilia network was rapidly expanding throughout the 1980s both nationwide and internationally. Security services and a growing web of infiltrating homosexual pedophiles saturating social services, education and the burgeoning sex tourism trade, interfacing with likeminded senior civil servants, local and national politicians and top law enforcement personnel had built a vast pedophilia network that was both thriving and fairly well-insulated by the early 1980s. Hence, it’s almost by fluke that tip of the iceberg scandals like Elm House broke out at all as the ever-tightening grip of secrecy and deception grew during the unfolding national cover-up.

An MI5 memo surfaced at the October 2017 IICSA hearings showing that the Director of Public Prosecution (DPP), the queen knighted gatekeeper who decides what cases get prosecuted or not, Sir Thomas Hetherington in 1979 lied to the press insisting that no record of a police inquiry from 1970 existed exposing Cyril Smith as a child abuser.[165] Though for decades MI5 was fully aware that Smith was repeatedly accused by countless victims, but as the “defender of the realm” (not to mention primary architect of UK’s pedo-network), its primary responsibility was never to expose but only to protect pedophiles. Of course like any intelligence agency, to this very day British security services have always attempted to fulfil their duty to ensure that pedophilia blackmail operations remain hidden, intact and covered up. And as another integral player in this evil scheme, so have all the DPPs throughout modern British history also protected the freedom and reputations of scores of child rapists from the VIP Establishment.

Hetherington was simply doing his expected job lying to the media in order to cover up VIP sex crimes, just as his DPP predecessor Sir Norman Skelhorn in 1970 chose to minimize and cover-up Smith's depravities, claiming not enough credible evidence to secure a conviction. This tactical decision came after eight young men independently corroborated each other's accounts, reporting that long before Smith was even an MP, he'd been sexually molesting boys at Cambridge House in the 1960s. But Skelhorn claimed the victims were not to be trusted.[166] See how victims are routinely and historically treated, as if they're the criminals? From 1889 to this 1970 case right up to the present, child victims from the poor class are routinely double punished and invariably the criminal elite are shielded and allowed to escape justice to abuse again and again. Fact - the UK legal system has absolutely nothing to do with justice at all, delivering only injustice. In a letter to the Chief Constable, DPP Skelhorn in 1970 also lied:

[The claims] were somewhat stale and without corroboration. Further, the characters of some of these young men would be likely to render their evidence suspect. [167]

Always it's the victims on trial, never the VIP perps.

During that same year in 1979 when pedo-protecting Hetherington lied to the press about a previous police inquiry into Smith abuse, at a Liberal Party election meeting held at a volunteer's flat in Manchester, Sir Cyril made his grand appearance. After breaking a chair from his overweight and then sitting flustered next to a 14-year old boy, Smith's impulse control lapsed and he groped the lad's genitals who screamed so loudly in front of the shocked into silence crowd, it instantly created a scandalous public scene.[168] The couple at the flat hosting the event were appalled and bitterly complained to the party headquarters in London. The Liberal Party's official response was to offer them £200 in hush money to cover any “inconvenience” caused. As the party leader at the time, David Steel has claimed he never heard of this incident. But after reading the Private Eye article that same year in 1979 outing Smith, Steel maintains that he confronted Big Cyril and simply took his word at face value that he never abused children. Yet in 1988 Lord David Steel recommended the sexual predator for knighthood despite being told of Smith’s numerous abuse allegations.[169] Let’s face it, if you’re part of the pedophilia club, the system never fails to reward you with its royal blessings as virtually every suspected or known pedophile is a royally honored knight.

In 1985 Director of Public Prosecutions Hetherington made a special trip over to the West End Central police station in person to demand that Metro’s Operation Circus be shut down as police surveillance had captured in photos senior politicians, entertainers and a Scotland Yard commander abusing rent boys in Piccadilly Circus.[170] In September 2015 it was discovered that this treasure trove of VIP evidence of child abuse documentation previously placed in a Special Branch registry and stored in police archives has suddenly gone missing. While the red docket files apparently disappeared from archives, the so called X4 files of unsubstantiated information on pedophiles believed to have been “a goldmine” were shredded. Dozens of police probe shutdowns and episodes of disappearing evidence are the cornerstone to cover-up.

Though apologists commonly claim if the same incriminating evidence was presented to CPS today against any VIP, regardless of status, an arrest and prosecution would most certainly follow since there’s been a major sea change in cultural perspective regarding institutionalized child abuse. Is that why still not one MP or minister has ever been charged and gone to prison? This is just more bullshit rhetoric used frequently as an excuse to explain away the massive unending cover-up still ongoing today.

Attorney Alan Collins, who represents abuse victims, states:

> It would appear there's still sometimes this underlying attitude that when it comes to child abuse allegations that the children, the victims, are not necessarily believed.[171]

Just like the Elm Guest House and Jimmy Savile scandals, on multiple occasions in 1970, 1979, and again in both 1998 and 1999, compelling evidence to prosecute Smith was criminally ignored, blocked and repeatedly covered up in conspiracy by police, MI5, DPPs and CPS in spite of the open secret swirling around this diabolical MP's entire political career.[172]

Assigned Lancashire Special Branch officer Tony Robinson went public in 2012 reporting that he inadvertently stumbled upon a very thick dossier deliberately hidden away in a Special Branch safe in Lancashire during the 1970s containing a plethora of complaints compiled over the years by dozens of Smith victims.[173] Robinson asserts that he then received a call from an MI5 officer requesting that the dossier be sent to London ASAP. Tony Robinson also said that the Director of Public Prosecutions had previously reviewed the file. Proof the dossier had already passed through the DPP's hands was self-evident:

> Written across the top of it were the words: 'No further action, not in the public interest. DPP,' [adding]: The police now say the file is lost. It seems like there was a complete cover up to me.[174]

Ya think? Another "missing dossier" to join the slew of destroyed evidence is but one more confirmation that MI5 and Special Branch's criminal responsibility and priority #1 is to seize and disappear all "loose ends" in "defense of the realm" in order to keep evidence of VIP pedophilia covered up at all cost.

Recall from the last chapter in the early to mid-1990s the heroic efforts by Dr. Liz Davies, calling urgent attention to the out of control pedophilia inside Margaret Hodge's dozen Islington care homes, ultimately hauling her painstakingly collected hardcore evidence into a Metro Police superintendent's office. He apologetically informed Liz that powerful figures still control what gets exposed and what is systematically covered up and concealed, regretfully disclosing:

I won't be able to investigate here at Scotland Yard.[175]

Clearly the supe was alluding to higher-ups in Special Branch, the security services, the British government and their puppet masters in control of the massive child abuse cover-up. Former Special Branch Lancashire Detective Tony Robinson said after he'd gone public in 2012 divulging the call he received years ago from MI5 in London ordering the immediate transfer of that hefty Smith dossier to MI5 headquarters, the now 85-year old in failing health said in 2014 that he received another call from an old boss warning him he'd be prosecuted for violating the Official Secrets Act if he talks to the press again.[176] This is the cabal weapon ensuring the cover-up continues. That's why MP John Mann's sponsored 2015 bill calling for amnesty went down in defeat. Virtually the entire British government is still guiltily in on the nonstop cover-up.

In each and every scandal from Jersey, Islington and Lambeth to Elm Guest House, Savile and Smith, in order to protect the security services' engineered pedophilia network and sexual blackmail operations, missing and destroyed files in every single case is the name of the game under the pretext of "national security" to keep the tightest lid on United Kingdom's longtime cover-up. Though the decision not to prosecute Smith is said to have come "from the top," spanning several prime ministers in office at the time,[177] it bears in mind to recognize that "the top" is not the elite's selected puppet politicians “running” the country. Again, the most important decisions that make, break or save a particular government or entire British Establishment, virtually always originate with the bloodline puppet masters pulling the strings controlling the planet.

Another Lancashire Police officer doggedly in pursuit of Cyril Smith sex crimes also repeatedly ran into a brick wall. The now 86-year old 35-year police force veteran Jack Tasker was threatened by his higher-ups on a number of occasions.[178] Facing loss of job, career and livelihood along with a two year prison sentence and exorbitant fines, in 1981 Tasker and his team of undercover detectives were abruptly forced to cease operations and turn in months of hard evidence on Smith. After painstakingly collecting a massive amount of surveillance building a strong criminal case against MP Cyril Smith and a number of his peers as well as a senior intelligence head and high ranking police commanders all caught on videotape and in pictures abusing trafficked boys from care homes at sex parties at Elm Guest House, Dolphin Square and other locations, it turned out all for naught as the cover-up of the century was already well underway.

Just prior to this monumental setback, the vice squad actually had arrested Smith and held him for several hours at the police station before his release. But that wasn’t the first time Det. Tasker had the fat man in his grasp. Eight of Smith’s victims as far back as 1969 had reported abuse to Tasker’s investigative unit while Smith was still a Rochdale council member.[179] Tasker questioned Smith, stating he had the stuttering, sweating pig near breaking point. But Tubby’s mommy, soon-to-be “First Lady of Rochdale,” just happened to be a cleaning woman at the police station who overheard the rumors and word quickly got back to her big momma’s boy. The next thing Jack Tasker knew was:

We were ordered to stop. We were visited by a superintendent and a chief superintendent. They were from > the Lancashire Police HQ at Hutton.[180]

Detective Jack explained his “superiors” forced him to unlock a drawer containing all the files on Smith.

> They told me to take everything out that relates to this case and added ‘We mean everything, every scrap of paper and every note you’ve ever made’. They said we would be back in uniform if anything went wrong.[181]

Now all these years later, still fearing loss of pension and still facing threat of prosecution, the only way for former police officer octogenarians like Tasker and Robinson to freely report their earlier investigative findings from a half century ago is through either granting them amnesty or repealing the Official Secrets Act.

In 2015 anti-child abuse campaigner turned former Rochdale MP Simon Danczuk (he too has been neutralized as alluded to in a previous chapter) stated:

> He [Smith] was protected because he knew of other paedophiles in the networks in which he operated and had he been prosecuted, then I think those other people would have been named by Smith and that's why they ensured that he was never put before the courts.[182]

With his Smith investigation shut down again in 1981, former detective Jack Tasker maintains that Cyril Smith was yet another major supplier (just like his buddy Savile) to the VIP network.[183] Moreover, Tasker asserts that a powerful spy web (MI5) obstructed all law enforcement efforts to arrest and convict the serial child predator, citing the same reason - fear that if the fat man was arrested, he wouldn’t hesitate to bring down with him scores of fellow VIP sickos in politics, entertainment, the high courts, police and security services.[184] Also similar to suspicions surrounding his satanic DJ pedo-pal Sir Jimmy, detective Tasker believes Smith could have been involved in murder at the Elm Guest House:

> Smith's name even cropped up in talks with colleagues as a possible suspect for a murder at the Elm Guest House in London, where we knew Cyril was a regular visitor. I believe he was supplying kids for a lot of powerful people.[185]

Just as Savile was entrusted by the pedo-saturated Thatcher government to keys to the pedo-kingdom's asylums, so was Smith. According to Jack Tasker:

> Smith was a regular visitor to Buckley Hall Detention Centre, which was full of boys. He used to come and go as he pleased. People who worked there told me he had his own set of keys – not to the perimeter but to the interior. He used to come in, pick his keys up and wander around alone. He was allowed access to anywhere inside and could have anything he wanted.[186]

So many striking parallels shared between this psychopathic Smith-Savile duo seem to run on indefinitely – all by sinister design of course. Protected by MI5, both were dominantly aggressive, larger-than-life figures creating a culture of sexual predation and exploitation around them that invited and enabled other pedophiles to operate safely within their social professional territory to get away with their flagrantly vile child sex crimes. A Rochdale HIV prevention specialist reported to the council that men as far away as Sheffield would come to Rochdale's Knowl View just to prey on young boys with learning disabilities. Smith's unprecedented clout and influence in Rochdale sheltered other pervs with the same deviant habits from run-ins with the law.[187] After all, they owned and relished touting their reputations as Godfathers. In effect, both Savile and Smith were co-opted as undercover pedo-operatives for UK security services to spread and expand the pedophilia network. And partially as a result, Rochdale became a pedo-haven for pedophile gangs flourishing in the city for decades (the out-of-control UK pedo-gangs covered exclusively in Chapter 27).

As untouchables, both Smith and Savile closely operated within UK's shared pedophile network together, playing "undercover" linkage roles throughout the care home and NHS system… another reason MI5 had both their backs and that each has been implicated in virtually every British scandal. Theresa May's Home Office controlled "dependent inquiry" lost whatever little credibility it had back in April 2018 when it concluded that no "deliberate cover-up" by Rochdale authorities was ever found and that police never quite had the goods on the beast.[188] Two boldface lies.

So let's do a quick recap on this over-bloated, dangerous asshole's history. For decades Smith had his way as the king of Rochdale abusers. He and a number of other VIP buddies like Sir Leon and Sir Jimmy reputedly raped boys procured by the murdering Sidney Cooke gang[189] at the Elm Guest House among several other locations.[190] Smith also hooked up with another notorious pedophile networker specializing in schools and care homes – Peter Righton.[191] Like his fellow high level cohorts Righton and Savile, Smith also took full advantage of possessing keys to countless youth facilities as an MI5 protected serial offender.

Cyril's diddling days likely started in the late 1950s when lads were observed frequently entering his business from the rear and placed him under surveillance according to CID Mike Smith.[192] At least three times Lancashire Police collected enough evidence to turn it over to CPS and put him away but as always, Britain's CPS aka Chief Pedophile Savior insisted never enough evidence.[193] Senior Liberals in his party knew he was a pedophile, yet said nothing.[194] Up till two years before Cyril's parliamentary career began, longtime Liberal Party leader Sir Jeremy Thorpe was Smith's friend and ally as a fellow raving child rapist.[195] Thorpe's successor David Steel also knew, yet it didn't stop him from promoting the child sodomizer for knighthood.[196] And with MI5 vetting, queenie - the royal pedophile rewarder - also had to know. Pedophilia has rule over and controlled Britain for a very long time.

Now you can see why in May 2013 the Greater Manchester Police (GPS) suddenly decided to abort an ongoing inquiry into Sir Cyril, declining to even take up the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children's (NSPCC) offer to assist in a joint fact-finding investigation into the prolific abusing Liberal chief party whip.[197] Though at the height of the Jimmy Savile revelations in late November 2012, GMP held a press conference announcing Smith was a prolific abuser who today would be prosecuted, requesting victims to contact police in Manchester's freshly opened police inquiry, seemingly all gung ho at the time to unravel the full truth.[198] Yet less than six months later, Manchester's enthusiasm to dig deeper was already spent or more like never genuine. With all that was publicly surfacing on Smith's crimes, the pedo-protecting GM Police were afraid what other bombshells might be unhinged. And unlike Yewtree, no sacrificial lambs of washed up celebs would be in the offing, only headliner MPs, lords and ministers at the heart of the pedophile saturated government would be exposed and the crime cabal simply could not permit that. So the GMP probe was suddenly a no-go, a most predictable outcome when it comes to UK police inspecting VIP pedo-scandals. If no stone was left unturned on all 29 stones of lard-ass Sir Cyril, the entire British pedophilic empire would have crumbled into ashes, VIP monsters would finally be rightfully rotting in their own prison hell on earth and the world would be a better, safer place for both children and adults alike.

Media efforts to explain this top criminal politician's longtime impunity typically also cite the politics of the day when a weak Conservative and then Labor Party strategically took turns courting Liberals to capture the coalition majority.[199] But again, it goes far deeper than fickle party politics. Britain’s encrusted pedophilia network consisting of establishment VIPs from every major party has always been immune from public exposure and accountability right from the start. There’s nothing new here. The evil fucks that are the elite powerbrokers on this earth have operated above all human-made laws as unreachable, untouchable, godlike creatures ruling over this planet for millenniums. The truth is that basic and simple.

Look no further than how the elite has managed to do it, utilizing mass media to maintain global idolatry toward the British (actually German Nazi) royal family and its personal history steeped in pedophilia, Freemasonry and Nazi-fascism. Their dark depraved truth has been carefully concealed by the international crime cabal’s media propaganda machine so that an adoring, misinformed public can continue fawning and marveling over their every move and latest baby bump tribalism. Quite a nice PR setup they got going to conceal their real history. As part of today’s celebrity worshipping culture, it provides titillating Soap Opera Theater designed to entice a duped masses into remaining blind over the controllers’ continual rape and pillage of both our babies and our earth. But more on the despicable royals’ story awaits in Chapter 30.

Speaking of masonic royalty, it’s worth mentioning that the queen’s hubby Prince Philip, 66 years a card carrying Freemason,[200] atop his expressed wish list is the demented desire to reincarnate as a killer virus to wipe out millions of people in the elite’s overpopulation hoax.[201] Looking into a crystal ball, the Duke of Edinburgh’s favorite number must be 666. The queen’s hubby and the queen’s cousin Prince Edward, current Duke of Kent, recently the former grand master of all UK Freemasonry,[202] personify the crown’s rule over the highest degrees of the masonic brotherhood worldwide, synonymous with New World Order Luciferianism.[203]

As such, the Freemasonry-Zionism nexus is heavily infiltrated and seamlessly embedded deep within the queen’s Commonwealth, particularly its justice system, police and security services all covertly tied to both proliferation of pedophile rings and their scandalously sealed cover-up.[204] At this point, we know all too well that the Luciferian matrix controllers have at their beck and call the global intelligence community as their private army of fanatical foot soldiers subversively, dutifully promoting worldwide pedophilia both covertly through child sex trafficking slavery and subliminally through mass media sleaze as mere lifestyle choice of the rich and famous in a “monkey see, monkey do” imprinting sequence.

Regarding the indelible MI5 presence on the London centerpiece scandal - the Elm Guest House, British intelligence services back in the late 1970s and early 1980s were reportedly hard at work partnering with the international Spartacus Club, catering to homosexual pedophiles on the prowl the world over, preying on boy victims within the larger global pedo-network.[205] Information on boy brothels worldwide, published in the Spartacus International publication was allegedly supplied by various intelligence blackmail operators - chiefly the CIA.[206]

One such promoter provides yet another key link between MI5 and the Elm Guest House boy brothel - John Rowe, the intelligence liaison who allegedly organized trips to Amsterdam for members of the ultra-right wing Conservative group known as the Monday Club, many of whom were reportedly also frequent Elm House guests.[207] MI5 operative John Rowe was largely responsible for trafficking British care home kids and rent boys to the world’s pedo-snuff center - the Netherlands.[208] As an infiltrating MI5 PIE member as well, this high-flying pedophiling secret agent man suggested the use of Spartacus Magazine to advertise Elm

Guest House. And when in London, Rowe's frequent houseguest from Amsterdam was none other than Spartacus commercial manager and pedo-party ringleader - South African Peter Glencross.[209]

These guys' perverse world vision planned to incorporate, expand and franchise the Elm Guest boy brothel model not just nationwide but far beyond.[210] Recall how Margaret Hodge and her pedovores infiltrating her and other boroughs and social services were proliferating into a far wider secret club network across the British Isles, a likely reason why Blair chose her as UK's first Children's Minister, to replicate her fine work in their old Islington stomping grounds throughout the world's pedo-epicenter Britain as the ruling elite's global beta test. These derelicts Rowe, Glencross, Stamford, Tricker among many others were the early "visionaries" laying the demonic groundwork for a pedophile ring coming to a neighborhood near you soon.

Along with pedo-pimp Terry Dwyer, John Rowe was instrumental in bringing the global pedophilia guide Peter Glencross and Carole Kasir together, resulting in Elm Guest House's shift away from serving the needs of just adult homosexuals to satiating the warped tastes of pedophile predators for its bread and butter with ample supply of gravy and a cherry on top.

It turns out that John Rowe has an older brother Michael Stuart Rowe whose gay partner Ralph A. Williams formed a company using parts of their names called RAWRO Investments Limited.[211] As the Elm Guest House "money men," RAWRO is on record paying for the installation of the sauna room at the Elm Guest House, its "state of the art" bondage toys and sophisticated videotaping system (for its early 80s time) as well as advertisements in the local gay paper Capital Gay. Michael Stuart Rowe often styled himself a wannabe Captain Michael Stuart Rowe or Captain Paul Rinehart, utilizing many fake names because at the time

Elm was busted, Michael was a 39-year old hustler out to make his fortune using the Elm Guest brand for marketing VIP pedo-parties sexually abusing trafficked in boys from local homes under Richmond council care.

After things went south at Elm, in later years Michael Stuart Rowe turned extremely litigious against business partners losing every lawsuit in the late 1980s and 90s, all ultimately thrown out of court. In one of his letters that found its way into court records, Michael Stuart Rowe claims at 8-years old he was sexually abused by his father and passed around papa's pedo-ring operating in the early 1950s, alluding to "scores to settle" by suing his father over his deceased mother's estate. Apparently his conscience can't be bothered to factor in all the suffering the many victims that his Elm House affiliation brought. Michael Stuart Rowe's name can be found online listed as both an officer for several now defunct corporations[212] as well as litigant in lawsuits.[213] Also Jonathon Patrick Rowe, alias John Rowe, born five years after Michael in 1948 and also listed as an officer in one of the same out-of-business companies that Michael ran, is ex-MI5 John Rowe currently comfortably retired in Australia. Both Rowe brothers appear to still be alive today. But likely not so well in view of their Elm Guest House misadventures' still unpaid karmic debt, apparently granted yet another free pass by the now defunct Operation Fairbridge. In the same way it isn't in the crime cabal's best interest to open up the Cyril Smith Pandora's box, neither is it the Elm Guest House. IICSA won't touch it that's for certain.

In between pimping duties via his own rent boy agency called Lord Fox, John Rowe's friend Terry Dwyer (aka Terry Allen) allegedly carried on a homosexual affair for two years with notorious Conservative Party MP Harvey Proctor.[214] But Dwyer proudly boasted that he also supplied his MP lover with up to six boys a week for his sensual pleasures.[215]

Lying to save his MP seat when more of his boy-toy victims kept emerging in the press, in 1987 the shamed Proctor came under increasing pressure to resign. A litany of S&M beating and spanking allegations from teenage and early 20s “schoolboys” eventually led to his downfall. Pretending to be their kinky headmaster, an overzealous Proctor would use a cane, slipper and his hand pummeling their bare ass bottoms for punishment, and then delight in taking snapshots of their welt-reddened asses for lusty nostalgic memory, which in court sealed his guilty verdict. Ultimately his multiple victims’ confessions caught up to Harvey, convicting him of four counts of gross indecency.[216] But with paying a modest fine of just £1,450,[217] the disgraced ex-MP avoided jail time.[218] So what else is new?

During the 1970s and 1980s when not immersed in scandal, Harvey Proctor was also a staunch member of the infamous Monday Club,[219] the same clique alleged to take young boys on holiday excursions to Amsterdam, compliments of MI5 buddy John Rowe and others like Russell Ticker. Unsurprisingly, MP Proctor was also reportedly an Elm Guest House regular. Chris Fay, former campaigner for the National Association of Young People in Care (NAYPIC), based on conversations with Carole Kasir between 1988 to 1990, stated that he observed Harvey Proctor’s name on her guest list.[220] Though that original list may have disappeared as a result of several police raids intended to eliminate every trace of VIP Elm House abuse, an online handwritten version posted by Fay’s colleague Mary Moss prior to her house raid fortunately remains.[221]

Additionally, similar to Proctor’s fellow Tory MP Portillo (covered in last chapter), the scandal-prone former politician Harvey was also apparently on record as a frequent holiday guest in Morocco’s North African neighbor Tunisia, arrested after a naked Arab boy was discovered hiding under his bed.[222]

In 1988 fresh out of Parliament and knowing what he knew about the illicit sex lives of the Westminster rich and famous, Proctor convinced over a dozen of his political cronies to contribute sizeable investments in his brand new business enterprise, the colorful kinkster's newly opened fancy shirt shop at a couple of posh locations only to have them go belly up a dozen years later with several buddies "losing their shirts" up to £100,000.[223] In the post-Savile Operations Midland and Fernbridge investigating Parliamentary pedophiles, more victims came forth to claim Proctor had abused them at sex parties in the 1980s. A source close to the 2014 police inquiry reported to the Mirror that:

> Proctor's name has repeatedly been mentioned by at least two alleged victims. He is going to be of key interest.[224]

In March 2015 Proctor's residence was raided and he was questioned under caution.[225] But no doubt emboldened by Lord McAlpine and Cliff Richard's legal successes at overturning and suppressing past pedophilic associations and winning millions for their stress in a pedo-cabal pushback, in May 2018 as a distraught, self-confessed depressive, the 71-year old Proctor filed a libel lawsuit for £1 million against the Scotland Yard and his main accuser "Nick" who was conveniently outed by the establishment as an alleged fraud and is currently facing a criminal trial that in one fell swoop strangely wipes away all other countless victims' legit allegations over the years. Apparently their accusations don't mean jack shit against all VIP pedophiles, fully insulated and protected by the corrupt, rigged UK legal system that effectively guarantees the national cover-up policy continues infinitum.[226]

Back in 1987 when MP Proctor was enflamed in scandal, his onetime lover-boy procurer Terry Dwyer also ran into his own legal difficulties as owner-operator of an illegal London gay club-massage parlor where both drugs and rent boy sex were served on a platter as the main attraction.[227] But shortly after Dwyer's bust and conviction, appeal court judges in 1988 freed him on the technicality that his first trial judge was alleged to allow inadmissible evidence, thus granting the pimping druggie-pedophile his freedom.[228] You think Dwyer's deep anal connections to Parliament, MI5 and their massive global pedo-ring just may have something to do with his overly-lenient brush with the law?

As long as we're still on the topic of disgraced former MP Harvey Proctor, as a bona fide Monday Clubber, that ultra-Conservative group begun in 1961 as a Le Cercle offshoot that remained a loyal supporter of Apartheid South Africa and is still big on repatriating immigrants back to their ancestral homes,[229] Proctor and another prominent MP and Monday Club member Sir Peter Bottomley landed on Elm House guest lists and as such, their indelible connection to the London-Amsterdam pedophile network lives on. Of course Harvey Proctor made claims he never even heard of the Elm Guest House[230] and former Tory minister and longtime Worthing MP Sir Bottomley in recent years threatened to sue over his name associated with any pedophile ring.[231] But like it or not, links between the nightmare on Elm and Monday Club's rent boy trips to the child porn capital across the Channel linger on… sorry Sir.

Though Derek Laud hasn't shown up on any Rocks Lane party guest list yet, this sometime Dolphin Square resident and longtime Tory Party fixture as fixer, advisor, lobbyist, Iron Lady speechwriter, friend of Lady Camilla Duchess of Cornwall, 2005 Big Brother contestant and sadistic pedophile-VIP child procuring monster[232] has been named the first black member of the Monday Club[233] as well as the first non-white Master of Foxhounds in New Forest, Dame Esther's pedo-hunting grounds… a regular modern Renaissance man with a pathologically dark pedo twist. Derek's name will resurface again as a headliner in Chapter

29, per a Scallywag Magazine article exposing the kiddie mover and shaker in the North Wales pedophilia scandal.[234] As of late, Derek's been laying low in South Africa, distancing himself from the Monday Club, his Conservative Party and criminally shameful past that's yet to catch up to him.

A couple of other Monday Clubbers[235] also on the nightmare at Elm's guest list include Peter Campbell and Richard Miles.[236] Peter Campbell died in 2011 at age 78. The Reading University professor, author and founding chairman of the Conservative Group for Homosexual Equality (CGHE) was glowingly written up as some kind of pioneering gay rights hero in an obit-Telegraph fluff piece,[237] conveniently overlooking his pedophilic tendencies and criminal misbehavior. Also unmentionable was the fact his personally edited CGHE newsletter "strongly recommended" visits to the infamous Barnes boy brothel.[238] Also omitted were the child porn videos graphically depicting boys being raped and tortured made and distributed at the very same Elm Guest House he patronized. Exaro News obtained a copy of Campbell's newsletter with a handwritten note scrawled by pedo-Prof Peter asking:

I have now inserted the entry about the hotel but can't find the text about the Dutch venture – could you please let me have another copy?[239]

"The Dutch venture" refers to the frequent Amsterdam trips child sex traffickers like MI5's John Rowe was coordinating for members of the Monday Club like Peter Campbell, Harvey Proctor and the rest of the gay preying, London to Amsterdam "boy-lovers."

In the June 1982 raid of the Elm Guest House, Carole Kasir had her and Harry's 10-year old son Eric and daughter by a previous marriage taken away and placed in Richmond social services care homes, not exactly the safest places for youth. Two years before she died in 1990, Carole's psychiatrist referred her to two child protection officers, NAYPIC's Mary Moss and Chris Fay, for assistance trying to advocate getting her son back, strategically withheld in the UK Care System as a control mechanism to keep Carole quiet for the last eight years. The elite was growing nervous over how far Carole might go to "spilling the beans." In meetings with Carole, she'd haul out a thick cardboard box filled with her personal papers, legal documents, letters, receipts, her diary, plus near two dozen known photographs and guest lists pertaining to her Elm House and its VIP clientele, calling it her "life insurance."

Though Carole stubbornly refused to hand over any of the material, posted internet copies of handwritten notes jotted down by Mary and Chris include a list of alleged guest house attendees compiled during a series of meetings over many months with Carole Kasir prior to her "accidental" death. Eventually gaining Carole's trust, Mary Moss was given copies of some highly revealing pertinent documents. Towards the end, Chris finally was able to convince Carole to at least share photocopies of her VIP party pics. All the while, Special Branch had Chris, Mary and Carole under very close surveillance. But the day Chris Fay arranged to pick up the photos, Carole Kasir was suddenly found dead.

Testifying at Carole Kasir's inquest, Chris Fay and Mary Moss, a private investigator and host of other witnesses including Carole's longtime doctor all emphasized blatant anomalies surrounding her death, questioning the cabal-puppet coroner Dr. John Burton's official narrative - death by suicide. No doubt based on the coroner's sterling performance at this sham of a death inquiry, Queen Elizabeth promoted him to coroner of the Queen's Household[240] so that 7 years later the murdering royals had a "safe pair of hands" to make certain the Princess Diana-Dodi Al-Fayed assassination could be written off as pure accident. Similarly, Jill Dando's fiancé

Dr. Farthing a few years after she was out of the way gets promoted to the queen's doctor. Once you prove yourself a trusted member of the cabal's "inner pedo-club," you're suddenly promoted to the royal household or bestowed knighthood… a constant pattern.

A number of witnesses insisted that Carole Kasir's two alleged suicide notes were fake, clearly not in her own handwriting. Only her drug dealing, addicted hustler boyfriend David Issett signed off on her note as authentic. But that's all that was needed for the state's official bogus conclusion - suicide by insulin overdose.

This convenient false verdict defies a number of flagrant inconsistencies. The only syringe mark on Kasir's entire body found on her ass cheek was determined to be three days old, defying all laws of science to stay alive and then fatally overdose three days later. It's the same impossible absurdity as a "suicide" with two bullet holes in the head. Also those who knew her best insist that Carole always injected herself in her arm, never her butt. Because the cabal's hired "faithful hand" was running into vehement opposition from the inquest peanut gallery, he adjourned the inquest for two weeks per Chris Fay allegedly pending the outcome of ordered lab tests.

But without mentioning lab results steady hands reconvened, barring all contentious witnesses, sneaking through his blatant order-following verdict. By the time the inquest conclusion was announced, the UK press had once again been muzzled with a D-notice silencing the truth that Carole was yet another assassination victim for simply knowing too much (like so many before and after her), deemed too risky a threat of bringing down the pedo-cabal.[241] Only Canadian and Japanese news broadcasters approached Chris Fay for an alternative POV to counter the state's official cover-up lie.

Shortly before Fernbridge was closed, the Met police told MP Tom Watson that all the Kasir inquest papers had been destroyed.[242] Yet a year after the Elm Guest House investigation ended, it was learned the police claim of destroyed inquest documents proved [once again] false. It seems lots of misinformation about Carole Kasir's been fed into the propaganda machine, like she was never born in Germany under the name Weichman as had always been reported, but born Carole Linda Jones in West Riding, Yorkshire, England.[243] "Destroyed" documents found in November 2017 indicate her own GP doctor for 14 years concluded she did not commit suicide. Nor did the toxicology report even bother checking for contents in her stomach or any of the syringes or vials placed at the crime scene.

This newfound evidence uncovered over a year ago had campaigners and even MP Andrew Brigden demanding a new inquest.[244] Despite it looking even more obvious that Kasir was murdered, these new revelations failed to either reopen Fernbridge or impact the ongoing "official" independent inquiry in any discernable way, reinforcing the common knowledge that both police and government investigations into themselves and their criminal role in cover-up has never been about pursuit of any real truth or justice. The IICSA won't even touch the Elm House scandal, nor Northern Ireland's Kincora, both for the all too obvious reason that the pedo-cabal would be exposed wide open and come tumbling down.

In view of this latest development, a source close to the original aborted police investigation of Elm Guest House back in the early 1980s had this to say:

I don't think there's any doubt this place [Elm Guest House] is at the centre of things.[245]

Immediately following Carole’s 1990 murder, over the next three months, Chris and Mary attempted to set the public record straight, feeling certain Kasir’s untimely fate was the result of foul play. As such, they along with other witnesses and even Elm House abuse victims were threatened and intimidated by Special Branch officers applying undue pressure to keep their mouths shut or else.[246] And based on Carole’s fate, it was perfectly clear what the “or else” meant. Fay recalls the horrific stress that the government henchmen - thugs that they are - put him and others through, no different from how the Mafia and Kosher Nostra operate:

> At one point they had me up against a wall by my throat with a gun at my head telling me in no uncertain terms that I was to back away if I knew what was good for me. A colleague of mine [Mary] had the same treatment, as did a number of the volunteers. Victims who were actually abused at Elm House were also physically stopped from coming to speak to us at the NAYPIC office in North London. I witnessed Special Branch officers manhandling them and turning them away with a warning to keep their mouths shut. It was blatant, it was open, they were acting like gangsters. In the end we had to meet victims at a local community centre without the knowledge of the police to hear what they had to say. NAYPIC was given the identities of senior politicians who formed part of an alleged paedophile ring at the heart of government. I was told by the police implicitly, ‘We do not want you to come to us with big names.’[247]

As an exclamation point for dramatic effect, three bullet holes were shot through Chris’s kitchen window.[248] In all, Chris Fay stated that he worked with and knew as many as 11 Grafton Close victims of VIP abuse at the Elm Guest House. The Scotland Yard reported that a dozen underage boys were on file after the raid accusing VIPs at the Elm Guest House of criminal abuse.[249] Chris Fay’s account witnessing the ruthless cover-up firsthand appears authentic. One can easily see why the criminal elite felt compelled to attack Chris Fay's credibility by attaining a 2011 fraud conviction to smear his name and reputation.[250] Fay also maintains that according to Carole Kasir, the Elm Guest House raid on June 19, 1982 was carried out by a unit of spooks attached to Special Branch called Special Patrol Group, not the regular Metro police that had the premises under surveillance for several months prior to the raid. Shortly before the goon squad's assault on Elm, the Met investigation was abruptly shut down. In Chris Fay's words:

The police say it was done by a local force, but I know it was done by Special Branch.[251]

In a highly informative interview filmed in September 2013, Chris Fay offers his take on the Elm Guest House scandal-cover-up with tenacious anti-child abuse advocate, onetime child abuse victim and Pie and Mash filmmaker Bill Maloney.[252] Chris maintains that Carole was given a one day advance notice of the planned raid by a Sinn Fein leader that went by the name of Gary Walker, who even offered fake passports if the Kasirs needed to urgently leave the country. In an April 2014 article the Daily Mail also mentions "figures from the National Front and Sinn Fein" were patrons at the Elm Guest House.[253] It's also been reported that Sinn Fein President and MP Gerry Adams whose father and younger brother Liam, Gerry's onetime Sinn Fein underling, were both confirmed pedophiles.[254] If a Sinn Fein leader partied at Elm, it very likely was Liam, convicted years later of raping his own daughter from age 4 to 11. His deteriorating marriage, his final years abusing his young daughter and separation from his ex-wife all coincided with the years he probably ended up at the Elm Guest House operation. MI5 at both Kincora and Elm Guest House took full advantage using underage boys as honey trap blackmail currency to control IRA leaders.[255] This fact will be confirmed in detail in Chapter 28 covering the Kincora scandal.

If it’s true, that key figure(s) from the Irish Republican Army in 1982 at the bloody height of the Northern Ireland-UK conflict were involved in the same sex orgies abusing boys at parties right alongside UK’s Home Office Minister Leon Brittan as part of an MI5 sexual blackmail operation in South West London, with 60 Special Branch officers invading the boy brothel under the Terror Act of 1976, it has to be a cover-up of the highest priority, a top secret humdinger, forever destined by the pedo-elite to remain permanently buried deep in illusory ashes of the dustbin graveyard of all cover-up graveyards. But the truth has a resilient way of resurrecting itself to bite the criminal deceivers and life destroyers right between their sinful loins, regardless of cabal efforts to squirm, dodge, suppress and escape both public exposure and its unpaid massive, soul-killing karmic debt.

In December 2013 a police insider working the case back in 1982 made this poignant observation:

The real unlawful activity was underage sex. The police should have been able to make the other charges stick, but the boys were only ever interviewed with a view to them being witnesses against Carole, not as kids who were abused themselves.[256]

In other words, law enforcement never had any intention of going after the VIP pedophiles, only using the child victims as witnesses to hang a minimal “dirty house” conviction on Carole and Harry Kasir while grabbing her kids to keep the Kasirs from outing the diabolical operation that would’ve brought down the entire British Establishment.

Interesting to note that the media never covered the raid until 50 days after the fact. But once the 50 days had passed since the Special Branch busted the Elm Guest House, from August 7-17, 1982 virtually every national newspaper in the UK covered the Elm House scandal daily. Yet after the 17th, with the exception of only the local gay pro-pedo paper the Capital Gay running a story on the Kasir trial outcome in 1983 and limited coverage of Carole Kasir's "accidental" 1990 death, no press dared touch the Elm Guest House for the next 30 years until autumn 2012. For years the nation's most disturbing, biggest sex scandal in British history, cutting straight into and through the heart of the government, has been effectively silenced by a massive media blackout in order to propagate the nation's biggest, unending, top-down cover-up of all time. The media's been complicit in this criminal operation as well.

Though the Elm House scandal from 1982 to 2012 was kept virtually secret from the public, in 2014 it was learned that in November 2002 Tony Blair's Home Secretary David Blunkett received a letter from a whistleblowing trade union official specifying that Elm House was used as a boy brothel by VIP politicians in the early 1980s.[257] Of course in 2002 the Blair government was busy with its own pedophile scandals to cover-up - between Lords Janner, Boatteng and Mandelson. To Blunkett's credit, he did write back saying he was referring the matter to his own Home Office which three weeks later replied that it was turning the matter over to the Deputy Prime Minister John Prescott's office, which in turn urged the whistleblower to communicate his complaints to Richmond's Local Government Ombudsman, which in turn directed him to take the matter up with the police. And of course as always, the police did nothing.

So there you have it. See how impossible it is in the UK to get any real results reporting child abuse - past or present? As is typical of bureaucracy, child abuse and cover-ups, everyone gives you the runaround and in the end, no one takes responsibility and nothing ever gets done. What's more is that child abuse scandals and their political perps have always been open secrets. No doubt many of the 650 members of Parliament know exactly who the child sodomizers among them are, just like the US Congress. Remember the party whips' little black books? It's all used as a control mechanism. All of this only goes to show that most politicians just don't give a shit if poor kids in their own country (much less another) are being used and abused, tortured and killed. The facts speak for themselves.

To come full circle, the primary source of the Westminster VIP victims at the Elm Guest House came from Grafton Close Care Home that the Richmond authorities saw fit to close the same year the state decided to close out Carole Kasir's life. Both buildings at the center of this scandal - Grafton and Elm - were quickly converted to private flats as if - out of sight, out of mind - the horror story from the early 1980s never really happened. If walls could talk, living in either home would be hard not to listen… as disturbing as the messages would be.

The Daily Express first broke the Elm Guest House story on August 7, 1982 with the headline "Security Alert over New Vice Scandal." The article references a police investigation uncovering the involvement of:

> At least three MPs, a member of staff at Buckingham Palace, and leading lawyers, doctors and City businessmen have been questioned during inquiries.[258]

The Express stated that undercover police had identified 30 prominent men caught up in illegal vice activities and that security services were concerned with:

> Fears that some of the men involved might have been subjected to blackmail.[259]

Bingo! That's the whole name of the game and reason why MI5 set up the Elm House operation to begin with. Capital Gay magazine ran an article stating that the Scotland Yard was vehemently, predictably disputing the security "fears," denying that VIPs were involved at all.[260] While lawyers representing the Kasirs were threatening libel suits, Attorney General Sir Michael Havers receptively pledged that he would look into potential violations by the “sensational” press. Worried about lawsuits, all media coverage suddenly plunged to zero after the 17th of August. Obviously, the brothel owners, the police, security services and VIP pedophiles in government, churches, high courts and entertainment all collectively have a vested interest in covering up their criminality. From the very beginning decades ago to the present, nothing has changed.

The pedophilia establishment in Britain is the only candidate possessing both unlimited means and by far the most motivation for such an extensive, unprecedented cover-up. On the other hand, with all the flack and grief heaped upon the accusers, they have the least to show or gain from honestly and bravely coming forth to report their traumas to the authorities. Other than one victim-complainant secretly receiving an undisclosed compensation as an obvious hush money payoff from Richmond council, there’s been no record of any other Elm Guest House abuse victim who has ever gained financially.[261] So with the detective’s proverbial “means and motive” test, the only clear winner in the Elm Guest House debacle are the VIP pigs who’ve gotten away with raping and sodomizing scores of innocent young boys. No one else has anything to gain from their respective involvement at Elm or Grafton, least of all those who maintain that abuse occurred.

The August 1982 media also reported that the police inquiry had begun three months earlier in May although based on firsthand neighborhood accounts, police surveillance began long before a month prior to the June raid. The last line in the Express alludes to all the evidence and statements being compiled would soon be sent to their go-to DPP cover-upper Sir Thomas Hetherington, who as alluded earlier was another queen knighted gatekeeper protecting the pedo-queendom from 1976 to 1987, systematically covering up evidence of abuse while refusing to prosecute notorious VIP child rapists like Cyril Smith, Jimmy Savile and Leon Brittan.

The breaking Express article also compared the Elm Guest House debauchery to the 1889 boy brothel scandal located at 19 Cleveland Street in West London, where homosexual princes, earls and dukes from the aristocratic class were busted paying for sex with teenage messenger boys from the Royal Post Office.[262] But the criminals from the privileged class all escaped prosecution, never spending one day in jail while the sexually exploited underage rent boys were each given 4-9 months hard labor sentences.[263] Even the journalist who uncovered the truth exposing the elite's guilty sodomizers was sued, convicted of libel and sentenced to a year of hard prison labor. Clearly the Cleveland scandal set the precedent for what was to come, establishing the British historic tradition of protecting criminal sickos from the royal family and elitist class at the expense of punishing their underage victims and truth tellers a full century in advance of the Elm House Westminster scandal. In traditional Britain, some things never change.

Time for another "lost" dossier tale. In 1984 the pedo-establishment encountered another incriminating file that fell into the lap of respected Bury Messenger newspaper editor Don Hale.[264] As if being responsible for losing/destroying MP Geoffrey Dickens' as well as Scotland Yard's dossiers doesn't make Leon Brittan guilty enough of massive criminal cover-up, the pedophile Home Office Secretary successfully eliminated a third dossier containing compelling evidence that Labor peer and former cabinet secretary Barbara Castle handed over to Don Hale as well. When she brought Don the explosive documents, she explained that he was not her first choice as editor of the relatively small newspaper. But since it was her local paper and she trusted Don, in his recollected words:

She was saying, 'I've been everywhere else, I've been to the nationals, nobody would touch it with a barge pole, but what do you think?' As a journalist of course I was interested. Barbara never said he [Brittan] was a pedophile, she was just very, very hostile about him. 'He's the last person you want this to go to,' she said, which inferred that he was somehow involved.[265]

In his 2015 Daily Beast interview, the longtime, highly respected editor unveiled his sad yet unsurprising story of how Special Branch detectives forcibly removed yet more incriminating files from Hale's office that again outed a number of VIP pedophiles operating at the heart of the British government. Don Hale had perused through the dossier just long enough to realize that Sir Leon was more than aware of the Westminster pedophile ring:

[Brittan] was mentioned in everything you picked up, his fingerprints were over everything, he was the instigator.[266]

Don Hale's first angry visitor arrived the next morning, all 400+ pounds of the Parliament icon Cyril Smith barged into Hale's office less than 24 hours after Barbara Castle had dropped off her potentially damaging bombshell. News through the pedo-secret service grapevine travels faster than the speed of British history's fattest politician, but not by much. The editor described how Sir Cyril Smith charged at him screaming:

He was frothing at the mouth and really shouting and spitting in my face. He was straight at me like a raging lion; he was ready to knock me through the wall. He said to me quite clearly, 'I know who's given you this, it's Barbara Castle.' I wouldn't say who it was, but it was pretty obvious he knew. He's a hell of a sized guy, he's over six feet tall > and he’s huge; took up three seats. He’s not a guy you could deal with easily, he was a horror.[267]

Though Don Hale valiantly defied the big man’s threats and demands, refusing to hand over the papers, the following morning three vehicles pulled up and a belligerent squad of 15 Special Branch officers burst into the newspaper offices with both a search warrant and D-notice. Two of them pushed Don up against the wall similar to Chris Fay’s Special Branch episode in order to retrieve what Cyril couldn’t the day before. The government thugs insisted that the files were stolen property belonging to Home Office and they promised to arrest Hale should he breathe a word. Again, in his own long-awaited words:

> These bully boys come storming in, they said, ‘We’re not here to negotiate. Hand them over or we’ll arrest you now.’ I couldn’t argue, because as soon as you opened the files it had got ‘Not to be removed’, ‘Confidential’ and ‘For your eyes only’—all these sort of things on them. I wouldn’t have had a hope in hell legally. I would have ended up in prison and the story would have gone nowhere.[268]

More than three decades later, after Metro Police Service found abuse survivors’ allegations of systematic torture and sexual assault fully credible, Don Hale finally could lift the lid on what he was privy to, confirming not only that top level politicians, high ranking police officers, spies, judges, members of the royal palace household and entertainers were child raping criminals but that a major cover-up of the first order has remained tightly in place ever since.

Don Hale maintains that the 1984 dossier that Barbara Castle gave him was comprised of detailed Home Office files that definitively prove that Brittan as head of the internal pedo-investigation took what one might say an extremely active, self-serving role throughout the process, the exact opposite of his later initial denial and then vague, nondescript public accounting of any dossier placed in his possession:

> He really had his finger on the pulse, he wanted to know everything about it; all the documents were cc'd back to Leon Brittan or it was an instruction directly from Leon Brittan.[269]

Don Hale asserts that the dosser exposed 16 MPs from both the House of Commons and Lords and about 30 high ranking notables from the Church of England, private schools and major corporations as all being active PIE members.[270] With the ridiculously strict UK libel laws, Hale knew he could not publicly out these pedophiles but planned to report that the Home Office was in the process of investigating these individuals which would have placed Brittan's office on notice that the public awaits his results.

MI5 and MI6 always relied on the Metro's now defunct Special Branch to carry out "undercover" dirty work in order to maintain their plausible deniability M.O. in keeping a safe public distance from revealing what really goes on at the seedy underbelly of power.[271] The June 19, 1982 "police" raid on MI5's Elm Guest House blackmail operation was no different. A media blackout went into immediate effect at the time of the raid lasting nearly two months, undoubtedly so authorities could destroy as much confiscated evidence as possible, lining up all their ducks in a row for the media to downplay both Elm's importance and police findings.

Contrary to the major media coverage that began on August 7, 1982 and spanned the next 10 days, the purpose of the raid conveniently fell under "national security" auspices via the Prevention of Terrorism Act of 1976, having zero to do with it being a vice raid or rescuing child victims or prevention of further harm to children. As such, the raid was intentionally timed to net a minimal number of criminals as no boys from Grafton Close Home were even present in the house despite it being a Saturday night when normally the sex parties would be in full swing. The Special Patrol Group, the unit within Special Branch, carried out the raid that automatically carried a gag order prohibiting press coverage. Bottom line, the raid was never meant to protect children but simply to protect liability of VIP pedo-criminals from any and all accountability. Too many incriminating photos and video evidence were still at-large and in full damage control mode, the controllers desperately moved in to cap any further risk of leaked exposure to the public, confiscating on site lots of compromising photographs, guest lists, whips, chains, ropes and stockpiles of child pornographic material in obscene photos as well as videos.

When Elm Guest House was ransacked by the 60-men strong raiding party with flashing lights in the night, it created such a public stir and spectacle for residents on and near the Barnes Common.[272] During its early 1980s heyday, neighbors of the Elm Guest House were painfully aware of the sex orgies and strange happenings associated with that notorious guest house. Novelist Jilly Cooper who was a frequent dog walker on the Barnes Common described the night of the house raid in one of her books:

We then had lots more lurid details about vicars and MPs caught 'in flagrante,' running out of the brothel into the night in their underpants.[273]

Obviously it was common knowledge Elm was a house of sodomizing ill repute. A teenage girl told her mother that while passing by the place one night, she observed through open curtained windows a bunch of naked men cavorting about inside.[274] The neighborhood was also aware of the unmarked police van with the cameras carrying out surveillance. Another neighbor pointed out that the police presence was all too obvious:

They were there all the time. Police hiding behind the trees to look at the property was a running joke with the neighbours.[275]

The Barnes brothel was drawing increasing unwanted attention leading to growing tensions within the community from worried neighbors who knew that children were being abused inside the three story dwelling at 27 Rocks Lane by the men in all the fancy cars constantly seen coming and going.[276] As an open secret that young boys were routinely brought in to be sexually abused by older well-dressed men, numerous complaints were lodged with local representatives at Richmond council but seemingly to no avail. After many weeks of neither lifting a finger to stop the rampant pedophilia crimes nor respond to the community's mounting concerns, local authorities were coming under increasing pressure to intervene, ultimately forcing Special Branch's hand to execute its raid.

Bottom line, MI5's sleaze racket of sexual blackmail operations had become such a public nuisance in Barnes as potentially explosive liability risking VIP exposure, if it got out publicly, it would've undoubtedly brought down the Thatcher government. MI5 and Special Branch were frantically pressed into action. The Elm Guest House was raided with the intent of securing as much incriminating evidence as possible, tying up loose ends that otherwise threatened to destroy the British Establishment.

At the time future prominent Labor MP Keith Vaz happened to be the Richmond council solicitor running for Parliament in that same Richmond and Barnes district. Years later when asked on Twitter if he'd heard anything about the Elm Guest House affair, he succinctly answered "no." Yet just days after the infamous raid and over a month prior to the national publicity onslaught, Keith Vaz was quoted in the local Richmond & Barnes Times reacting to the community's growing fears for the safety of its women and children:

> The police have to show a real presence on the common. It may be that they are opposed to vigilante groups but it is not unnatural for people who feared for their safety to protect themselves to do so. It is a terrible indictment on the authorities that people may have to do so.[277]

Doesn’t it seem a bit odd that the Richmond MP candidate would be so on top of the dangers and urgent need for greater police protection for his neighborhood constituents, to the extent that he was publicly promoting vigilantism, yet remains completely oblivious to the horrific crimes being committed against children just days after the “big bust” that was the then talk of the town, not to mention the coming national media hype weeks later?

This is the same man who less than a decade later in 1991 publicly defended his mentor and longtime pedophile Lord Greville Janner, claiming on the Commons floor that Janner was “the victim of a cowardly and wicked attack” while near two dozen of his victims had provided sufficient evidence for Leicestershire police to prosecute,[278] especially after Janner’s feeble “no comment” response to police questioning.[279] Clearly Vaz helped “convince” police and CPS to drop the case against his child abusing friend. And then in 2016, Vaz the hypocrite was caught red-handed embroiled in a rent boy sex scandal of his own,[280] exposed for desperately trying to bribe his two rent boys on a promise he’d “fly them around the world.”[281] Hypocrisy is Keith Vaz’s middle name. While ruling over committee legislation on Class A drugs and vice prostitution, from his near .5£m “sex shack” a mere half mile from his over 2£m family home, the married father of two was busily calling his rent boys to make sure their upcoming rendezvous included plenty of cocaine and poppers for his next adulterous, paid for sodomy services.[282]

On top of that bombshell, according to a commenter on the aangirfan website, after Vaz was elected as Leicester East MP in 1987, hired movers transporting his personal belongings to London found under his mattress a copy of Spartacus Magazine, Iron Boy and other homosexual pedophile child pornography.[283]

Meanwhile under a longstanding House of Commons ethical standards probe over his rent boy romp, Keith Vaz has used the exact same evasive and “cowardly” tactic as his pedophile mentor when Janner avoided prosecution for decades of serial child sex abuse claiming the last couple years of his life that he was too ill from dementia, all the while actively participating in the House of Lords right up to his decrepit end.[284] And just like his derelict Jewish buddy from Leicester West, the longest running Asian MP from

Leicester East has maintained he also is “too ill” to answer for his ethical standards violations while photographed with big smiles regularly attending party functions around the globe.[285]

As of February 2018 the corrupt politician nicknamed “Vaz-eline” may be facing yet a new police probe having to answer an Unexplained Wealth Order, amassing more than a £4m property empire that allegedly includes 8 homes in UK alone with more in India on a less than £75,000 annual MP salary.[286]

While chairman of the powerful Home Affairs select committee for a decade and a half, his committee’s website posted online the full names of four abuse victims testifying before the IICSA, breaking the law by grossly violating their confidentiality, resulting in their death threats from abusers.[287] As the 15-year gatekeeping leader of the parliamentary committee that holds sway over police investigations into child sex abuse, this ultra-friendly pedo-protector no doubt has the dirty lowdown on the entire British VIP pedo-establishment. For that reason alone, his nonstop scandals never seem to stick to this Vaz-eline greased Teflon man. To this very day the disgraced pervert has managed to retain his permanent Leicester seat in Parliament, currently serving on the “Justice” Committee while living his life of luxury as an “untouchable.”[288] Sound eerily familiar to the Cyril Smith saga?

Recall how UK’s pedophile Prime Minister Ted Heath’s chief whip - Tim Fortescue - admitted in a 1995 interview that party leaders in the British government regularly bail out fellow MPs with pedophilia problems by using their cover-up protection as blackmail leverage to manipulate and control pedo-politicians to vote their way forevermore. Scum at the top of all major Western governments use their inside knowledge of their peers’ pathological crimes as a form of insurance protection vis-a-vis former Congressman Anthony Weiner’s laptop file he titled under his “life insurance.”[289] In other words, the child raping insiders are well aware of each other’s deviant criminality and as long as their dirty secrets stay safe with them, all remain mutually protected in their own demonic VIP sicko club way.

In the case of MP Keith Vaz, if all his corrupt, perverse scandals ultimately result in his peers demanding his resignation, because his reign of power as longtime Home Affairs chairman afforded him full access gathering the dirt on virtually all the VIP establishment’s illicit bad habits, parliamentary members with much to hide know that Vaz would not hesitate to throw them all under the bus exposing their illegal embarrassing secrets as well. So in effect, Keith Vaz is able to hold on to his permanent “safe” seat in Westminster because it would be suicidal for any of his fellow perverts to try and eject him… exactly the same identical dynamic that kept Sir Cyril Smith securely in power throughout his 82 years on earth.

In April 2014 more sleaze in UK’s other major party was revealed when a high ranking Conservative source admitted that all the dirt on MPs (primarily pedophilia), meticulously recorded by party whips in their infamous “black books” up till 2010 were destroyed for fear that the public would find out how criminally sick their leaders are through Freedom of Information requests.[290] So in this era of social media, to prevent leaks and bread crumb trails of incriminating evidence, in the current decade the sleaze is all handled strictly through verbal communication only.

In 2014 amidst the ongoing police investigations of Operations Fernbridge and Midland delving into the political elite’s historic child abuse, fresh new revelations have erupted. Tory MP Mark Menzies was busted for rent boy sex with an underage Brazilian and David Cameron’s government was under fire. Amongst MPs and lords, a rising wave of drunken sexual passes, sexual harassment and sexual assaults were being perpetrated against underage staffers, party aides and researchers. Plus sex orgies at tax paid expense uncovered at annual party conference hotels were the latest scandals rocking Westminster.[291] One young victim disclosed how pathologically entitled those in power are:

> A lot of MPs think they have almost got a right to try it on with junior staff, male or female. They are almost affronted if the staff don't go along with it.[292]

All this filth in recent years only demonstrates that child abuse never ceased after the 1970s and 80s but only continues to this day among the degenerate VIPs atop the British government.

This diabolical political system doesn't just protect high level criminals from all accountability, it also rewards them. A classic illustration is Sir Peter Morrison, the Tory MP from Chester (1974-1992) and Thatcher's Parliamentary Private Secretary (PPC). The homosexual pedophile was repeatedly caught sexually abusing boys but merely cautioned with police warnings. Morrison was implicated in the North Wales scandal as well as at both Dolphin Square and Elm Guest House. Despite Thatcher's bodyguard Barry Strevens warning her Morrison and so many of her top lieutenants were pedophiles, in 1990 she made Sir Peter her campaign manager anyway. The serial child predator was protected right up to his 1995 fatal heart attack and then even further protected three years later when in 1998 his public toilet cottaging with young boys was covered up.[293] That year an editor and a reporter from the Mirror were onto Morrison but tried in vain to acquire a copy of the child rapist's arrest record as law enforcement ensured it was blocked. It took until 2002, 7 years after his death, before Sir Peter was finally exposed publicly as yet another monster atop

London’s pedo-paradise government and not till 2012 as a North Wales pedo-ring abuser.[294]

Where you have the queen, the prime minister and law enforcement actively going out of their way to both shield and reward deranged VIPs recklessly living out their sick perversions above the law till death do them part, you have Great Britain, the pedophilia epicenter of the world.

Former Thatcher health minister and pedo-gatekeeper MP Edwina Currie made a July 24, 1990 entry in her diary, yet waited 22 years later before making it public, saving her juicy tidbit quote below to boost her book sales:

> Peter Morrison has become the PM’s PPS. Now he’s what they call ‘a noted pederast’,’ with a liking for young boys; he admitted as much to Norman Tebbitt when he became deputy chairman of the party, but added, ‘However, I’m very discreet’ – and he must be![295]

It takes one to know one. Jewish pedo-princess Edwina who carried on a four year adulterous affair with PM John Major in the 1990s not only signed off on handing the Broadmoor keys over to lunatic predator Savile to take over the asylum, but as of January 2014 Currie herself stands accused of child sexual abuse by then 45-year old Andrew Ash. Ferried down from his care home in Northern England to London’s VIP sex parties, Andrew told the Express that a drunken female MP (later implicated to be Currie[296]) was laughing while goaded by peers into sexually assaulting him when he was 13 at one of their many pedo-orgies.[297] Currie’s matter-of-fact admission that Morrison’s habit of raping teenage boys was an open secret speaks volumes, but even more so does Andrew Ash’s bombshell. In all likelihood, Sir Peter Morrison was made Thatcher’s PPS because he was an easily controlled blackmail-able sexual deviant.[298] Promoting and knighting an incompetent alcoholic frequently observed sleeping at his desk guarantees loyalty to both his party and his crime cabal for protecting his flagrant illicit activities. And with Ash’s revelations, the same can be said for Madame Currie as well.

Abuse survivor Andrew Ash also maintains he was trafficked to Amsterdam on a number of occasions where he claims the infamous murderous gang leader Sidney Cooke forced him to film another boy being raped by a pedophile.[299] Like fellow child murderer-rapist-pimping procurer Warwick Spinks, Cooke is also believed to have made snuff films in Holland. Having lived through so much horrific trauma, Andrew grew increasingly frustrated after providing 70 hours divulging highly incriminating allegations to Metro’s Paedophile Unit. Knowing that the police were in possession of a video with Andrew in the same frame as a senior male MP that abused him, yet never seeing any action taken by law enforcement to hold the VIP criminals accountable, the brave survivor decided to go public with his story in January 2014, stating:

All I want is justice and for the truth to come out because these people have been protected for far too long.[300]

A high profile pedophile mentioned in the last chapter, the murderous snuff filmmaker-distributor Warwick Spinks has been allowed to escape justice too many times for him not to be considered also “protected” by the pedo-elite. After kidnapping a 14-year old boy in Sussex in the early 1990s, then drugging, abusing and pimping him in Amsterdam, he sold the victim to a Dutch brothel.[301] Spinks was also secretly caught on tape peddling a video featuring a 10-year old boy who was tortured and killed on camera. Finally in 1995 the monster was tried, convicted and began a 7-year sentence that on appeal was reduced to five, and while released in 1997 on license after only two years, he fled right back to Europe to resume his lucrative sex slave trade operation. Spinks’ criminal ties to Amsterdam and beyond involve not only the making of deadly pornographic films with underage boys but also child trafficking to Holland and numerous other cities in Germany, Poland and the Czech Republic.

Described as “one of Britain’s most dangerous pedophiles” and called the “Pied Piper of Pedophiles,” finally after 15 years as a fugitive in Europe, he was captured in Prague and extradited back to UK in November 2012. But incredibly, he was freed from prison again on a loophole after only four months. As of March 2013, Spinks was once again free to resume his predatory sick life back in Prague, thumbing his nose at a complicit, impotent British justice system. With his long gruesome criminal history committing the most egregious offenses imaginable, for him to have seemingly gotten away with it, t’s all too obvious that this widely alleged sadistic rapist-killer has to be protected by the pedo-elite.

Warwick Spinks is the most infamous of hundreds of English child sodomizers on the run over the last several decades, escaping to pedo-friendly Holland with its laxly enforced child sex trafficking laws.[302] Spinks and scores like him from Britain have been instrumental in Amsterdam’s booming international pedo-sex tourism-child porn snuff film industry.[303] With Dutch law enforcement claiming insufficient evidence to prosecute swarms of British pedo-expats like Spinks, and UK law enforcement maintaining both lack of resources to investigate and jurisdiction to intervene, the conveniently created safe haven city of Amsterdam not only attracts child traffickers, child rapists and child pornographers from all over the world, but also the VIP predator network from the UK, EU and Europe as a go-to safe zone stopover.[304]

The Sun reported in December 2014 that while Spinks was supplying young boys to a Parliament member traveling to Amsterdam, the same MP became involved in the murder of a boy filmed in a snuff movie at the Blue Boy vice club.[305]

Less than a week after the article was published, Spinks actually registered a formal complaint against the Sun contending it violated four accuracy and ethics clauses but the Independent Press Standards Association ruled in favor of Rupert Murdoch’s newspaper that no breaches occurred. [306]

A source for the police investigating Spinks in the 1990s stated:

> Officers were told Spinks knew the MP and arranged a tour to Amsterdam. While there he went to the Blue Boy bar, where Spinks was running a brothel. The MP was said to have been present when a boy died during an orgy which was being filmed.[307]

This more than explains why Spinks has repeatedly been brazenly let off the hook, because like fellow murderer-trafficker Cooke, Spinks also provided rent boy services to Westminster VIP pervs, with at least one MP allegedly an accomplice in one of his snuff films.

Respected veteran journalist Nick Davies wrote an eye-opening exposé for The Guardian on this very topic of British pedophiles setting up shop in Holland:

> After speaking to paedophiles and their victims and to police and social workers in Britain, Holland and Germany, we have uncovered the inner workings of an international paedophile ring. Its roots spring from Amsterdam, where, in the late 1980s, a group of exiled British paedophiles set up a colony. Taking advantage of Dutch tolerance towards sexual behaviour, they exploited the freedom of the gay community in the city as cover to enact their fantasies and to make money from them.[308]

Since Davies described conditions up to when he wrote his article in 2000, the same year the Dutch brothel industry was made legal, the situation in Amsterdam apparently has only grown significantly worse. As of 2018 most legal prostitution zones in the Netherlands have been closed and over a third of all window brothels are reportedly out of business including Amsterdam's famous red light district. A proposed law if passed by the Dutch Senate would make it a crime to pay for sex with pimped, trafficked, or otherwise coerced prostitutes. Since 2000, rather than reduce human trafficking as expected, legalizing the sex trade has only opened up a floodgate in the illegal, unlicensed sex industry,[309] especially pimping trafficked underage boys and girls, creating a vast black market for the London-Amsterdam pedo-connection, extending the global network in all four directions. As a result, an abolitionist movement toward the sex trade appears to currently be underway in the Netherlands.

For the longest time, no doubt because establishment sickos either participate and/or consume the horrendous torture-death scenes filmed on camera, the official word from UK law enforcement always denied that snuff films even existed, claiming police never encountered any in all of their so called investigations.[310] Finally, British police could no longer pretend to be deaf and dumb in their denial. In May 2014 Express ran an article announcing that Lancashire police raided a house in February 2013, seizing "the world's first known 'snuff' child pornography video."[311] The 22-year old low-life arrested on the scene received a mere 8-month prison sentence for possessing it along with a number of other deplorable child rape and torture videos confiscated. Upon arrest, beyond admitting he'd downloaded the film from a "file sharing program," he refused to disclose any further details. But obviously he is a bottom feeder in the much larger worldwide snuff film-child pornography network where billions of dollars are gained by the lowest of the lowest scum on earth. Police had acted on a tip from the Russian government as most of the other videos in the home featured even younger victimized Russian girls.

This particular snuff film depicted a blonde American girl likely around 14 who was savagely raped, strangled and then sexually victimized again, then ultimately rolled up tightly in a clear plastic sheet and dragged away by the murderer who appears to be her stepfather or father.[312] All those viewing this highly disturbing 20-minute video footage concluded it is both authentic and the victim was actually filmed being killed. But here’s the clunker. British police appallingly sat on this murder evidence for a full year prior to even contacting US law enforcement. In other words, a whole year was allowed to elapse with zero effort made to track down either the identity of the murderer or the victim. As a solution to this problem, anti-child abuse campaigner MP Tom Watson called for an independent national child exploitation investigative agency that specializes in child pornography, similar to America’s Operation Predator that’s reportedly arrested 8,000 pedophiles since it was implemented in 2003.

From the Home Office which centrally controls all UK law enforcement operations, Britain has long been a pedophilia enabling haven. Award winning journalist Nick Davies has written a series of disturbingly incisive, detailed articles exposing child abuse in Britain and Europe. He wrote how UK police are allocated abundant funding and resources to combat drugs and property theft, yet law enforcement historically drags its feet investigating child sex abuse. In the macho ranks of police work, aggressively pursuing child rapists is insanely considered “soft women’s work” in the policing business.[313] After navigating past a plethora of systemic barriers yet credited with solving the 1994 London East End rape-murder case of 9-year old Daniel Handley, Detective Superintendent Ed Williams had this perplexing observation based on his firsthand experience:

Child protection is not macho. Those who are involved in it are looked at askance by Met police officers.[314]

The Bristol police force for a time back in the late 1990s remained the lone exception. A young sergeant named Rob Jones and one hardworking Crown Prosecution barrister named Brendan Moorehouse together practically singlehandedly led a small dedicated team facing constant cutbacks and shutdown on a shoestring budget to proactively make a David vs. Goliath difference in shattering a persistent pedophile ring that had flourished in the area for 20 years, resulting in over a dozen convictions. It was this police crew that bridged awareness of the much wider pedophilia web stretching to Europe from Britain and the deadly pedo-trafficking ring and child porn industry booming in Amsterdam to London and beyond.[315]

The monumental efforts of this barebones Bristol police pedophile unit and its local CPS one man operation became the nation's onetime model for putting child rapists behind bars with a near 100% conviction rate versus everywhere else in the country that's closer to zero, before it was ultimately shut down from lack of funding.[316] A case in point for the near zero conviction rate as the UK norm, recall the conscientious efforts of Hereford and Worcester social services director David Combs and his district's whistleblower Peter McKelvie whose evidence convinced MP Tom Watson's PM confrontation in 2012 on the House floor that launched Operations Fairbank, Fernbridge and Midland in search of VIP pedos (totaling one conviction), Hereford and Worcester's efforts to protect their children go over and above most all other social services in Britain.

Yet while both of those valiant child protectors were on duty in 1991 and 1992, a district outcome review revealed that out of a total of 148 abuse cases in Hereford and Worcester, 141 of the suspected child abusers were never charged.[317] Out of the 7 derelicts charged, only one was convicted and imprisoned out of the total of 148 child abuse cases at less than 1% (a pathetic .0068% rate), and again that's one of the better social service departments in the entire nation. With the system set up to favor pedophiles while failing children, a disturbing trend has emerged. While an increasing number of abusers have been reported, the number being successfully prosecuted has significantly been reduced.[318]

Yet when Bristol a few years later with its skeleton crew racked up a near 100% conviction rate, showing the rest of the country how to really protect children by proactively pursuing abusers by first tracking down victims, rather than embrace the model and expand it nationwide, the powers-that-shouldn't-be made certain its contract was not renewed. Recall that this same sad fate also shut down Operation Hedgerow in 1989 after it uncovered the largest pedophilia network in UK history while repeated requests to expand the operation were also rejected. See how the system operates? It goes out of its way every single time to protect the sickos at the expense of the innocents.

Rather than build off Bristol's unprecedented success, holding the mighty purse strings, the Home Office instead ensured its demise by never allocating a single pound worth of assistance since the crime of pedophilia conveniently doesn't qualify among its "best value performance indicators" of reported crimes.[319] Each nation meticulously keeps records on stolen motor vehicles, all property damage and every conceivable reported crime, but when it comes to missing kids, police haven't a clue. And even when reported, it historically falls on deaf ears.

Nearly a quarter century ago based on a Home Office inquiry, it was learned that policing child abuse in the UK drastically needed "a radical improvement in the investigation and prosecution of offenders," requiring an urgent focus on proactively targeting child rapists, increasing both its responsiveness to victims as well as increase the miniscule minority of children willing to report sex offenses.[320] 32 officers surveyed from ten Child Protection Units across the country unanimously delivered a blistering wake-up call that their units were sorely lacking resources, were undertrained, understaffed, unsupported and disrespected. Despite this scathing assessment way back in 1995, the Home Office has done very little to improve the lot of police officers shouldered with the responsibility of protecting kids, again do doubt by calculated design.

A November 2017 report found that despite being warned that Scotland Yard was placing children in increasing danger, the Constabulary Inspectorate determined that in 135 CSA cases examined, 93% of the Met’s responses were deemed substandard.[321] While more children in the UK Care System go missing, increasingly falling victim to pedophilic crime, severe police budget cuts and higher workload demand in the Child Protection Unit are only making matters more dire. Aside from weaker child protection and alarming rates of missing children, other areas of growing concern also include child sexual exploitation and detained children in police custody.

This comes after the 2016 report was so terrible that quarterly audit inspections were implemented on an emergency basis in order to every three months measure corrective progress and results. But the vast majority of recommendations had not even been initiated. Over 20 years after the stinging Home Office critique, the November 2016 report faulted the Met for still being stuck on its obsession to meet its target on car thefts and burglaries rather than make its priority stopping child rapists from abusing children.[322] In short, the Home Office has only set the Met up for continued failure with £400m slashed from its budget and maintaining a longstanding policy of low priority investment in protecting children at-risk. In other words, this only confirms the realty that a political lack of will still exists in changing the UK system that’s been long past broken for decades.

Despite the magnitude of this ever-glaring pedophilic epidemic, Home Office policy continues failing to fund police effort to fight against child abuse. And all those high priced, tax-paid, post-Savile police operations to investigate VIP pedophiles apparently were all for show, netting virtually zero results, providing the excuse to deny any more money spent on either historic much less current child abuse. Saving poor kids from viperous high level predators just isn’t a priority in Britain, never has and never will… unless the people finally rise up in righteous anger and demand that something be done about it… like the International Tribunal for Natural Justice (ITNJ) and reconciliation commissions for starters.

With the system clearly built to shield child abusers from prosecution, especially powerful ones, it was only through the heroic local enterprise by a few remarkable individuals working together in Bristol that this onetime exception to the general rule ever broke out of the control box. The bureaucratic inertia of a rigid standard national policy of total non-interest and lack of commitment in eradicating child abuse, beginning with the gatekeeping Home Office ministers like Brittan or May extended to order-following, pedo-enabling police chiefs and DPPs, has allowed the vast pedophilia network throughout the UK, particularly serving the VIP establishment, to essentially thrive unimpeded for over a century now. The very few city police departments that include pedophile units are grossly understaffed and underfunded, and limited to focusing primarily on child pornography which in this internet age has also proliferated like wildfire.[323] Sadly, disgracefully, Britain’s political will to protect children is still absent. Instead to this very day, its priority remains diabolically protecting the pedophilia network over its own children’s welfare and well-being.

Nick Davies offers two essential conditions that have always been nefariously met that permit VIP criminals to continue getting away with the wholesale rape and slaughter of the innocents:

> Power is the fabric of a paedophile ring, essential first to subjugate the children, whose passivity is essential for the adults’ indulgence; and second, where possible, to neutralise the authorities who might otherwise frustrate its activities.[324]

Silencing the voice of children as victims and maintaining centralized control over shutting down police probes are the two primary M.O.s that the pedo-establishment utilizes to maintain its forever cover-up, along with the Official Secrecy Act.

When the frustrated admission that the UK child protection system is completely broken is unanimously shared by social workers, police and customs specialists alike, and echoed by senior government and top law enforcement officials responsible for overseeing this unconscionable mess, you know something at the core level is irreparably wrong and amiss. Two decades ago Nick Davies heard repeatedly from those working within this abomination of a failed system that:

> They say that the power is with the paedophiles, then finally you begin to see the real horror, that we have put our trust in a child protection system that doesn’t protect the children.[325]

Nick spent years reporting from the trenches and has dozens of examples to prove the overwhelming truth that the British legal system chooses to protect child rapists and not children. He cites a transport police officer opening a bus station locker and stumbling upon a suitcase full of photos depicting naked children in forced sexual poses.[326] He handed the evidence over to police and social services only to have it collect dust for the next seven years before some detectives happening to investigate local care home abuse decided to match the photos with their findings that suddenly opened up numerous new leads. And that was a fluke as more often than not evidence is either lost, destroyed or sits around forever untouched.

Then there's the two far more egregious cases of two 2-year old girls oozing with pus from their vaginas diagnosed with gonorrhea at the same children's forensic center, but the monsters that did this to them both walked as the system could not hold them.[327] The fact that child sex abuse is the most under-reported crime of all and the Home Office only acknowledges and finances policing for reported crimes directly results in virtually 100% of all child sex abusers in Britain getting away with the sickest of crimes.[328] Factor in perps who run the nation and it's a done deal, VIPs routinely raping and ruining young lives with total impunity is simply a permanent job perk - none have ever been charged and throughout Britain's sorry-ass history none have ever gone to jail. Something's gone terribly wrong.

The abysmal conviction record of pedophiles is having a detrimental effect on social workers who are less responsive in meeting the needs of abuse victims such as delaying initial contact with the child's family or caregivers, providing timely medical examinations and interviewing the accused.[329] In part this can be attributed to the extreme unlikelihood that any alleged perpetrator will ever be prosecuted, much less convicted. Also a skewed court emphasis on rigid adherence to making sure the child complainant's case complies with the Memorandum of Good Practice which was only meant to be a guide has judges throwing cases out right and left, denying justice and letting abusers off the hook on technicalities while in contrast the defendant’s counsel is permitted to rake a child witness over the coals. A lack of sensitivity and understanding of the child’s capacity and psychological development by attorneys and judges again heavily tilts the legal system to the suspect’s advantage.

Yet another case in point among hundreds indicating the system favors child abusers over children. Prior to John Mann becoming a Labor MP for Bassetlaw and pointing out in 2015 Jeremy Corbyn’s “missing” record protecting abused children (covered in the last chapter), Mann was a solicitor and member of the controversial Lambeth council. While investigating insurance fraud in Dolphin Square, he kept hearing about sex orgies involving children and brought the disturbing matter to a couple Scotland Yard detectives back in 1988.[330] Like all the rest of the police inquiries, three months later the detectives said the case was closed on orders from “those at the top.” Meanwhile at the very same time, “those at the top” of UK’s law enforcement were keen on shutting down Operation Hedgerow after it had inadvertently tapped into the international pedo-network despite its success as Britain’s largest pedophilia bust in history. Note how every time the police encounter the larger child raping network, those in control will issue an immediate cease and desist order. Every single time this pattern’s repeated.

In December 2014 MP Mann was back once again trying to defy this impenetrable blue-lined wall of protection and cover-up, this time handing over to Scotland Yard a list he reportedly compiled based on feedback from the public-at large identifying 22 MPs involved in what Mann believed was at least five major pedophile rings catering to the perverted compulsions of dozens of Westminster and Downing Street members.[331] Of the near two dozen on the list, as of 2015 three were current members of the House of Commons and three were still active members in the House of Lords. The rest were either retired or dead, with 13 of them former ministers. For what it's worth, the list's political party breakdown is 14 Conservatives, 5 from Labor and 3 from other parties. Overoptimistic in late 2014 that arrests were pending, MP Mann asserted:

> It would be inconceivable in some cases that they are not now interviewed by police about these allegations. Some of the evidence is incredibly strong.[332]

But unfortunately the well-intentioned MP fighting an uphill battle was wrong. No Westminster arrests have been made during the half decade since police were allegedly re-investigating historic VIP child abuse. Though Met Police re-questioned Harvey Proctor (already convicted in 1987 of S&M but not CSA) and the late Leon Brittan (only once interviewed over the 1967 alleged rape of a teenage girl, sabotaging it by failing to record it), Scotland Yard still ended up forced to eat crow, apologizing to Brittan's widow, Proctor and the aging General Bramall, and coughing up a million pounds apiece for Bramall and Leon's widow. This humiliating 180 degree turnaround occurred not long after the Mirror in February 2013 claimed that Leon Brittan's arrest was eminent, that Met's Paedophile Unit Commander Peter Spindler had already met with his senior officers finalizing the former minister's pending arrest.[333] But at the last minute shit always happens when the deck's pre-rigged. Once Brittan and Janner were spared the inconvenience of facing charges prior to keeling over, it's likely that the Met never bothered to even interview the other 20 MPs on Mann's pedo-list. And as of 2016, police operations into all historic VIP abuse have since been closed. And with Cliff's 2018 legal victory, the public will never know if famous people are ever questioned or arrested.

So where does all this leave us? Aging child rapists in high places still alive today whose names have been identified by accusers over the years will all safely go to their graves unpunished for ruining hundreds if not thousands of defenseless children’s lives. Of course again this is simply the Luciferian way - do as much harm and damage to others on earth as you can and be guaranteed the reward of gaining more power to inflict even more suffering and pain on more victims, all the while assured of living out your days protected with immunity. That so far unbreakable travesty must soon be broken.

To ensure no public access to records of the June 1982 Elm Guest House raid ever becomes available through Freedom of Information requests, the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) file holding all official actions and evidence legally taken after the raid were destroyed on April 11, 2007.[334] No wonder no VIP pedophiles have ever been held accountable for their crimes, the British government has maintained a longstanding policy of simply destroying or “disappearing” any and all evidence and documents that are the least bit incriminating. In fact Crown Prosecution Service SOP mandates that all records be destroyed after only three years. The criterial exception by which files don’t get destroyed after three years falls under “Long Term Interest.” The Elm Guest House file remained open for just over a quarter century most likely due to the following stipulations - “security/terrorism, secret/top secret and famous, eminent or notorious people.” Also noteworthy is the not surprising fact that Elm House records were destroyed just prior to Tony Blair leaving office, which per last chapter is characterized by so many D-notices, lost/destroyed criminal evidence and nonstop pedophilia cover-up.

After all, so much is at stake whenever senior members from the royal palaces, cabinet ministries, the Westminster government, and top brass from both police and national security services are all caught diddling kids in horrific rape and sodomy catering to the elite’s most degenerate, sick pathologies utilized to guarantee Luciferian control over puppet leaders, world politics and indeed human history.

Hence, there’s no way that the June 1982 raid at the Elm Guest House on Rocks Lane was a local vice squad operation but had to be a national security services recovery operation to confiscate and safeguard as much incriminating evidence as possible to protect VIP child sex offenders atop the British government. As long as their despicable habits are sealed off to escape public attention, the compromised, controlled and deranged puppets are kept in “power,” remaining completely under continual diabolical control to submit to Lucifer’s ungodly will.

Aside from the original 40-page Geoffrey Dickens dossier and Scotland Yard’s two-year PIE probe dossier both handed over in November 1983 and then subsequently “lost,” compliments of Home Office Minister Lord Brittan, eventually in 2014 the lost evidence morphed into an admitted 114 disappeared files pertaining to VIP politicians sexually abusing children.[335] But then come to find out, by its own admission from 1979 to 1999, the UK government has systematically lost or destroyed a phenomenal, staggering total of 2,074 pedo-related files.[336] This fact alone proves that Britain’s central government is in the business of protecting its VIP pedophiles. Another incriminating numerical fact is that despite the police in 2015 releasing the official number of 261 so called VIP pedophile suspects found during its 30 post-Savile policing pedo-operations (135 in media entertainment, 76 politicians, 43 in music industry and 7 in sports),[337] UK law enforcement has defiantly refused to both identify and follow up with the resulting status of these 261 VIP pedophile suspects.[338] That too is nothing short of a blatant, in-our-face cover-up as well. By refusing to disclose, are we to believe nothing ever happened to these suspects?

When Mark Sedwill, the permanent secretary at the Home Office, confessed about the 114 missing files, self-righteous bluster was heard from home affairs select committee chair pedo Keith Vaz, urgently needing to get to the bottom of who the guilty culprit must be.[339] And like always, that was the last we heard, no one has been named as the responsible party for losing 114 files, much less 2,074. But not surprisingly, the thousands of lost files never quite made it to mainstream news either. That's because it implicates the entire government in the cover-up. Yet no one in London has ever or will ever be charged with destruction of evidence, willful obstruction and perversion of justice, criminal corruption or cover-up, just as not one VIP pedophile has ever been brought to justice. Again, same old sad, pathetic story.

Various accounts covering the Elm Guest House raid characterize the policing operation as a page right out of an old keystone cop fiasco with undercover Special Branch officers just several days earlier conspicuously infiltrating the guest house as fellow pedo-patrons.[340] The lead officer reportedly feigned a fake arm sling injury with attached hidden microphone alleged to have accidentally gone off, signaling the greenlight for 60 officers strong to storm the house of ill repute apprehending the Kasirs, their 10-year old son, a 17-year old rent boy masseuse and nine pedo-clients caught on the premises, three of whom were reportedly MPs, and five of whom as later described in court were naked watching "a thoroughly obscene" child porn video.[341] On top of that, as a giveaway that this tactical event was staged, Richmond social services that had been serving as the child pipeline facilitator for Elm Guest House were previously tipped off days in advance of the raid, explaining why no Grafton Close residents were present.[342]

The only Grafton Close representative there that night was with the Special Branch raiding party – Neil Keir, the care home officer-in-charge who until that day by all reports had been a child victim procurer, and since he was in the direct employ of and in cahoots with Richmond social services director Louis Minster, himself a known guest house visitor, even the most casual observer would properly conclude that the raid was a staged event in a damage control recovery operation in order to obtain and destroy evidence that could potentially bring down the Thatcher government.

As a potent bargaining chip to keep the Kasirs in check from blowing the lid off MI5's covert blackmail operation, their son was taken into custody and placed at none other than the pedo-haven - the Grafton Close Children's Home.[343] No Elm House arrests resulted in prosecution, other than the Kasirs after a number of charges were dropped leaving them to each pay a £1,000 fine for the ever-so-minor offense of running a disorderly house, their brief trial culminating with a suspended sentence in April 1983.

What does all this tell us? It was a high level top down cover-up to both shield the Thatcher government from ruin as well as salvage and maintain status quo on UK's pedophilia blackmail operations. With a constant cover-up ever since, the pedophilia at the top of the British Establishment has remained virtually unscathed and ongoing to this day, just operating slightly more discreetly under the radar. But all the constantly recurring holes and anomalies as each new scandal surfaces serve as proof that a massive cover-up is irrefutable regardless of the elite's nonstop feeble attempt to deceitfully suppress the truth.

More evidence of a cover-up emerged when confidential police records from 1983 were leaked to the press in 2013 in the Savile aftermath.[344] As a Grafton Close Children's Home resident, a victim at Elm Guest House reported VIP pedo-crimes to the Scotland Yard in 1983 a year after the authorities raided the brothel. But no doubt on orders from on high again the Metro Police Services (MPS) stood down and failed to further investigate the boy's claims of sex abuse, obviously already known by MPS, Special Branch and MI5. In April 2013 leaked files show how the police interviewed a second boy in 1983 who had corroborated the allegations made by the first victim. After all the potentially damaging VIP pedophilia evidence had been confiscated in the June 1982 raid, by 1983 with the cover-up in full swing, Metro was not about to rock the boat and begin protecting abused and still at-risk children, following strict orders from Special Branch and MI5 to no longer investigate the rampant abuse any further. The Met was fully responsible for dereliction of duty in failing to protect child victims as well as overt obstruction of justice in a willful conspiratorial cover-up of all available evidence led by Britain's pedo-elite.

So police consistently ignored 16 Grafton Close residents' accounts of abuse in 1982 after the Elm Guest House[345] and again a year later when two more boys came forth to report abuse in 1983. Yet Richmond-on-the-Thames council in charge of social services and its care homes as well as law enforcement both chose to ignore the boys' serious allegations. Disgracefully, as always this latest uncovered evidence of two more victims reporting in 1983 only confirms the already cold hard fact that priority has always been to protect powerful rapists over defenseless abused children. Muzzled by Special Branch and MI5, Met police kept quiet and took no further action, letting more innocent boys become VIP predator victims.

The second Grafton Close resident, now in his late 40s, explained:

I had known that the police had forgotten about this, and were always on the fringe of what was happening. At the time, I knew that there was something wrong. But as a child, I was not sure what.[346]

In a 2014 effort to motivate retired police officers, social workers, witnesses and informants to contact investigators working on Operations Fernbridge and Midland delving into historic VIP abuse, author of the Cyril Smith exposé Rochdale MP Simon Danczuk and MP John Mann began calling for amnesty for former officers forced to sign gagging orders or fearing their pensions would be cut off.[347] Anti-child abuse MP John Mann actually sponsored an amendment to the Official Secrets Act in February 2015 granting immunity to former police, civil servants and witnesses that would prohibit prosecution for providing evidence on historic child sexual abuse.[348] But Tories and Social Democrats voted against it.

A month later shortly before becoming Prime Minister, Theresa May offered this rather feeble response:

> If people are giving evidence of child abuse I would not expect them – I would hope them not to be prosecuted under the Official Secrets Act.[349]

That hesitant and weak utterance was purposely designed to not convince anyone to come forth. The Mann amendment failed because the majority in the British government insist that no change in the Official Secret Acts law is necessary to protect whistleblowers from reporting what they know. But history has only shown that for many decades child sexual abuse whistleblowers have consistently been harassed, threatened, smeared and disbelieved. And the Official Secrets Act as existing law most certainly does have the teeth to throw truth tellers in jail just like the 1889 Cleveland scandal did.

A disappointed, exasperated John Mann told BBC Radio 4:

> Police officer after police officer have told me that the Official Secrets Act and fear of breaching it are a bar to them.[350]

This is just one typical example of the multiple barriers that purposely remain in place within Britain’s legal system intended to effectively inhibit full disclosure of the damning truth that would deliver long overdue justice to the powerful child rapists still lurking inside and out of the government. It appears that MPs voted against the amendment to once again protect the child eating monsters among them. It strongly suggests that throughout all the British institutions of power, be it the Parliament, the prime minister’s office, the high courts, CPS or top law enforcement, the system is irreparably rigged with pedophiles and pedophile protectors who may well comprise the majority in the halls of government.

Though Parliament balked at amnesty, within a week after Danczuk raised the issue in 2014, it immediately prompted 40 informants to come forth with yet more allegations of VIP abuse.[351] One was the retired detective that interviewed the 8-year old victim in 1982, recently stating that he was required to sign a gag order at the time prior to his investigation shutdown. But over three decades later his recollection of criminal events also remained consistent with the victim’s recalled disclosure, only reinforcing the already voluminous body of cumulative cover-up evidence conveniently buried with the “out of sight, out of mind” 2015 closures of Operations Fernbridge and Midland.

Those two policing operations directed at the heart of the British government, by design have failed miserably to hold VIP pedophiles accountable. Not unlike Yewtree, either zero VIP offenders ended up prosecuted or a minor token player winds up convicted to appease the public. Long ago a likely majority of British citizens have realistically concluded that the most powerful politicians who are flaming child sodomizers are unreachable in a thoroughly rigged system designed to ensure that they remain free to live out their unimpeded lives above the law till death do them part.

Operation Midland came up totally emptyhanded and Fernbridge sent one pervert priest to prison for a relative short stint of three years. That’s it. Otherwise, all the VIPs have gotten away and continue getting away with their thousands and thousands of ungodly predatory crimes. All the so called inquiries numbering over 30 different policing operations into pedophilia in Britain have pathetically next to nothing to show for themselves, at grave cost to both the taxpaying public and its complete lack of faith in its irreversibly corrupt government.

In February 2013 while probing Elm Guest House child abuse as part of Fernbridge, the Scotland Yard finally arrested the former deputy head of Grafton Close Home - John Stingemore - for sexually abusing boys under his care years earlier.[352] Along with his procuring boss Neil Keir who to this day remains a free man, it was Stingemore who was responsible for both trafficking his Grafton sex slaves eight miles away to the Elm Guest House as well as largely responsible for the suicide of one of his victims - 28-year old Peter Bornshin. Peter’s abuse at 13 and 14 from frequent Elm House trips drove him at 28 to take his own life with a drug overdose.[353] Meanwhile at 72, his pimping abuser Stingemore died just days ahead of his scheduled trial. Was the odd timing of Stingemore’s death the result of knowing too much, posing a serious enough liability for guilty VIPs he once partied with?

Or could it have also served as a direct warning to Stingemore’s religious friend arrested on the same day in February 2013 who was due to also go on trial with him. Decades earlier, Stingemore provided easy child access for his pedo-priest buddy, Catholic vicar Tony McSweeney to sexually assault boys from Grafton Close. It was Father McSweeney as Grafton’s part-time chaplain who played “good cop” to Stingemore’s “bad cop.”[354] McSweeney was also a chaplain of the Norwich City football club and in 1990 officiated the wedding of world heavyweight champ Frank Bruno, the Freemason pictured shaking hands with the Yorkshire Ripper while their mutual satanic friend Sir Jimmy smugly looked on.[355]

Though denying he ever committed sexual abuse, McSweeney did admit to making trips to Holland with Stingemore to purchase and distribute child pornography, the world's child snuff film capital.[356] In 1998 the priest was even caught possessing child porn videos and indecent photos of children but of course the police and church just looked the other way and allowed him to move on to do more damage elsewhere.[357] A couple of high profile British Catholic bishops quietly helped him transfer to East Anglia.[358]

As the only formal police operation specifically designated to investigate VIP abuse at Elm Guest House, Fernbridge resulted in the conviction of zero VIPs, just one lowly, previously protected, pervert priest while dozens of infamously known monsters were explicitly captured on police surveillance, MI5 blackmail videos as well as Carole Kasir's photographs along with her guest sign-in list, diary entries and Mary and Chris' handwritten notes. Despite plenty of victims' firsthand accounts, including 16 Grafton Close boys identified as "recruited" Elm House victims,[359] and so much other blatantly solid evidence, nothing outside this one fallen ex-priest not even connected directly to Elm House crimes. McSweeney is already a free man having served his 3-year sentence.[360] All the rest of the guilty famous pedophiles remain free, unimpeded to strike again and again with total impunity to this very day. Once again the Elm Guest House story plays out the pathetically shameful running theme - at the world's pedophilia epicenter, some things never change.

By its own factual history, the only accurate conclusion to be drawn is that the United Kingdom lacks both the moral and political will and integrity to protect its “expendable” children trapped in its abominable [Don’t] Care System. That said, the same can be said for North America, Australia, the rest of Europe and many other nations around the world as well. Where family court systems exploit economically disadvantaged populations, creating a growing subclass of throwaway children [and adults if they live that long], a booming child sex trade results in history’s fastest growing, most profitable illicit industry on earth, all because a relative handful of sub-humans atop this predatory food chain have enjoyed untouchable impunity for centuries.

According to Operation Fernbridge, in addition to the 1982 Elm Guest House cover-up of ongoing VIP abuse, yet another unexplained failure to investigate the scandal occurred in 2003 when police were again informed that in the late 1970s and early 80s, children from the local Richmond care homes were brought in to “work” at the guest house operating as a child brothel for ministers and MPs.[361] Terry Earland, director of Richmond children’s services from 1981 to 2003, originally reported child abuse in 1982 to both the police and his colleagues on Richmond council.

Because the Special Branch raid accomplished its nefarious objective to secure and withhold all further evidence, upon approaching retirement two decades later, Terry again met with police. Unhappy with law enforcement’s blatant stonewalling in 2003 into 2004, Earland registered a formal grievance with the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC). Despite heaps of evidence, IPCC also failed to respond for the all too obvious reason - orders from on high again. Recall from last chapter that in 2004 the Blair government was flagrantly engaging in its own batch of pedophilia cover-ups, protecting his Home Office minister Paul Boateng in Lambeth and D-noticing Operation Ore to shield Lord Mandelson while facing intense growing pressure over his minister of children Oppenheimer-Hodge to resign for her appalling pedophilia record that began the same year Elm House was raided.

Terry Earland emphatically stated:

> My modus operandi at that time [1982] was always that if there was an allegation of abuse, it was referred to the [Scotland Yard] child-protection unit.[362]

Yet Terry's boss Louis Minster, head of Richmond's social services from 1975 to 1984, plus a conspicuous name on the infamous guest list, claimed in February 2013 that he never heard of any child abuse at either the Elm Guest House or Grafton Close Home:

> There was never any… There were a couple of child abuse cases – violence in the families, and what have you. But the answer would be no. There were no inquiries at all.[363]

The 81-year old Minster now living a comfy retired lifestyle on a hilltop residence in Malta, a notorious pedo-bastion dating back to the Peter Righton days whom he knew, prefaced his denial of knowing any abuse or raid or inquiry ever occurred on his watch by making sure to mention he currently suffers from memory problems, thus establishing "plausible deniability," adding:

> I have never heard of them. I read it on Google the other evening.[364]

Yet Terry Earland insists that he told Minster, the Richmond council and the Met police about the abuse. So one of them is clearly lying and my bet is on Minster as the boldface liar trying to cover his own guilty ass. It's on record that twice Minster pulled the file belonging to the second 14-year old boy that reported VIP abuse, a highly unusual fact in and of itself, particularly since the boy was no longer under the care of Richmond social services.[365] When 2012 political journalist of the year David Hencke called Minster in Malta in

2013 to clear up this most glaring discrepancy, Minster feebly pretended he wasn't Minster.[366]

Despite his confessed memory impairment, by October the following year 2014, suddenly the 83-year old's recall was as lucid as ever, answering question after question posed by a local reporter from Malta, explaining that in 1982 Terry Earland did in fact brief him prior to that June house raid:

> The police had asked to carry out inspections and interviews in the presence of a social worker and I had instructed Earland to take care of it since it was his responsibility.[367]

Notice his euphemistic wording, calling a police raid an "inspection." And who from Richmond social services gets sent to accompany Special Branch on the guest house raid? Not a Richmond social worker per protocol but the Grafton Close Home Officer-in-Charge Neil Keir, who with deputy head pedo-John Stingemore were the very pimps trafficking their group home boys to the nightmare on Elm.[368]

Minster claims he was never interviewed by police or ever under any investigation, and that:

> Last March, I got a phone call from the Metropolitan Police who informed me that the Director of Public Prosecutions had decided not to use me as a witness.[369]

Again, more euphemism as by all rights, Minster should have been a suspect a long time ago, not a witness. Seems the Richmond council and the Met would be equally motivated to sweep under the rug every last trace of the Elm Guest House scandal and their part in the cover-up since it's more than obvious both have much to criminally hide and avoid explaining.

The notorious list of Elm Guest House visitors posted on the internet by Mary Moss not only includes then Richmond social services director Louis Minster but also Richmond council's lauded education director as well. Apparently

Richmond Director of Education and former Wandsworth Chief Constable Donald Naismith has never been taken to task to explain how his name as a longtime London borough educator (1974-1994) wound up as an Elm houseguest.[370] A 1994 queen honored CBE recipient,[371] to this day the retiree is also apparently enjoying his golden years as a renowned author and expert in UK education.[372] When the borough's social services director and the education director are both pedophiles, they could easily arrange through school record photos of all the Richmond boys in care homes be featured in the Spartacus catalogue so that VIPs had the pick of the litter at Elm Guest House.[373]

Aside from incest, professions with daily access to children - teachers, coaches, Boy Scout leaders and social workers, childcare workers, babysitters - all too commonly turn out to be the child abusers. In addition to London borough social services and education directors, another Elm Guest House identified visitor is senor Westminster social worker Steve Everett. And yet another semi-notable from "the list" is George Tremlett, former Greater London Council leader, bookstore owner, journalist and David Bowie biographer (Bowie himself an accused pedophile[374]).[375]

Several more now deceased Westminster politicians wound up on the Elm Guest House list. Tory MP Charles Irving[376] was yet another Monday Club member and advisor to Peter Campbell's CGHE, was knighted in 1990 and his prominent family owned a hotel chain.[377] Another politician on "the list" is Labor MP Ron Brown who died in 2002.[378]

Yet another fairly big name on that infamous Elm Guest House list is Labor MP Stuart Bell from Middlesbrough, elected in 1983 until he died in October 2012.[379] In 1987 Stuart Bell played a reactionary, highly inflammatory role in the nation's largest single CSA case up to that time.[380] In his home Cleveland County MP Bell libelously accused pediatricians and child abuse specialists of falsely making up allegations when they allegedly determined that 123 kids likely suffered sexual abuse. It also turns out that one of the abuse victims' father accused Bell but an alleged innocent man was tried and convicted for the crime despite the father's strong suspicion that the actual perpetrator was VIP Stuart Bell,[381] whom the queen knighted in 2004.[382]

No surprise that a number of police officers were among the list of Elm Guest House regulars as a manifestation of pedo-foxes guarding the Elm child victim henhouse.[383] Among them Deputy Constable (DC) Chris Carter from Richmond Criminal Investigative Department (CID) and DC Ron Thornton also of Richmond CID, DC David Lines of Barnes CID, Police Constable (PC) Rodrick Smeaton, PC Alan Jones from Special Branch[384] and two Women Police Constables - retired 30-year Metro Sergeant Sheila McInnes and WPC Elizabeth Meredith. Another guest list name belongs to then Met Police Constable and likely current 62-year old former Met Police Inspector, pro-EU supporter Chris Wicks, who surfaced in a Mirror article confronting philandering ex-Tory Foreign Minister-Brexiteer Boris Johnson in a restaurant in Greece over last New Year's holiday.[385]

To further lend credence to allegations that a number of law enforcement pedophiles were regular Elm Guest House visitors, a child actor Dr. Who - Lee Towsey, the 16-year old masseuse employed for five months at the time of the June 1982 Special Branch raid, claims he had sex with three police officers at the brothel, likely with one or more of the above named guests. Speaking to The Mail on Sunday in April 2014 after reporting his experiences to Fernbridge detectives in 2012, Lee stated that Carole Kasir complained that she was forced to pay for "a police Christmas fund" as an extortion fee to Richmond police for "protection" during Elm's years of operation.[386] Towsey also corroborated that Carole kept a list of high profile customers in a black book as her "insurance policy." Carole also mentioned the prominent cabinet minister as a regular house guest later determined to be Leon Brittan. It was Lee who informed MP Simon Danczuk upon release of his book on Cyril Smith that there were “much bigger fish” far “higher up the food chain” at Elm,[387] referring to Sir Leon, though at sweet 16 Lee had a sexual encounter with “Big Cyril as well:

Carole told me not to let him in the sauna, as he had got stuck in there before and they had to take the door off to get him out. Smith wanted me to strip naked and massage him. I was also forced to watch as he masturbated.[388]

The first time the underage masseuse had sex at the brothel with a policeman was in February 1982:

One came round in the first month. He was early 20s, good-looking, not the usual sort who went to the house.[389]

The next occasion that Lee encountered the young police officer was when Elm was raided and the Kasirs and Lee were taken to the police station. Towsey also maintains that in April he had sex with another undercover officer that must have been from Special Branch as he was a member of the raiding party. But Lee said:

He came back about three weeks later and hired a room. He stayed two nights and on the second night his partner stayed too. I ended up having sex with them. Afterwards they asked how much and I told them that they were not clients and felt insulted they wanted to pay me.[390]

At the time of the June raid, Lee was charged with assisting in the management of the brothel but was later dropped. That summer Towsey acquired another job working in the kitchen of a bingo hall where his father would pick him up after his shift. One day three policeman arrived at the usual time in place of his father. Lee said:

One of them was at the station following the raid. They told me they could pick me up at any time and told me keep my mouth shut. I never told anyone, not even my family.[391]

Lee Towsey explained that despite a couple of calls from police since contacting him in 2012, he feels frustrated because no police action has been forthcoming after reporting his abuse as an underage victim at the hands of three lawbreaking pedophile cops, adding:

I am considering legal action against the Met. I shut the door on it once and I want to shut the door on it again and move on.[392]

In 2013 Operation Fernbridge detectives were in search of the alleged two dozen aforementioned photos of this infamous motley crew of pervert guests reportedly photographed with their victims by the likely murdered brothel owner Carole Kasir. Of course if these photos have not already been destroyed, both security services and Met police have had in possession their own sets of elusive incriminating photos. As alluded to earlier, towards the end of her life, Carole Kasir befriended Mary Moss and was alleged to have given her copies of damaging VIP documents and photos. After three decades since the Elm House closure, the more recent 2013 Fernbrdge raid on Mary Moss' home was never intended to bring belated justice to the unpunished VIPs as no suspect has ever been arrested, much less convicted. But again it was another overt attempt to collect and remove perhaps the last vestige of smoking gun evidence to make certain VIP pedophiles stay out of both jail and the headlines.

In 2012 the police scoping exercise - Operation Fairbank - was conducted to determine if a further criminal investigation - Operation Fernbridge - would be warranted. It was. The Fernbridge objective ostensibly was to determine why prior police investigations were prematurely shut down in 1982 and never got off the ground in 2004,[393] and the active role that Richmond council played in the abuse and cover-up.[394] The Liberal Richmond council leader from November 1983 to 2001, the knighted Sir David Williams, said there's no evidence of child abuse that he's aware of.[395] Yet Scotland Yard determined that the council paid out a rather hefty sum of hush money to an alleged Elm House child abuse victim. So Sir David wasn't being totally honest in his emphatic denial of abuse.

Lasting over two years in duration but closed by March 2015, unfortunately Operation Fernbridge amounted to no more than the same going-through-the motion posturing, under the false pretense of "leaving no stone unturned," as pedo-enabling PM David Cameron promised in order to placate a riled up public fresh off the Jimmy Saville revelations, demanding answers and justice that in Britain appear destined to never come to fruition.[396] The most obvious reason for Scotland Yard's long history of aborted inquires and impotent inaction is because as mere lackeys on the pecking order totem pole, they simply follow their stand down orders from the Home Office or MI5. Like all previous cover-ups from the 1980s through the 2000s, all the post-Savile police probes exploring the Westminster-Downing Street connection have also proven to be more of the same unending cover-up.

It doesn't take millions of taxpayer pounds and years to figure out that powerful pedophiles will never voluntarily expose themselves. And as long as the highest ranking police, spies, judges and politicians are either pedophiles or pedophile enablers, the ending of the story will always stay the same. But all over the world the truth is finally breaking through their previously impenetrable walls and the guilty predators will soon be exposed and some will be held accountable before they too die off from old age.

Child victims through the ages have virtually always been ignored, disbelieved, or, if they present damaging enough evidence against VIP sickos, they become targeted for murder, character assassination, anything to eliminate them as threats to the status quo crime cabal. Child campaigner Chris Fay who gathered incriminating evidence against Leon Brittan from Carole Kasir prior to her sudden death was subsequently prosecuted and convicted for investment fraud in 2011, effectively neutralizing him thereafter as a fully credible witness to the public.[397] Today's precarious situation where all the prior allegations once deemed "credible and true" from now alleged "fantasist" Nick (as if he is the only accuser in the world), claiming horrific torture and abuse at both Elm Guest House and Dolphin Square, witnessing three alleged child murders at the hands of VIPs, suddenly in 2016 were all declared false, automatically casting unfair doubt and dispersions on countless actual victims and their true claims.

In early 2018 the so called Nick, whose actual name Carl Beech was released by the judge[398] after the 50-year old was initially arrested on charges of possessing and making indecent images of children.[399] But currently Beech awaits his criminal trial scheduled for March 2019 on charges of perverting justice and fraud.[400] See the pattern here? Ex-MP Danczuk was alleged to have sexted a 17-year old girl and raped his first wife while asleep, in effect ruining his parliamentary career as a child abuse advocate.[401] Seems one by one the biggest threats to the status quo pedo-cover-up are all effectively neutralized one way or another. The more serious and damaging the accusations are to the pedo-elite, the more certain accusers' reputations will be attacked, smeared and destroyed.

With Operation Midland probing possible VIP murders, costing Briton taxpayers £3m and resulting in not even one single arrest, and Metro Police Services having to humiliatingly apologize to ex-MP pervert Proctor, General Bramall and Leon Brittan's widow, the latter two granted £100,000 each in compensation for the alleged false accusations against them, along with Sir Cliff Richard's July 2018 landmark court victory, the pedo-elite's pushback effectively seals the deal.[402] No famous pedophile still alive in Britain will be brought to justice at the earth's pedophilia epicenter. The aforementioned VIPs' guilt or innocence notwithstanding, powerful child rapists' 2018 pushback have won and the current IICSA ensures that abysmal, shameful outcome.

The more the pedo-elite can waste taxpayer money on fruitless boondoggle witch hunts against so called innocent accused VIP victims, the less believable real victims of child abuse automatically become and the less public support for costly, failed police investigations into historic child sex abuse. The criminal elite's ultimate aim is to render the thousands of victims who've been abused by prominent pedophiles throughout the years null and void, where they're neither heard nor do they matter, as if their abuse never really happened at all. Of course that would be a grotesque travesty of justice and we cannot allow any legal system to reach such an abominable state of filth as in Britain. In effect, the cabal agenda is to censor, silence and deny the massive, glaring, overwhelming evidence that irrefutably speaks for itself, regardless of whatever gargantuan effort is made to cover it all up. Finally, if abuse victims figure that the corrupt UK justice system is so corrupt and so rigged against the truth ever winning or counting in a British court of law, no one will ever press charges, much less undergo the enduring stress and pressure of a long drawn out court process or even be sufficiently resolute to report crimes in the first place, reasonably concluding neither the legal system nor the police can ever be trusted.

Even an establishment bigwig, former 5-year Director of Public Prosecutions Keir Starmer has admitted:

> Many, if not most, still do not have sufficient confidence in our criminal justice system to come forward in the first place and report what has happened to them… The prevalence figures for domestic violence and abuse set out in a report by the Early Intervention Foundation last week remind us that this is far from a historical matter. For many victims the adversarial journey through our courtrooms is such an ordeal that most vow never to repeat it. The way some victims and witnesses in the sex-grooming trials were treated makes very uncomfortable reading for any politician, lawyer or judge… Even when a case is sensitively handled, the adversarial system does not always serve victims well.[403]

… Or at all. One victim echoing the DPP's statement above who was abused by high powered pedophile criminals from age 9 to 16 had this to say:

> The authority is not what stops people from speaking out, it's the fear that is instilled by these people. It appears the cover-ups did happen and it makes survivors very wary because you don't know who you can have confidence in to report.[404]

There's good reason why the criminal justice system is not called the victims' justice system, because when the rich and powerful are the criminals, always they're protected and always the victims re-victimized. With all the power and resources in their favor, the VIP pedophile strategy is counting on the above scenario to only continue on indefinitely since it's worked so well for them for so long. The entire court system needs a complete drastic overhaul if anything's to ever change. Again, Keir Starmer has called for "a radical shift in attitude and approach" in the existing criminal justice system, advocating a specific and enforceable new victims' law, concluding:

We could start by retiring the description ‘criminal justice system’ and conceive instead of a criminal justice service fit for victims.[405]

But as gatekeepers too many pedophiles have long infiltrated Britain’s rotten-to-the-core legal system, ensuring that the outcome stays fixed and controlled so that VIP child rapists always remain free while too many abuse victims, suffering immeasurably, tragically die too young. For this sad, pathetic realty to ever change, we citizens of the world must unify as one formidable force for good to make it happen.

In the meantime, survivor groups like the Shirley Oaks Survivors Association (SOSA) stand out as a model of the way to go to mobilize power and support for vindicated recognition and at least recover long overdue financial compensation. It’s still not satisfactory justice until the criminals are fairly punished in a court of law but better than no justice at all. Abuse survivor organizations can also be instrumental in assisting police to gather evidence for prosecution as SOSA helped put a pedophile priest behind bars as noted in the last chapter.

As yet another example of the pedo-foxes guarding the henhouse, in this case UK’s justice system, let’s examine one high court judge who in 2013 was appointed as the queen’s personal legal advisor.[406] A few months after his royal upgrade, Appeal Court Judge Adrian Fulford was having to answer charges that in 1979 he was founder of the campaign group called Conspiracy Against Public Morals that openly supported and defended the rights of pedophiles. He attended strategy meetings with PIE chairman Tom O’ Carroll, later found guilty of possessing child pornography, and organized protests outside the courtrooms where PIE leaders were on trial for conspiracy to corrupt public morals. A pamphlet from the organization that Fulford founded claimed that if children were allowed to have sex with adults, it would free them from the oppression of the state and their parents.

The barrister's activism motivated him to make a speech at a 1980 PIE rally defending pedophile rights, acknowledged in PIE's newsletter Magpie thanking him by name for delivering the best speech of the day. While a volunteer at the same infamous civil rights group - NCCL (currently known as Liberty) - that embraced PIE as an affiliate partner that also came back to bite Labor leaders Patricia Hewitt, Harriet Harman and Jack Dromey in the ass in March 2014, also stung Lord Judge Fulford. Despite clear evidence he was actively supporting pedophiles having sex with kids, when confronted over his past reprehensible behavior, the razor sharp legal mind of Queen's Counsel suddenly went dull and limp, claiming he had no recollection of the pro-pedophile organization he founded nor any of his actions defending their "rights" that despite his denial remain a matter of clear public record. In his own deceitful words:

I have no memory of having been involved with its foundation or the detail of the work of this campaign.[407]

Rather than be honest and cop to it, he went on a self-righteous rant about how he would never be in favor of anyone or any group that sexually abuses children and insists he has never advocated lowering the age of sexual consent from 16. Regardless of his lame excuses and double talk scrambling to do damage control, the facts plainly speak for themselves.

That said, when a Supreme Court judge was assigned to investigate the nitty gritty of his PIE-friendly past, Fulford was exonerated and cleared of any misconduct… pretty predictable in the nation that consistently protects child rapists.[408] This pathetic episode is just one more piece of factual evidence blatantly showing how judicial members of an enabling royal elite are entrenched in positions of gatekeeping power to ensure that the pedophilia epidemic stays shielded as much as sinisterly possible from public exposure, thereby guaranteeing that the diabolical cover-up continues on indefinitely.

For the umpteenth time, shortly after Labor MP Tom Watson's confrontational outburst on the House of Commons floor directed at the flustered Prime Minister David Cameron in October 2012, reminding the world once again of the unfinished business of reckoning with the still covered-up Westminster pedophilia scandal, in January 2013 the Metro Police was once again compelled to relook into historic child sexual abuse under Operation Fairbank turned Fernbridge in what the Daily Mail was calling perhaps "the biggest Establishment cover-up" ever.[409] Then two years later in March 2015, the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC), the same outfit that refused to investigate Elm Guest House in 2004, jumped on the insincere, "give-victims-a-voice" bandwagon to announce:

> [It] is to investigate 14 referrals detailing allegations of corruption in the Metropolitan Police Service in relation to child sex offences dating from the 1970's to the 2000's.[410]

These allegations involve the numerous aborted police investigations into pedophilia from orders on high, the withholding of evidence against VIPs, a conspiracy within the Met to protect high ranking politicians and sexual abuse committed by senior police personnel. But just when VIP probes were fizzling out with Fernbridge and Midland closed, this IPCC investigation begun in March 2015 also appears to have run its dead-end course as well. So much for investigations into the Westminster cover-up.

Three months after the IPCC announced its 2015 investigation into the widespread Westminster cover-up, MP John Mann warned:

> Without a question there is cover-up at the highest level.[411]

Mann insisted that the British Establishment is still blocking revelations about “systemic” child abuse going public. He believes “hundreds of thousands of people” are “just starting to come forward” with allegations - and they are just “the tip of the iceberg.”[412] In the near four years since John’s statements, it seems the Establishment may be winning this war to suppress the truth as investigation after investigation has failed to bring even one VIP to justice and with no police inquiry left now to probe historic child abuse, it doesn’t look good for the home team still fighting for the truth to come out.

Under the false cover of Fernbridge pledging to finally conduct a real investigation into VIP child abuse, on an early morning in January 2013, the Establishment launched a decisive assault in its continued cover-up when police raided the central London residence of child protection social worker Mary Moss, searching to eliminate the last incriminating evidence known to be still at large. Along with other important documents entrusted her by Carole Kasir before her death, the alleged Elm Guest House list was recovered. Fortunately for us Mary had smartly beat the boys in blue to the punch, uploading the list of boy brothel patrons online before they stole (and no doubt destroyed) more key documents from her home. To this day copies of Mary and Chris’s handwritten notes listing the brothel’s VIP guests can still be found online,[413] and infamous child rapists from the Establishment were outed anyway, a rare win for the truth and the public’s right to know.

But first the caveat… though child abuse at Elm Guest House is clearly irrefutable, alleged visitors who often signed in at the boy brothel under fake names are included on Mary Moss’s online list as the result of handwritten notes written by Mary and her fellow colleague Chris Fay. Also posted online are some of Mary’s additional notes from hours of meeting at length with Carole Kasir. However, the accuracy of her online documents cannot be verified as gospel truth since they're based on hearsay information supplied by Mary via Carole Kasir, whose word cannot always be relied upon.

With this qualifier in mind, the following paragraphs cover the alleged VIP sex orgy guests and other notables listed as visitors. Three are so called pop stars. "Kitty" aka superstar Sir Cliff Richard apparently joined by another aging early 1960s heartthrob-turned-actor Jess Conrad as well as a third singer named Ron Wells aka Gladys. Other listings include a bishop that may well be Prince Charles' Anglican Church pal former Bishop Peter Ball linked to pedophilia crimes in East Sussex, home of former Grafton Close Home's deputy head John Stingemore as a transporter of boys to the Elm Guest House.[414] Among senior MPs aside from Sir Cyril Smith are Monday Club members mentioned earlier, Harvey Proctor and still active MP Sir Peter Bottomley. An official from the royal household is also listed (actually both the queen's lead bodyguard Michael Trestrail as well as Buckingham Palace senior aide Richard Langley have been implicated),[415] also a senior MI5 officer (the usual suspect - MI5 royal traitor Anthony Blunt who signed in as Anthony Goldstein and also linked to Kincora scandal as well), an MI6 officer (likely Peter Hayman as former MI6 deputy director), and a prominent business mogul (possibly related to Guy Blackburn-Hamilton, alleged son of Westland Helicopters chairman).[416]

Another name worth noting is Barry Haddon, an alleged child pornographer that Mary Moss' notes claim he supplied child porn to Proctor, was a fellow child procurer and close associate of Terry Dwyer who also knew John Rowe and Peter Glencross.[417] Both Dwyer and Haddon were also boy toy suppliers and apparently protected by higher-ups on the food chain. Haddon's black book "diary" contains a number of senior police officers such as Detective Chief Inspector Chris Sage and a Brent police surgeon named Dr. David Foster.[418]

A cartoonish underworld figure named Patrick Puddles is also listed as an alleged frequent Elm guest with a particular taste for posing for photo sessions with young boys in the sauna room.[419] David Issett, the cabal stooge claiming to be Carole's boyfriend who signed off on her two "suicided" notes, insisted his former boss "Patsy" would never be caught up in pedophilia.[420] An ironic twist coming from an alleged pedophile himself. According to local papers, Issett was linked to a child pornography ring involving Grafton Close Home victims and convicted pedophile-pornographer David Hamilton-Grant, extradited from Cyprus, Turkey.[421] Now deceased, Patsy Puddles was a police protected local businessman, property owner[422] and major child porn distributor with a distribution circuit from London to Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Germany and Cyprus.[423]

Notice the Elm Guest House attracted those who abuse exploitable naked children not only for sex with high rollers willing to pay top dollar to rape and torture, but also a converging parasitic swarm commercially exploiting boys for indecent photos and videos for sordid profit. The Elm House Nightmare was a den of iniquity in the worst possible way and don't think for a minute Mr. and Mrs. Kasir didn't know it,[424] leaving their own young son to be allegedly victimized.

Finally, among the motley Elm guest crew arrived the post-WWII British Nazi leader Colin Jordan of the National Socialist Movement financed by his heiress wife Dior, not the National Front as reported on the Moss list,[425] and a Sinn Fein leader who signed in with the alias Gary Walker.[426] Just as Northern Ireland's Kincora scandal shows British intelligence working covert sexual blackmail with both sides in the Irish-UK conflict, with pedophile leaders from both sides raping boys side by side at London's Elm Guest House, it likewise demonstrates the larger sobering reality that all so called political conflicts and wars in this world are artificially manufactured, planned creations, executed by the same pedophilic elite that virtually owns and controls the entire planet. With centralized control their juggernaut, the ruling elite is presently engaged in a genocidal war against humanity, leading to the endgame scenario of fascist totalitarian tyranny that enslaves the surviving, heavily depopulated, powerless servant class. This is what humans who value freedom, currently targeted in the cabal's crosshairs, are facing in this 11th hour. Out of this Elm Guest House saga emerges many cautionary lessons.

Over the years countless allegations have also persisted of pervasive child sexual abuse at orgies held inside many of the 1250 private luxury flats within the enormous Dolphin Square complex in Pimlico, less than a mile from the Parliamentary buildings where as many as 100 MPs have made their home.[427] The 1930s dungeon-like chambers are steeped in dark mystery and scandal. Famous old generals and admirals, spies, politicians, writers and royalty frequently make Dolphin Square their home.[428] M5 and MI6 chiefs have targeted the largest residential block in all of Europe as one humongous sexual blackmail honey trap. After a number of victims and witnesses have come forth since 2012 to report that they were trafficked to flats at Dolphin Square and abused and tortured by MPs and other VIPs, including children allegedly murdered, drawing no response from Metro Police, the Independent Police Complaints Commission in 2015 specified that Dolphin Square would be one of the prime allegations to investigate the Met Police for apparently covering up widespread abuse.[429]

Recall that boys and girls from care homes throughout the British Isles were trafficked to Dolphin Square parties. Outspoken survivor Richard Kerr from Northern Ireland's Kincora Boys' Home has asserted that he was sexually assaulted by VIPs at both Elm Guest House and Dolphin

Square.[430] Boys from North Wales Bryn Estyn Home were trafficked to Dolphin sex orgies.[431] And of course, it goes without saying, if you happen to be a resident trapped in a London borough care home such as Richmond's Grafton Close or in Islington or Lambeth, from the 1970s through the 1990s and likely beyond, you were likely sexually assaulted in Dolphin Square.[432]

Scalawag had this to say about Derek Laud, the Tory go-to advisor-fixer-pimp in the 1980s and 1990s:

Derek Laud ran a Pimlico PR agency called Ludgate Communications… in cahoots with [scandal ridden ex-MP] Ian Greer Associates. Ludgate Communications was at the very hub of our investigation into allegations… At his Pimlico flat, and selected addresses in Dolphin Square nearby, Laud threw parties.[433]

Laud's Ludgate pedo-party planner reportedly supplied care home boys from every which direction, funneled straight into his perverted friends' grasps. Boys from North Wales were taken to Laud's fellow lobbyist buddy Ian Greer's Dolphin Square flat to be abused by Tory MPs.[434] It was in Ian Greer's office that former child actor-anti-child abuse activist Ben Fellows was allegedly molested by soon-to-be Home Office Minister Kenneth Clarke while a camera on a nearby table reportedly captured it concealed from a bag.[435] Ben also alleges that he too was sexually abused at Dolphin Square parties.

The dual purpose of inviting selected politicians and VIPs to parties is not only to provide the sick sadistic lustful pleasure for powerful, despicable, likeminded criminals but more importantly to gain blackmail control over mostly key Conservative Members of Parliament. Former MI5 operative David Shayler has said that MI5 has fitted many of the Dolphin residences with one way mirrors and hidden cameras for the usual purpose of sexual blackmail.[436] Since security services headquarters are in close proximity, and a heavy influx of a spy presence at the Pimlico complex on the Thames has been well documented historically,[437] just like Elm Guest House, Dolphin Square pedophilia is also a sexual blackmail operation.

A deeper look at how Shirley Porter, Jewish heiress daughter of Sir John Cohen, founder of Tesco supermarket chain, ran her Tory controlled Westminster council as a Kosher Nostra, illustrates the unholy marriage between London’s dirty trick politics and Dolphin Square’s flourishing cottage industry led by predatory pedophiles like Laud and Greer, supplying fresh young boy meat to dozens of degenerate Westminster VIPs. The queen honored Dame Shirley and her Tory council henchmen’s gentrified gerrymandering to push the homeless, unemployed and otherwise poor “riff raff” Labor Party voters out of Westminster to dominate a gay-Tory-pedo playground monopolizing control over both the Westminster borough and its Dolphin Square Tory pedophile ring.[438] In the late 1980s the district auditor busted her and her cronies’ illicit operation, rigging votes in the “homes for votes” corruption scandal, and charged her £42m for bilking council funds, of which only £7000 was recovered, seized from her belongings left behind in London.[439] Though disgraced publicly back in Britain, as a dual Israeli first citizen, it didn’t stop her from living the life of luxury in Israel with hubby Sir Leslie Porter, the Tel Aviv University Chancellor. In 2002 she shamelessly declared herself worth only £300,000, about one-thousandth her actual estimated worth, hidden in offshore accounts in Guernsey, British Virgin Islands and Swiss banks. Shirley surely made out like a bandit as the convicted fraudster eventually settled in 2004 with a £12m payment out of the total £42m she stole from Westminster council funds.[440]

Originally an Oxford educated Jewish Laborite, Dr. Julian Lewis switched gears to cut his Tory teeth as deputy head researcher at his Conservative Party's Central Office in Smith Square from early to mid-1990s before becoming the Zionist Tory MP for New Forest East in 1997, Esther R's old stomping [alleged child burial] grounds.[441] As of 2015 the current chair of the powerful Defense select Committee, steeped in high finance and covert arms sales, MP Lewis has reportedly frequented Dolphin Square flats linked to pedo-sex parties.[442] According to abuse victims who were former residents of North Wales care homes, in addition to being victimized in North Wales (covered in Chapter 26), they also claim they were trafficked to sex parties at Dolphin Square as well as Hampshire County just west of London as part of a national pedo-ring tied to prominent Tories. A Scalawag Magazine article reporting the young men's tragic fate contends:

> There have been many allegations that Hampshire County Council, through the influence of Derek Laud and his friend Julian Lewis, is a central player in a national paedophile ring supplying young boys from care systems to VIPs… The alleged victims of VIP abuse who died in the fire in Palmeira Avenue Hove (Brighton) in 1991 had also linked Laud, Lewis, and Greer, to the circumstances of the abuse they said they had suffered in care.[443]

Other known Tory MPs with more than a passing connection with Laud, Greer and Dolphin Square orgies are Sir Edward Leigh,[444] Sir Peter Lilley,[445] Sir Michael Portillo,[446] Michael Brown,[447] David Nicholson[448] and Robert Banks.[449] Because Scalawag magazine was exposing Tory pedophiles, it was Julian Lewis who finagled a court order on a bogus claim the magazine was delinquent in its lease payments, changing Scalawag's office locks overnight and seizing the magazine's assets.[450] The alleged pedophile's dirty tricks campaign against his nemesis continued when he managed to covertly entrap Scalawag editor Simon Regan on tape vowing to reduce Lewis' New Forest votes in his 1997 MP election bid.[451] A four day trial ruled in Lewis' favor with a judgment against Regan breaching an obscure electoral law.

And so the pedo-Establishment neutralized another anti-child abuse threat, ensuring that Scalawag went out of business. Regan soon died after a brief illness in 2000 following his co-editor brother's freak fatal car accident in Cyprus in 1996. Gloating over his coup d'état, when a Scalawag article accurately incriminated the subsequently convicted pedophile police superintendent Gordon Anglesea who died in prison, Julian Lewis rushed to his aid supplying him with Scalawag distributors and printers as ammo for him also to sue the muckrakers as well… birds of a feather.[452]

Numerous firsthand accounts of abuse have been reported to the police, with understandably only a few willing to forego their right to confidentiality to talk to the press. One such compelling disclosure came from a middle aged man named Michael, interviewed by an ITV news reporter.[453] Michael verbalized how on Friday afternoons as a special outings considered "a treat" he and other residents from his care home were transported in a van south to London for the weekend to attend VIP sex parties. Friday night it might be at a flat in Dolphin Square and the next night a mansion in a ritzy borough estate in London or another flat at "the Dolphin." During the day on Saturday the boys would attend sightseeing tours but at plush parties late into the evening, they would be plied with plenty of alcohol and drugs while selected by well-dressed pedophiles for various degrading forms of sex abuse.

For one summer in the early 1980s while in his early teens nearly every weekend he would actually look forward to his getaways to London town as an adventure and reprieve from his dull weekday routine at his group home, accepting the sexual abuse as a mere tolerated price to pay for temporary admission into this unknown and exciting world of the high life, a momentary fleeting escape from his poor working class roots to a brief glimpse encounter observing how the wealthy and powerful live and party. Michael’s stoic, almost matter-of-fact, yet casually open attitude toward accepting sexual abuse as an unpleasant price to pay appears perhaps his defensive coping mechanism while presenting himself before the rolling news camera. Or perhaps years of therapy afforded him the opportunity to emotionally distance himself from his past schoolboy trauma when speaking about it years later.

The IPCC police commission’s decision in 2015 to probe further into the cover-up of abuse at Dolphin Square stemmed from how the Met Police has refused to properly investigate the reported rapes of multiple victims resulting from consistent stand down orders from above. One abuse survivor whose actual name is David, currently in his early fifties, came from a loving family that moved to the iconic countryside of Lincolnshire when he was just turning 15. His friendly neighbor Gordon Dawson was among the respected town leaders, a local ombudsman, active in the Anglican Church diocese, quickly becoming friends with David’s parents.[454] Gordon taught David how to hunt and shoot rabbits. Little did the naïve boy or his unsuspecting parents know he was being classically groomed by a serial child sexual predator.

Like so many victimized boys at 15, David reacted to the sexual abuse by withdrawing socially into a private, confused world of shame and dread. As a desperate attempt to get away, ultimately David told his parents how much he hated school and wished to return to his old one two hours away in Cambridgeshire. But then the family friend Dawson offered to pick him up on Fridays. Next came an invitation to London for the weekend and a night at the theater. Because his parents completely trusted this seemingly warm, generous man taking a “mentor’s” interest in their shy youngest of three sons, David felt trapped and frozen in fear to tell anyone.

So like fellow abuse survivor Michael, it was off to spending numerous weekends in the bustling capital London, staying at London's Dolphin Square in 1982. The wealthy landowner from Lincolnshire trafficked David at least 10 times into the big city to his Dolphin Square luxury flat where David claims he was carnally assaulted repeatedly by Dawson and other men. David explained that they would regularly attend dinners at London restaurants where they'd meet up with Dawson's friends, reportedly MPs, senior military officers, prominent businessmen, and members of the Church of England's General Synod. Sometimes other young boys were present at the restaurant as well.[455] After dining, they would reconvene at one of the Dolphin Square flats for after dinner drinks to gorge on their boy toy dessert.

As the church's governing body, the general synod periodically meets several times a year in Westminster. As of March 2018, the IICSA heard public testimony and complaints from witnesses and victims like David amongst a total of 3,300 child sex abuse allegations committed by Queen Elizabeth's Church of England.[456] Between all her sex offending knights and perverted clergy, CSA is simply their Luciferian way of life.

Even prior to David reporting his abuse to Lincolnshire Police, in December 2006 an officer gave the child rapist a heads up call that he would be arrested after receiving allegations from Dawson's other sexually abused victims.[457] What's worse is when David did report Dawson's crimes to police just two months later in February 2007, that same police officer again leaked to Dawson that he'd be rearrested, unbelievably adding that David was his latest accuser.[458] This grossly unethical if not illegal deference shown Dawson gave him ample opportunity to destroy incriminating evidence and clearly endangered David's life with potential violent retribution. Standard police protocol would confiscate an arrestee’s gun collection as precaution against either suicide or homicide. Within 90 minutes of that February phone call, Dawson allegedly shot himself in the head, preventing any real justice for David. Though the police quickly wrote it off as suicide, later falsely proclaiming it to the press, in fact the coroner recorded Dawson’s death as an open verdict.[459] With the local perpetrator deceased and out of the way, Lincolnshire Police instantly washed its hands of the case, refusing to investigate any further. Moreover, the criminal leads David reported of sexual abusers at Dolphin Square were completely omitted from the Lincolnshire Police records. Even the IPCC in 2007 refused to touch the case, no doubt due to implicating Dolphin Square VIPs. It turns out that Gordon Dawson had a long record for abusing boys as young as five dating back to 1964 right up to at least 1986… another despicable example of a protected VIP allowed to harm children for decades because of his influence and power, locally as well as in London.[460]

After Scotland Yard’s Operation Fairbank had publicly appealed for victims to come forth with evidence as part of its overarching inquiry into historic Westminster abuse, in 2015 David decided to once again report Dawson and his VIP friends’ sexual crimes to police a second time, providing two days’ worth of allegations backed up by documents supporting his Dolphin Square abuse claims along with his prior complaint to police 8 years earlier.[461] It was then that David found out that two of Dawson’s friends and co-owners of the Pimlico flat were never even interviewed by police. But David was reassured by the Met detectives interviewing him that his case had just cause to be reopened. Yet several days later, Met police notified David that Dolphin Square was suddenly off limits, specifying that:

> There is nothing further for us to investigate here. The information that we discussed doesn't fall within the remit of [Operation] Fairbank or the Metropolitan Police.[462]

Trying to get answers finally drew an email response from Detective Sergeant James Townly explaining:

> It is not feasible for the police to investigate every potential or convicted paedophile for links to others. In an ideal world we would very much like to identify all offenders and identify their links to other paedophiles and networks [but] sadly that does not happen.[463]

A final email from Townly specified that because David could not supply names of VIPs at the restaurants or the Dolphin Square flats, "this is not sufficient for a crime report." Despite knowing the names of Dawson's two partners sharing the same Dolphin flat, because they were not known to Met Police, they wanted no part. Again bottom line, neither Fairbank nor Midland really wanted any part in uncovering and bringing to justice any of the powerful VIP criminals that abused David or any other child. This dereliction of duty perverting the course of justice was completely unacceptable, prompting David to go public. Clearly the circled wagons had once again closed in rapid order to shield off any further exposure of VIP pedo-crimes committed at Dolphin Square… i.e., the same old, same old.

Keith Best, chief executive of the victims' group called Survivors UK, said that Lincolnshire made "grave errors" only to be compounded by Met's flagrant obstruction of justice to cover up, adding:

> The current unsatisfactory situation not only leaves considerable suspicion but also a massive discouragement to others to come forward in similar cases.[464]

With added pressure from the negative press, compliments of Buzzfeed that took up David's righteous cause, once the survivor filed his formal complaint with IPCC, it may have ultimately swayed the police watchdog to look into Met's "alleged" cover-up, i.e., its outright refusal to even touch Dolphin Square debauchery.

In May 2016 a new Lincolnshire police commissioner tried putting his best spin forward:

A number of lessons were learned in relation to best practice and fed back to the Public Protection Unit[465] [i.e., don't tell the arrestee he's going to be arrested beforehand, don't tell him who his latest accuser(s) are and confiscate all his guns prior to arrest, all SOP police practice everywhere except when VIPs are the criminals].

The Lincolnshire police superintendent issued a belated apology to David with the usual rhetoric that if the same investigation occurred today, it would have been handled differently… famous last words oftentimes heard before. Yet regardless of today or yesterday, the outcome always remains the same – no justice for VIP perps at the expense of no justice for victims. Apologies and rhetoric don't mean shit – today's system still fully protects sodomizers and inflicts double the pain and trauma on child victims.

As a postscript in the final days of 2016, a full decade after the first botched investigation-cover-up was willfully, prematurely closed, Lincolnshire Police finally conceded that it would reopen David's case against Dawson.[466] Of course small consolation, it changes nothing and likely was only done to appease the persistent bad publicity coming from Buzzfeed, providing a temporary reprieve from David's lifelong troubles. And the IPCC promise in 2015 to thoroughly re-investigate the Met's mishandling and cover-up at Dolphin Square? Whatever happened with that? Another "out of sight, out of mind" gloss over conveniently forgotten four years later. Child fuckers inside their palaces are toasting "long live the royal Commonwealth's cover-up of the centuries."

In 1985 the Met Police responded to an emergency call claiming that a boy of about 11 years of age appeared to be taken against his will into one of the Dolphin Square flats by adult men.[467] Upon arrival at the riverside complex, police discovered in the living room of one of the first floor units a makeshift film studio with expensive camera and lighting equipment still on. The occupants apparently were in a mad rush to escape filming their last scene. But there was no further criminal evidence at that time to go on - until a few months later. A child pornographic video was seized in a police raid in Soho's West End depicting two well-dressed men filmed from the neck down sexually abusing a boy about 11 from the same recognized Pimlico apartment.[468] During the 15-minute footage, the two abusers disrobed revealing their middle aged paunches with one showing a scar below his navel.

Thirty years later detectives working Operation Midland hoped to take advantage of forensic advances that might provide additional clues to aid in identifying the boy who'd now be in his 40s as well as his abusers. Reports of children murdered at Dolphin Square sex orgies under Operation Midland motivated law enforcement's renewed interest in the Westminster-Dolphin Square pedo-scandal, particularly because of the all too obvious history of Establishment cover-up. But it too apparently went nowhere just like Midland with no leads or subsequent arrests. And just like the VIP child rapists at Elm Guest House, the Dolphin Square pedophiles also got away with their sick depravities.

With all the post-Savile outrage and the ensuing public pressure to investigate and prosecute VIP child abusers, it didn't take long for the pedo-Establishment to predictably begin its pushback campaign. Teamed with the government-owned BBC, and the Lord McAlpine retraction, by 2015 British media claims of a "witch hunt" were well underway. In October that year a Daily Mail headline read "I'm the latest victim of sex abuse witch-hunt, says ex-MP: VIP police quiz former backbencher" with the first sentence out the starting gate:

A former MP became the latest victim of Labour's child sex abuse 'witch-hunt' yesterday.[469]

The elite's old familiar "divide and conquer" tactic pitting Labor versus Tory Party politics is the first giveaway to the elite's media manipulation. Reality check #1 – just as the planetary controllers control both parties in UK and US, in fact all major political parties virtually everywhere especially in the Western world are saturated with compromised, controlled and well-protected pedophiles. The second is the pejorative term "witch hunt" used to describe in order to nullify the thousands of actual child abuse victims' claims that are true.

The oft quoted alleged fake victim-fantasist "Nick" whose reportedly fraudulent allegations, once believed by Met Police as highly "credible" and "true," singlehandedly spawned the £3m Operation Midland boondoggle netting zero arrests is about to go on trial in March 2019 for perverting the course of justice and fraud. Immediately the Establishment seizes the opportunity to promote the false notion of an overzealous "witch hunt" that encourages fantasists like Nick and Darren to jump on the CSA bandwagon for press attention or money at the expense of poor old war heroes like General Lord Bramall or the Daily Mail's "ex-MP" like poor old, long suffering Harvey Proctor, or the martyred Sir Lord Leon trashed after his passing when no longer able to properly defend himself against this vengeful, wicked and groundless scheme to demonize these "innocent" VIPs being unfairly vilified, crucified and skewered by an out-of-control public lynch mob mentality. This is elitist propaganda caught turning the pendulum table with VIP rapists once again granted "get out of jail cards" while it's back to the abuse victims who end up on trial as fantasist, untrustworthy criminals.[470]

As mentioned earlier, this is just more of the same old "satanic panic as mere myth," and the "false memory syndrome" designed to negate actual child abuse memories and experiences.[471] The rulers employ the CIA to conjure up these clever little catchy, play-on-word fabrications as their weapons to suppress the truth. Hence, aluminum tin foiled, hat wearing "conspiracy theorists" are constantly promoting "false flag" accusations, making up outrageous, "not-to-be-believed" lies against our much maligned, upstanding leaders and governments. Bush's post 9/11 speech illustrates the point: "Let us never tolerate outrageous conspiracy theories."[472]

Throw in poor little Kitty and his Elm Guest House super injunctions,[473] his 2018 court victory over the police and BBC and his £5 m payout (see Chapter 21) barring the free press and people's right to know when famous suspects are arrested, and you have the ruling elite's highly effective pushback agenda aiding and abetting the pedo-cabal's continual rape of our innocents to guarantee permanent impunity for all VIP rapists. The elite's rigged legal system and multibillion dollar propaganda blitz ensure that the truth stays hidden so that powerful child rapists can safely go to their graves unburdened by consequences.[474] As a countermeasure to cut through their 24/7 bullshit lies, the purpose of this A-Z fully documented sourcebook exposé on modern pedophilia is to shine the spotlight on all the pedo-cockroaches so they can no longer pull the wool over our eyes and, under the false cover of their artificially created Luciferian darkness, roam freely to continue at will destroying thousands upon thousands of young people's lives the world over. The truth is finally out there and there's no place left to hide for these sick fucks.

With so called fantasists like Nick and Darren notwithstanding, plenty of legitimate abuse victims like the aforementioned David have come forth to share their harrowing abuse experiences at Dolphin Square. But with zero convictions resulting from the now closed Operations Midland and Fernbridge (save one minor ex-priest) and the IPCC and IISCA fizzling down and out into oblivion, despite all of these high profile productions ostensibly designed to investigate Westminster VIP abuse, it's as if the hundreds of victims reporting horrific abuse at Elm and Dolphin sex orgies through the years never happened at all when overwhelming evidence confirms that in fact it did. That shows you how hard working overtime the pedo-cabal's been to magically make the Westminster scandal go away once and for all. But the genie of lies and deception cannot be put back in the bottle because too much truth is already out there.

Yet another survivor of sex crimes at the Dolphin Square complex also named David went public with his story in May 2015. During his three month stay in London in 1975, a 20-year old David reports that he was coerced and threatened to attend sex parties at various locations including "the Dolphin" where he was forced to perform paid for sex acts with prominent MPs, senior military officers, judges and businessmen.[475] He claims that little boys as young as 8 were being savagely abused. To help get him through the traumatic events, he immersed himself in alcohol and drugs. One of the sex parties had the pedophiles celebrating Margaret Thatcher's promotion to becoming Tory Party leader in February 1975 in anticipation of her reign as the prime minister pedo-queen throughout the 1980s. The 60 year old abuse survivor in 2015 reported his sexual assaults to the press, disclosing that he observed Peter Hayman at parties abusing young boys as well as Peter Righton. David recalled how at a soiree in Notting Hill, he witnessed two brothers, one 8 and the other 10, drugged and forced to sexually assault each other for the sick viewing pleasure of drunken and vile dirty old men. When he attempted to intervene, he maintains that he was beaten unconscious. David also said he was coerced into performing a sex act on two politicians. In his words:

> I was totally humiliated. And from then it started. I was drawn into this web where I was taken to these parties, I would be meeting individuals for sex. Just totally trapped. Then began my descent into drinking, taking drugs. It was just a nightmare.[476]

Another link to Dolphin Square pedophiles is Roddam Twiss, disgraced son of Frank Twiss, the famed Admiral of the British Fleet and the queen's envoy in the House of Lords' Black Rod.[477] As a 27-year old teacher in 1967, Roddam Twiss was convicted of stripping, beating and sexually assaulting five boys as young as 11 and sentenced to three years. This perv has pretty much been into S&M on the rent boy scene ever since. As of 2004 he's also a convicted fraudster of a conman, stealing £1.2million of his investors' money and doing more time for that lowlife caper.[478] His past associates include Lennie Smith who Twiss at one time rented to. Smith is a member of the infamous Sidney Cooke gang, convicted of rape, torture and murder of many boys, including Jason Swift.[479] In 2018 MP Andrew Brigden called for Roddam to be summoned to the IICSA for his role as a rent boy procurer for Westminster pedophiles.[480]

Two detectives investigating Cyril Smith years ago observed the MP taking an underage boy to Roddam's flat. When they approached their superiors for the go-ahead to surveil Twiss, they were called off since the Twiss senior was then the queen's envoy in the House of Lords. For a hardcore pedophile like Twiss who's been a frequent Dolphin Square visitor for many decades, to call it the "den of iniquity," you know disgustingly sick shit is the Square's main faire. Twiss would regularly visit his close friend millionaire playboy Mervyn Greenway who lived there. Twiss has said, “Mervyn knew everyone in high places,” and of course that’s most helpful to a pimping procurer for VIPs at the Dolphin among a number of other safe pedo-havens around town.[481]

Despite the so called fantasists, former Scotland Yard detectives that investigated child abuse allegations at Elm House and Dolphin Square knew Westminster VIPs were vultures hurting children with impunity:

There was a significant paedophile group in Parliament who were untouchable to the police.[482]

I would add they still are. But the truth is making them increasingly nervous. Even a pedo-cabal insider let the truth slip out. A candid elitist in a rare moment dared to admit the truth in July 2014 when former Thatcher minister Lord Norman Tebbit confessed that “there may well have been” a political cover-up of pedophilia in the 1980s, and as the leader of the Tory Party whose job was to cover it all up, he should know.[483] When so many stay silent or continue lying through their false teeth, it’s refreshing to know that at least one Establishment figure mustered the guts to at least momentarily cop to what’s most undeniable.

In the same 2014 BBC article, of all people, Dame Margaret Oppenheimer-Hodge is quoted saying there’s been “a veil of secrecy over the establishment” for far too long… talk about the pot calling the kettle black! This too is an old elitist tactic, using the propaganda machine to put out a morsel of truth intended to de-vilify and distance proven past criminality. As Minister of Children, Hodge allegedly pressed PM Blair to issue a D-notice suppressing the Nene report in 2004 that also determined a high profile pedophile ring was rampantly abusing boys in 16 London care homes.[484] Any new finding that was confirming what she’d begun in Islington and Lambeth in the 80s and early 90s had spread to more London boroughs by 2004 while Britain's Minister of Children, no questions asked had to be covered-up.

If child sexual abuse is so tightly concealed in a massive UK cover-up, then torture and murder are too. Sometimes all three heinous crimes are committed by VIP untouchables. Among the running main themes of this book is what happens to those individuals who know too much for the deadly system to tolerate. That's when strange, mysterious, unexplained deaths are most apt to occur, like improbable suicides with two bullet holes through the head or sudden disappearances or untraceable heart attacks or lethal accidents, OD injections and other untimely fates that so often coincide with upcoming court appearances.

Another abrupt ending of a life is the suspicious death of 65-year old Sir John Stradling Thomas, Tory MP of Monmouth from 1970 to his March 1991 death. The MP was found dead in his Dolphin Square flat, reportedly just hours prior to speaking about deadly child abuse and its cover-up involving Westminster peers and prominent senior officials in NHS and UK Care System.[485] In 1990 and 1991 Sir John embarked on a series of correspondences with former Health Minister Tony Newton, Attorney General Patrick Mayhew and Home Secretary Earl Ferrers, apparently making unwanted waves inquiring into dozens of covered up deaths of children in Suffolk care, many disabled.[486]

Sir John may have stumbled upon and opened a Pandora's Box that quickly closed in on him at his Dolphin Square flat on March 29, 1991… that Pandora's Box being lethal Tavistock methods using guinea pig drug experimentation on disabled children at an NHS contracted facility in Suffolk County called Beeches, among a large number of other children's facilities throughout Britain.[487] Both Islington and Hackney sent children with cerebral palsy to Beeches where 43 children mysteriously died between 1954 and 1972.[488] Only two of the 43 children had inquests. Evidence shows major cover-up collusion between a host of authorities in Suffolk alone, including the County Council, County National Health Service, Suffolk Police and Police Crime Commissioner… not to mention Suffolk's long related history of child sexual abuse.[489] MP Thomas may well have been digging his own grave at the infamously shady Dolphin Square complex, digging and probing into dirty business considered off limits to MPs with a conscience. Plus one would think the sudden death of a knighted, upstanding MP for 21 years would draw more press. There's absolutely nothing on his cause of death. Predictably, Operation Midland that rightfully should have taken this entire matter never did. And with a rabbit hole running this deep, nor will the IICSA whitewash.

A year after MP Thomas's death, in 1992 when the well-connected, overly protected child procurer Peter Righton was busted for possessing and distributing child pornography, Lord Henniker opened up his Suffolk estate Thornham Magna as the founding PIE member's next residence for several years.[490] Recall that Margaret Hodge as Islington council leader was sending vulnerable at-risk children from her pedo-infested care homes to Thornham Magna under the Islington-Suffolk Project, using the estate as an educational and recreational center. With the likes of Righton, his convicted pedo-lover Alston and their convicted pedo-friend Napier all granted free access to the boy toy sweet shop, it's highly suspected that more children were sexually assaulted there. At all cost UK upholds its longstanding pattern protecting VIP pedophiles while child advocates trying to safeguard targeted kids from harm or uncover past child abuse and murder are targeted themselves for abuse and murder. Lucifer has always had a home in Freemason country.

Another Tory MP who died a suspicious death also found lifeless in his Dolphin Square flat was MP Iain Mills (covered in Chapter 21). Though a supposed teetotaler and never seen publicly consuming alcoholic beverages, MP Mills was discovered two days after his January 1997 demise with empty gin bottles around him and a high content of alcohol allegedly in his bloodstream that old “faithful hands,” cabal coroner Dr. Paul Knapman automatically ruled alcohol poisoning.[491] Iain Mills had been a close friend and ally of MP Geoffrey Dickens who died just months earlier, and speculation that Mills also was growing increasingly intolerant and disgusted by the rampant Dolphin Square sex orgies at the expense of abused trafficked children may have led to his premature departure at only 57. And speaking of another Chapter 21 strange and suspicious death at the Dolphin pedo-haven, 64-year old Judge Rodney McKinnon allegedly fell to his death and Knapman insisted it was suicide despite the strong objection from Rodney’s brother who was also a judge.

Though so called Nick’s three witnessed murders of abused child victims at Dolphin Square are now allegedly untrue, plenty of murdered boys associated with the Elm Guest House and Dolphin Square scandals remain fact. Two of the highest profile, still unsolved disappearance-murder cases are 15-year old Martin Allen in 1979 followed less than two years later by 8-year old Vishal Mehrotra in 1981.

Kevin Allen was just 18 months older than his brother Martin. As teenage sons of head chauffeur of the Australian high commissioner, the Allen family lived in the caretaker’s 5-bedroom cottage located just behind the commissioner’s residence at Stoke Lodge on the famous Kensington street Hyde Park Gate where the DeBeers jewelry family were neighbors and Winston Churchill lived and died.[492] At the underground basement of the Canberra House down the street from the Australian Embassy, for pocket change Kevin and Martin would regularly wash the commissioner’s custom car fleet.

But then on Guy Fawkes Night, November 5th, 1979, Martin was last seen at the Kings Cross tube station heading home after visiting his oldest brother. A witness reported to the press at the time that he identified Martin being held by a six foot blonde man by the scruff of the neck on the subway train.[493] Moreover, coverage of the Elm Guest House raid in August 1982 stated that the investigation into the two missing boys in 1979 and 1981 was reopened and widened to link them with the dirty business a short distance away at the Elm Guest House among other houses of ill repute around London. But then the outcome of this "widening" investigation was never again reported because, like all the rest of the VIP police inquiries into pedophilia, it was ordered shut down not only to conceal child sex abuse but very likely murder as well.

In recent years it has come to light that whenever the father's crew of five chauffeurs were already booked, a temporary chauffeur rental service on the other side of the Thames would be hired for fill-in drivers, one of whom was pedophile-murderer Sidney Cooke.[494] Known to procure and traffic children to VIP bigwig parties at nearby Elm Guest House, the Dolphin Square complex and other select locations around London including even Amsterdam, the Cooke gang "Dirty Dozen" regularly grabbed boys from off the street as well as care homes to deliver abuse victims to sex orgies.

When a 17-year old Kevin Allen was asked by the lead detective what he believed happened to his younger brother, Kevin said he thought that Martin had been abducted by a higher or elite person. According to Kevin, the investigator pointed his finger at Kevin, threatening:

You shouldn't be saying things like that, you could get hurt. [495]

From an incisive January 2015 article in The Australian, drawing links to the VIP pedophile ring:

For more than 30 years, the activities of this incredibly well-connected pedophile network was apparently protected from scrutiny through the issuing of government D-notices, which prevent media publication of anything deemed to affect national security. It is believed this stymied police investigations. Hundreds of files relating to the disclosures and evidence about the VIP pedophile ring have since gone missing. Kevin says the files relating to Martin's disappearance have been destroyed twice.[496]

The article goes on to reference the abruptly disbanded 1986 police probe into the VIP pedo-ring just one day before the scheduled arrest of Leon Brittan, Cyril Smith and 14 other high profile figures photographed attending an orgy in North London, victimizing boys picked up at Kings Cross.[497] It's more than plausible that Martin Allen was also picked up at Kings Cross, kidnapped, dropped off and sexually abused by VIPs, only to be disposed of by the likes of the Sidney Cooke gang, ultimately covered up by police at the behest of the criminal Establishment.

On the celebrated day when Prince Charles married Lady Diana on July 29, 1981, an 8-year old boy named Vishal Mehrotra suddenly vanished after watching the wedding precession with his family.[498] While his family went shopping afterwards, used to walking to and from school every day on his own, the boy headed the short distance home alone, apparently reaching within 300 yards of his Putney residence before disappearing. Vishal was last seen less than a mile from Elm Guest House. Though several witnesses claimed they'd seen men with a young Asian boy, the leads grew cold. Then a few months later in February 1982 in a wooded area in West Sussex, a skull and rib cage were found and identified as Vishal's remains. Months later the father, a Wimbledon court magistrate, recorded a 15-minute phone conversation from a man believed to be in his 20s who shared that he believed that Vishal was apprehended by those associated with the Elm Guest House VIP pedophile ring. But when the father brought the new piece of evidence to the police, he soon was disappointed:

> … Instead of investigating it, they just pooh-poohed it and I never heard anything about the tape again. The whole thing went cold. At that time I trusted the police. But when nothing happened, I became confused and concerned. Now it is clear to me that there has been a huge cover up. There is no doubt in my mind.[499]

Despite insisting that 20,000 people were interviewed by police, as soon as Scotland Yard learned that judges and politicians were implicated, the interest in finding Vishal Mehrotra's killers apparently went no further. Again the now 92-year old Sidney Cooke, currently serving two life sentences linked to nine murdered boys, was named at least eight times in a heavily censored police report on the missing 8-year old boy's murder.[500] Cooke had worked at fairgrounds and records show that at the time of Vishal's abduction, two fairs were in the area. Released through a 2015 Freedom of Information request, large blocks of the police report were redacted, obviously because the Scotland Yard has much to hide in its cover-up protection of child raping VIPs. An informant in the review made the statement that "Cooke and his associates" claimed at least 12 victims, including an "Asian boy."

Police kept secret from Vishal's family that four or five suspects were questioned and released, and the senior officer admitted that suspects' alibis were not carefully checked.[501] The shoddy murder investigation also failed to follow up a shoe found in the bog next to Vishal's remains nor two people observed throwing a sack over the fence where the bones were found. In short, the police purposely sabotaged solving the case in order to shield the Westminster pedo-ring. And despite the IPCC watchdog in 2015 including Scotland Yard ignoring the Elm Guest House tipoff as one of 14 allegations it would pursue, again nothing ever came out of that either.

Sidney Cooke and his “Dirty Dozen” gang ultimately were convicted of torturing and murdering three boys – 7-year old Mark Tildesley lured from a fairground Cooke was working in 1984, a year later 14-year old Jason Swift from a Margaret Hodge Islington care home in 1985 and abducted 6-year old Barry Lewis in 1991. But the lead detective Roger Stoodley who provided evidence to secure the three convictions by 1992 under Operation Orchid feels near certain that 17 more abduction-murders were committed by this same evil gang throughout the 1980s into the early 90s.[502] Cooke and his gang supplied boys grabbed off the street, recruited rent boys from the public toilets and trafficked care home boys to VIP orgies at both Elm Guest House and Dolphin Square as well as Kensington, North London and other locations. Besides being a fairground worker, Cooke also worked as a chauffeur and has been linked to both the Martin Allen and Vishal Mehrotra abduction-murders that fit his gang’s M.O. profile. But because police inspections at Elm Guest House, Dolphin Square, Lambeth and North London, Manchester were all consistently closed as soon as Westminster MPs, Downing Street ministers, high court judges, senior police commanders and security services were implicated as suspects, all policing actions in Britain have been immediately suspended and records destroyed. The cover-up must go on.

With Operations Fairbank, Fairbridge and Midland opened during the post-Savile revelations, it was hoped by all VIP victims and both the Allen and Mehrotra families that justice can finally be done but because the pedophile Establishment is still in control protecting all prominent pedophiles still alive in its inner elite club, no VIPs have been arrested much less convicted. Then in 2015 when the IPCC was launched to investigate Scotland Yard’s blatant cover-ups at both Dolphin Square and the Vishal Mehrotra murder, hopes again were raised but it too was for mere public appeasement just like the IICSA. As said before, the British government, including law enforcement and its judicial system, are all saturated with slithering low life criminal scum and they will never be willing to reveal the full truth and take responsibility for their heinous crimes against children. And the same can be said for their just as guilty counterparts in North America, Europe, Australia and likely most of the rest of the world as it's a global scourge we are facing now. Worldwide truth and reconciliation commissions are necessary.

One of the Scotland Yard detective sergeants working on the original 1981 Mehrotra murder case, Jackie Malton, whose career inspired the Helen Mirren ITV series "Prime Suspect," as much as admitted a police cover-up took place.[503] Just days earlier in November 2014, Vishal's father had revealed that the police had refused to investigate the taped phone conversation of a young male prostitute stating his son was very likely taken in by a Westminster pedophile ring operating out of the Elm Guest House, leaving the father to conclude the tape was refused because it implicated "judges and politicians," forcing the police to engage in a huge cover-up. After retiring from the Met in 1997 as detective chief inspector, Jackie has now gone on record stating that the investigation she worked on for four months in 1981, attempting in vain to solve Vishal's abduction and murder case, may have been compromised by the "power of politicians," adding:

During my time in the police there was a feeling of misuse of power. There were a lot of powerful people saying, 'Don't you know who I am?' There was also a strong sense of the power of Parliament and of politicians. It was very much a case of 'Do as you are told.'"[504]

After four months on the case, Jackie was reassigned elsewhere. Weeks later Vishal's father submitted the taped conversation. She now concedes that the recording may have been ignored and the murder covered up because of powerful senior Westminster politicians. She went on to surmise:

There is clear evidence that something was happening at that [Elm] guesthouse. If nothing has been done about it in retrospect, then Mr Mehrotra is right. Either the police disbelieved it, or they covered it up one way or another… Some inquiries would come to an end when someone senior said, 'That's enough.' I remember a case where there was an MP accused of cottaging and it all kind of disappeared… Politicians were very much in power, and the police officers' voices could often not be heard [just like the voiceless child victims].[505]

Many players both big and small have been part of Britain's mammoth pedophilia network and its equally mammoth cover-up. A few rotten ones on the bottom go to jail, the rest live above the law.

On July 8, 2014 Dr. Jon Bird from the National Association for People Abused in Childhood (NAPAC) spoke to the press about his observations based on the high volume of alleged victims calling in to report historic child sex abuse crimes committed by powerful VIPs, independently reporting virtually the same 10 high profile abusers:

The names of people in very high places – politicians, senior police officers and even some judges – have been going around as abusers for a very long time. Since the Jimmy Savile revelations, there's been a sea change in the way police and the CPS respond to these sort of complaints and now, at last, it looks like these people are going to be investigated.[506]

Investigated? Don't get your hopes up Dr. Jon. For all the countless official probes, reviews and reports, again none of the major perps in government have ever been arrested, prosecuted, convicted or imprisoned for raping a child – NONE! What may have been your sincere optimism[JH1] about the long-awaited "sea change" a half decade ago now appears to be a mere transitory case of false hope. Sea change or no sea change, not one VIP pedophile has ever spent a full day in jail for his sordid crimes, despite Theresa May's sham of a long, drawn out, sputtering "independent inquiry" into government abuse. She, it and Brexit are but one big cruel joke unleashed on the good people of Britain who've once again been had and hoodwinked.

Though Dr. Bird specifies that the same 10 pedophile names that keep coming up include "senior police officers and even some judges," a current consensus of most identified VIP pedos, aside from Prince Charles' mentor and uncle Lord Mountbatten and his favorite trio Sir Jimmy Savile, Sir Anthony Blunt and Bishop Peter Ball, the following 10 politicians might make the Top 10 List of pervert politicians: Sir Cyril Smith, Sir Leon Brittan, Sir Greville Janner, Sir Peter Hayman, Sir Peter Morrison, Sir Ted Heath, Sir Nicholas Fairburn, Sir Peter Mandelson, Sir Paul Boatteng and ex-MP Harvey Proctor. Dishonorable mentions could easily go to Lord Boothby and MP Tom Driberg from the 1950s and 60s but it's unlikely that enough child victims would still be alive to name them in 2014 as their abusers. Spared is Sir Peter Bottomley – he may just blow a gasket. Notice of the Top 10 every single one of these alleged high profile child abusers but one have been granted knighthood by the queen, with the vast majority already escaped to their rotting graves unpunished.

Shifting from perpetrator to victim, the extensive pedophilia network that runs both inside and outside of Great Britain from local to national to international is both widespread and sadly well-travelled by trafficked care home children that the system makes a national policy of betraying instead of protecting for over a century now. Between civil servants in social services, NHS, education, UK security services to politicians in local and national government, care home kids were and still are a cheap commodity systemically shuffled from one geographical location to the next to be abused again and again and again. It too became UK national policy. The ratlines most often converge on London as Britain's pedo-wheel hub but they branch out in every direction to Jersey Island, Amsterdam, Brussels, Portugal, Wales, Northern Ireland, Scotland and well beyond. Children within national care systems are even exchanged as well. Recall Righton's trade with Malta. Or from last chapter victims from Islington routinely get sent for abuse in Jersey and vice versa. A massive criminal network of moving child victims back and forth for VIP abuse to virtually everywhere in the world captures just a glimpse into the world's largest illegal operation that's reached an unprecedented, industrial, pandemic scale today, in case you haven't noticed.

Just over a decade ago it was discovered that in addition to Islington's policy of swapping children with Jersey Island, social services from the city of Birmingham were also busted illegally dropping off kids in the pedophilia haven of Jersey and then losing track of them.[507] This only came to light during the police investigation into Jersey's deathtrap care home Haut de la Garenne after 100 bone fragments and 65 teeth of dead children were unearthed. Liberal Democrat MP from Birmingham John Hemming said:

> The Government has refused to order councils to check properly because it does not want to open a can of worms, on the links between abusers in England and Jersey… The system nationally is not properly accountable. Children are taken into care never to be seen again… They are stalling because they are embarrassed by the size of the problem, and because it involves English authorities, too.[508]

In other words, social services all around Britain will not be checking into their records any time soon, nor will police, NHS or Home Office require it because it would only prove that it's simply been UK's longtime national policy to misuse its children from its underclass as scorned, disposable objects to be tortured and destroyed by its deranged elite for a very long time. This page as yet another dark chapter was only uncovered after MP Henning requested his district's social services check account records that showed Birmingham had made payments to Jersey from 1960 to 1990. Remember, the UK maintained a long history of banishing over 150,000 of its children to other Commonwealth countries (which Jersey is part of) for further abuse as a national policy. So this problem at the world's pedo-epicenter is systemic.

The fact remains that nearly a quarter century after veteran journalist-Channel 4 presenter Jon Snow's scathing critique in a 1996 Guardian article of "the UK Care System" has only gone from bad to worse in the level of abuse heaped on the disposable British youth population.[509] Snow's 1996 appraisal was painfully accurate describing how children too early in their young lives fall victim into a spiraling cycle of systemic failure, delivering human suffering at the most unsettling, most profound levels. Beginning with the dire family conditions of austerity and impoverishment that typically give way to the overreaching authoritarian UK family court system, secretly exploiting families and forcing hapless British kids into residential placement or foster care often far from home in a national care system that delivers the farthest thing from genuine care.

Through no fault of their own, children have virtually forever been helplessly trapped in a multi-tiered system set up to fail and harm them at every turn, starting with rampant sexual abuse at their care homes only to be farmed out and trafficked by organized pedophile rings, too often ending up raped and sodomized by their nation’s most powerful beasts atop the predatory food chain entrusted to deliver the very “care” system that is systematically destroying them, and has been operating this way for over a half century. Moreover, as a national policy to ship unwanted British children off to Australia, New Zealand, Canada, South Africa, and what’s now Zimbabwe for further abuse is unconscionable, yet leave it to the world’s pedo-epicenter to perpetrate this despicable crime against 150,000 youth for centuries up to 1974.[510] The UK Care System is arguably the most egregious, most heinous institutionalized mind fuck ever put on innocent kids imaginable.

As previously mentioned in Chapter 10, with the average “shelf life” of trafficked child sex slaves only two years, this lethal cycle of abuse invariably involves drug addiction, plied throughout by pimping perpetrators at every level for obvious control purposes. At any point along this death trap road, young people attempting to escape the system go missing, and the growing number exceeding 10,000 each year alone in Britain only find themselves preyed upon as runaway rent boys and girls aging out of the system at 18 if they even live that long.[511] With Jon Snow citing 23 years ago that 75% of kids leaving the system have no educational qualifications, it’s far worse now with dropout rates rising all the time. Both minors and young adults without formal education or legitimate means of self-support, prostitution becomes an all too common fate for survival, followed by early death by murder, disease or suicide, whichever comes first. And with estimates of 12 million sexually abused British citizens out of a total population of near 67 million, we’re talking one in five in the UK are the walking wounded.

With human slavery and pedophilia reaching an unprecedented, off the chart scale across this pandemic globe, unless we citizens of the world do something now to change this ungodly bottom line reality, the child raping Luciferians in control may destroy us all. Robotics, automaton, transhumanism and artificial intelligence are making over 90% of us “useless eating” humans obsolete, so just as the queen’s husband’s wet dream is to kill us off as a contagious virus, the rest of his planetary controlling ilk want nearly all of us dead. As repeatedly mentioned, their genocidal war against humanity being fought right now is down to either us or them. Marked in the murdering criminals’ crosshairs, we the peace-loving citizens of the world have the right to defend ourselves and our children by holding them accountable for all their countless atrocities and crimes against humanity.

Over recent years and decades, the tragically common fate of sexually abused children has befallen millions worldwide and with the sex slave industry currently at an all-time shameful high in recorded history, it’s high time we stewards of the earth finally begin protecting our most precious resources starting with our children from the monsters who for millenniums have ruled over and are fast destroying our only living habitat. Since today we know more about the pedophilia scourge than at any previous time in human history, the profiteers behind the child sex slave trade are the very same planetary controlling profiteers behind our fiat, debt-based economic slavery system, our perpetual state of war and our world’s sixth mass life extinction, the first one whose known caused is the deranged subhuman species in control. Before the real Homo sapiens perish at the hands of these bloodthirsty cannibals, it’s urgent we take decisive action to employ organizations like the International Tribunal for Natural Justice (ITNJ) to learn more and ascertain the extent of global child abuse,[512] leading to truth and reconciliation commissions to hold those most guilty criminals at the very top fully accountable. The bottom line - at this ever-late hour, again it's literally down to either us or them. For our own self-preservation as a human species, we must fight our known and identifiable enemy now! Tomorrow may be too late.

Chapter 25 delves into high profile pedophilia scandals that have gripped England's northern neighbor Scotland, first with the horrific 1996 Dunblane massacre of 16 schoolchildren and their teacher, the subsequent Tony Blair directed D-noticed, century sealed cover-up and then the controversial Holly Greig abuse case and its disgraceful ongoing cover-up.

Chapter 25 Dunblane Massacre: Scottish Children’s Sacrificial Slaughter for Gun Control and 100-Year Masonic VIP Pedophilia Cover-up

The Dunblane Massacre of 16 schoolchildren and their teacher on March 13, 1996 offered the international crime cabal not only the excuse to justify its agenda to eliminate law abiding citizens’ right to bear arms to protect their families from those bent on taking their rights away, but it also afforded the opportunity to close ranks to conceal from public exposure its vast pedophilia network stretching throughout a long embedded home of Freemasonry - Scotland. By eliminating a “suicided” Thomas Hamilton as a gun toting, lone nut monster, minimizing his history as a boy procurer and boy toy porn peddler in yet another major VIP pedophile ring, posing a serious liability and major threat to the British Establishment, another catastrophic scandal and near disastrous close call was averted. After all, with child sex abuse scandals still a recurring hot topic in recent years from all of UK’s semi-exposed pedo-operation cover-ups - Elm Guest House, Dolphin Square, Islington, Lambeth, Northern Ireland and North Wales, Britain’s elite and Tory government in particular couldn’t survive yet another major VIP pedophilia scandal. So to ensure its cover-up, the judge presiding over the Dunblane Massacre inquiry - Freemason Lord Cullen[1] - made sure that over 100 incriminating documents amounting to 26 feet of shelf space stacked 8 feet high had to be unlawfully sealed away for the next 100 years.[2]

This fact alone illustrates the desperate and extreme measures the UK criminal government was and is willing to impose in order to conceal this ever-dark reality from public knowledge. More than any other child sex abuse scandal, this one exposes masonic pedophiles at the core of British power politics, high courts and law enforcement, caught red-handed colluding in a child porn-pedo-sex ring-cover-up. Without the secretly placed century long ban, the British Establishment would have been crushed and destroyed. This chapter will methodically unveil the diabolical curtain to reveal the not-so-hidden ugly truth spilling out at every turn. But first an introduction to the deranged antagonist-patsy behind the Dunblane tragedy.

By the time Thomas Hamilton was born in Glasgow, Scotland on May 10, 1952, his wayward bus driver father Thomas Watt was already separated from his hotel chambermaid wife Agnes Hamilton Watt, having left her for another woman.[3] As a result, Thomas never knew his real father and, to make ends meet and avoid facing unwed motherhood, mother Agnes moved back into her adoptive parents' home. James and Catherine Hamilton were actually Agnes's uncle and aunt. But in 1931 when James' sister Rachel gave birth to Agnes out of wedlock, James and Catherine adopted and raised Agnes as their own daughter. In 1955 once Agnes and Thomas Watt were officially divorced, James and Catherine Hamilton also adopted Thomas at age 3 and raised him as their own while Thomas's biological mother Agnes was relegated to the family role as Thomas's 21-year older sister.[4] Confusing? They kept this their little skeletal secret in their family closet until Thomas was 22. Anything to avoid the family shame of an out of wedlock birth in the early 1950s.

From infancy to age 40 Thomas always lived with his pretend father or grandfather James, a Freemason welder who biologically was actually his great uncle, and his great aunt Catherine until her death when he was 35. With his mother Agnes also born out of wedlock to avoid the stigmatization of humiliation and shame, James and Catherine raised their actual niece as her adopted parents. So for two straight generations, James and wife Catherine adopted and raised both Agnes and her son Thomas as their own children… not that they were such ideal loving parents. Catherine is said to have been an extremely controlling “mother from hell.”[5] At age 11 in 1963 Thomas moved with his family from East Glasgow to 11 Upper Bridge Street, Stirling. Agnes moved out on her own in 1985 while Catherine died in August 1987, the same year that Thomas and James moved to public housing at 7 Kent Road in Stirling where Thomas lived until his death in March 1996.

As an adolescent, Thomas Hamilton was known to have had only one fleeting relationship with a girl until she apparently desired romance, at which point he immediately dropped her like a hot potato, never showing sexual interest in females.[6] As a matter of fact, over time he grew intensely resentful toward women, mainly for their fierce maternal instinct as a contentious, unwanted obstacle and enemy that stood in the way of his access to young boys aged 7 to 11, the true objects of his lustful pedophilic passion.[7]

While residing at 7 Kent Road after 1987, Thomas was increasingly abusive toward the elder Hamilton, perhaps for not coming clean about their family arrangement till he was an adult. According to neighbors Thomas shoved James around, taunting him and allegedly pissed in his drinks.[8] Finally the 84-year old man apparently couldn’t take it any longer and walked out for good in 1992, never speaking to Thomas Hamilton again. Four years later right after the massacre, the elder Hamilton had only these few words to say about Britain’s worst mass killer that he raised till age 40:

[Thomas Hamilton] wanted everything his own way and I got fed up and left him to it.[9]

Depending on the source, Thomas Hamilton’s academic performance as a child during his public school years is said to range from lackluster average[10] to good.[11] The consensus more unanimously reports Thomas Hamilton as a shy, socially awkward kid throughout his public education years, leaving school at 15 after attending Falkirk Technical College. After his “father” James bought an air rifle for him while Hamilton was an adolescent, young Thomas joined a rifle club and a youth club called the Boys Brigade.[12] Leaving school in 1968, Hamilton’s innate skills earned him a draughtsman apprenticeship at the county architect office but his interest shortly waned.

In 1972 at 20 years old the young Hamilton opened up his own do-it-yourself shop called Woodcraft in Stirling where he sold retail hardware, kitchen and home products in a somewhat lucrative, homespun business that lasted 13 years.[13] But eventually his preoccupying interest in guns and boys prevailed in his avid pursuit to become a Boy Scoutmaster.

By his late teens, young Thomas Hamilton was keen on the Boy Scouts, volunteering many hours in hopes of becoming a coveted Scoutmaster. The first warning sign of trouble ahead surfaced as far back as 1973 when Hamilton was only 21. Diligent leaders in the Boy Scouts Association began taking steps to wisely ban Thomas Hamilton from becoming a scout leader, a year later blacklisting him.[14] Several boy scouts reported that as their assistant scout leader he made the peculiar request that they strip off their shirts to pose for pictures,[15] a bizarre, pedo-suggestive routine that would become a “Mr. Creepy” custom trademark as he quickly became known amongst Central Scotland boys.[16] And after the March 1996 massacre it would emerge that former scouts claimed he sexually assaulted them.

But during his approximate yearlong stint in the Boy Scouts, it took Hamilton no time at all to show his true colors in flagrant disregard for youth safety. Even the milquetoast MOR Biography website reveals:

> Before long, there were complaints from the boys that Hamilton was teaching them to use rifles and handguns, as well as forcing them to engage in perverted activities, and then paying them to keep quiet.[17]

While leading a group of young scouts from Stirling on a trip to Loch Loman for a badge, Hamilton's plan to take boys out on open water without the proper safety equipment was promptly nixed by event organizers, his lapse of judgment drawing concerns.[18] But it did not stop him from a temporary promotion to deputy scout leader when a new troop started up in nearby Bannockburn. But then on the first of two 1974 scout outings to Aviemore in the Scottish Highlands, after Hamilton told the parents of eight boys attending that they'd be sleeping overnight in a youth hostel, probably by perverse design, he "neglected" to book space, instead packing them in like sardines to sleep with him inside his van.[19] As his excuse, Hamilton lied, claiming that the hostel was overbooked but officials confirmed it wasn't. On the second Aviemore trip, his half dozen hungry, cold, wet troops were told to dig snow holes with several scouts on the verge of frostbite. Hamilton's brazen recklessness, dishonesty and stubborn defiance quickly did him in as the Scouting Association had astutely seen enough of his dangerously bad habits to wash its hands of the boy menace, forcing his resignation by 1974. Scouting county commissioner Brian Fairgrieve's parting shot towards the banned wannabe scout leader:

> [The Scouting Association is] suspicious of his moral intentions towards boys.[20]

Years later the retired surgeon and former Boy Scout county commissioner told police:

I formed the impression that he had a persecution complex, that he had delusions of grandeur, and I thought his actions were almost paranoiac.[21]

Thomas Hamilton's contention that he was unfairly maligned by the Scout Movement demanded a committee review but the Boy Scouts refused and eventually the loser begrudgingly submitted his resignation. But his early failure as a scout leader left him licking his narcissistic injury wound-turned-lifelong grievance that festered in him as poison his entire adult life. Among his major character flaws was an unwillingness, refusal and blind incapacity to face reality, failing to recognize his own serious deficiencies, shortcomings and wrongdoing, always playing out his internalized victim role while externalizing blame onto others as his groundless personal tormenters and vicious evil enemies.

Though buoyed by his acquired masonic membership and recently issued gun license from the year before, with renewed vigor and confidence in 1978, Hamilton persistently tried once again in vain to break into the Boy Scouts, seeking an end-around opening at a troop in the rural scenic Trossachs highlands. But Hamilton discovered that the Scouting Association wasn't kidding when it insisted on upholding its lifetime ban against the derelict.[22]

Hamilton's lingering paranoid obsession against the Boy Scouts resurfaced in August 1986, a full dozen years after his forced resignation. Still trying to be a Scout leader, Thomas Hamilton demanded a meeting with Dr. Brian Fairgrieve who noted that this time Hamilton had:

… The appearance of being on psychiatric drugs.[23]

Like virtually every mass murdering gunman in modern times,[24] Thomas Hamilton was likely also taking mind-altering prescription medications while under the watchful eye of security service spooks a decade later leading up to

Britain's deadliest mass shooting on March 13th, 1996.[25] It's been reported he was on Prozac, an SRI antidepressant associated with mind control.[26] With Hamilton's growing paranoia expressed in letters to Britain's top leaders including the queen,[27] in all likelihood the UK government knew exactly what Hamilton was planning on March 13th. Bear in mind that during this exact same time period the misguided Port Arthur patsy, Martin Bryant, was also being set up by Tavistock drug pushing mind control practitioners in order to simultaneously pull off Australia's worst gun violence in history.[28] In short order within months of the two tragedies, both nations had passed the strictest gun laws in the world.[29] But more on that particular Dunblane stream later.

The same year in 1974 that the Boy Scouts Association blacklisted Hamilton from lifetime membership, as a double whammy, he was also finally told the truth about his family. To compound his deep-rooted psychopathology, while being booted out of the Scouts at 22, he also learned his older sister was really his biological mother and his parents actually were his adoptive grandparents, or more accurately, his great aunt and uncle.[30] As a convenient explanation for why Thomas Hamilton was so odd and so creepy, fueling the distorted conclusion he was a lifelong misfit and loner, the media regularly cites his resultant “confusion” in family roles as leading to his severe psychological problems as a bona fide madman killer. With this “abnormal” family arrangement commonly cited as a major contributing factor to his mental instability, no doubt it might fuck up anybody's head for a spell, causing some deep-seated identity confusion and lack of trust issues. But upon learning this as a young adult for the first time, if during his childhood he was nurtured, cared for and loved unconditionally while growing up, clinically the residual psychological damage would likely be minimal or nonexistent.

But Thomas grew up in a shame-based family environment where its public avoidance at all cost was the Hamilton clan’s #1 M.O in life. Hence, Thomas’s entire adulthood was spent trying to avoid shame and humiliation. He doggedly pursued the highly prized, respectable role as mentor of young boys, offering him opportunity of personal fulfillment through service to and aspired honor from his local Scottish community. Hamilton attributed juvenile delinquency to a societal upbringing lacking discipline. He saw his noble role in providing sports club activities as keeping kids off the streets and instilling much needed discipline in the face of younger generations addicted to junk food and television. But no matter how hard he tried to be the esteemed coach and positive youth role model, his aspirations were thwarted by what he considered malicious forces beyond his control intent on spreading ill will and false gossip about him to ruin both his reputation and life. Lurking behind Hamilton’s do-gooder rationale to instill Spartan-like discipline in young boys as a characterological strength, his overbearing dominance, excessive need for pathological control and unbridled sexual perversions creepily crept into every aspect of his unhealthy, obsessive involvement and perverse attachment to little boys aged 7 to 11.

As Thomas Hamilton’s other lifetime fixation, his passion for guns and bullets was overcompensation for his effeminate personality and voice, engendering the strong masculine identity he desperately latched onto that might overpower Hamilton’s reverberating internalized unconscious fears as a deviant outcast too weak and too geeky to make his manly mark on the world. During his island adventures on Loch Loman as the all-powerful tyrant, Hamilton would often re-enact the dynamics as depicted in the William Golding novel Lord of the Flies, the film version being his all-time favorite flick.[31] In fears buried deep within his own psyche, Thomas Hamilton was the personification of the Piggy character as a fellow four-eyed, pudgy, doughboy object of such sadistic scorn and cruel rejection by fictional peers echoed externally by an adult majority of his own community peers.

Hamilton's overzealous embrace of guns and athletic prowess through hardcore physical fitness and masculine sport was in his mind the answer to his own unconscious shortcomings and failings as an adult male, hence the overly stern, stoic camping-sports club coach, ultra-harsh disciplinarian and overbearing taskmaster. In his cruel sadism inflicting fear, terror and pain on his Loch Lomond victims, it was get-even time for all his own both real and perceived suffering, past and present. Hamilton derived his ultimate sense of power and control combined with perverted, lustful gratification when directing half naked skinny little boys in undersized swimsuits to pant, sweat, shiver and suffer too.

From Hamilton's frame of reference, his community's parents, police and governing councils were all ganging up behind his back, unfairly conspiring to destroy him through "false," unproven rumors and innuendo, for years busily targeting and branding him a sex pervert. As the martyred adult version of Piggy fighting for his very survival on his own home turf of Dunblane and Stirling, from Hamilton's warped, twisted perspective, his plight was painfully reinforced on a daily basis by his "callous, judgmental" community. Rendering his noble quest to be a strong masculine role model for their sons an impossible, thankless task turned nightmare and ever distant illusion, this fact alone infuriated and degraded him to the depths of his being, eventually justifying his brutal attack on innocents where it would hurt his targeted enemies the most.

From an early age Thomas Hamilton was driven to make his grandiose mark on his community, perhaps initially, ideally as a strong “positive” male mentor for young boys, and as that challenge eluded him at every turn regardless of his focused, formidable efforts to fulfill and vindicate himself, the widespread rejection and humiliation he believed he was suffering and wrongly burdened with, from his deranged POV it more than justified him making his unforgettable mark of retaliation against his sleepy idyllic Scottish village of 7,300 residents as the ultimate avenger of every perceived injustice ever cruelly heaped upon him. Taking out a classroom of his community’s most defenseless, youngest children would be his “great” moment of revenge, his sleepy town’s ever-rude wake-up call turned nightmare for attaining his ultimate payback with a historic exclamation point for the record books. His inherited family legacy - avoiding public shame and humiliation at all cost - internally drove his pathological wounds and impulses in a desperate, insane attempt to regain his sense of stolen self-worth, identity and power as a force to be reckoned with, in his own tormented, depraved mindset, absolving his extreme act of unthinkable violence.

As psychoanalytic psychologist Peter Aylward framed it:

> In Thomas Hamilton’s family history we have repeating experiences across the generations of an attempt to avoid the shame of children born out of wedlock. This perversion that took place within the family was in order to save face in the community. We know that shame and humiliation is one of the major contributing factors to violence where violence attempts to eradicate any feelings of shame.[32]

Hamilton has been described as having “a schizoid personality” as one of the DSM listings under personality mental disorders,[33] characterized by individuals who choose to remain within an emotional shell to keep their distance from others, manifested through strong isolative tendencies and an incapacity towards intimacy, and most often living out their underachieving, quiet, solitary lives as society’s reclusive oddballs.[34] Expediently tagging the monster with this psychiatric label might superficially help to explain how he ended up the mass murderer of young children, particularly when the need to peg him with the crazed lone gunman stereotype is so absolutely essential for the official narrative to be publicly believed and accepted. But artificially massaging reality to fit the lone nut gunman myth is a commonly deceptive ploy to manipulate and shape public opinion away from the real truth.

In December 1996, nine months after the massacre and shortly after Lord Cullen’s fake inquiry and report, a senior police source informed Labor MP Frank Cook for Stockton North that Thomas Hamilton at the age of 25 joined Freemason Lodge number 1413 of the Masonic Order in Glasgow in 1977.[35] No sooner was Hamilton the gun lover a Freemason, that same year he possessed his coveted first firearms license, a legal privilege he enjoyed the rest of his life with continual renewal help from masonic friends in high places, due only to his unbroken two decade fraternal bond with his secret brotherhood.[36]

But it turns out that even on Hamilton’s very first 1977 firearms certificate application, he lied. The pathological liar falsely claimed that he was a member of the local Callander Rifle and Pistol Club,[37] the same club that in late February 1996 - just days ahead of the massacre – had rejected his membership application.[38] He repeatedly violated the law when both selling and exchanging his weapons without following legal protocol. At any given time, he also possessed far more weapons than his 6-gun license authorized. One of his assistants at a club stated that he once proudly showed him six handguns, four rifles and a Kalashnikov assault rifle.[39] The man bragged constantly about his growing arsenal. It was believed that Hamilton also kept semi-automatic handguns outlawed after Britain’s first mass shooting in Hungerford in 1987 killing 14.[40] Police repeatedly failed to adequately follow up with reference checks or updated criminal intelligence files on him that would suddenly disappear, then reappear once the licensing application was processed and renewed. On countless occasions had law enforcement simply enforced existing laws and protocols, Hamilton would never have been able to attain either his licenses or his guns.

Though Thomas Hamilton was clearly an odd duck, and indeed a very creepy predatory pedophile, the media leap claiming he was a lifelong loner and social misfit as always portrayed by the mainstream press is a simplistic copout made to fit the standard mold of the lone nut gunman scenario.[41] The fact remains, since 1957 his “grandfather” James was a Freemason in Stirling until his death in 2000,[42] with Thomas joining in 1977,[43] the same year he acquired his first gun certificate after James had bought him an air rifle while still a teenager.[44] The bottom line, Hamilton maintained a fraternal, long term friendship and alliance with some very powerful, likeminded masonic brothers on the Central Scotland Police force headquartered in his hometown Stirling, along with local MP politicians of national prominence, senior figures in Scotland’s judiciary including the Crown Office, as well as within Scotland’s news broadcasting media, all sharing the same vested, self-serving interest to protect both him and themselves as pedophilic Freemasons.[45]

The more Hamilton is cast as the extreme misfit and abnormally deviant loner so apart from his social community - however much a gross distortion of reality, the more distance removed from any credible account that depicts Hamilton as the supplier if not leader of a major VIP pedophile ring. Yet as a masonic procurer of boy victims and child pornography in the pre-internet era for powerful sickos belonging to the “Friends of QVS,” VIP patrons of UK’s defense ministry’s Queen Victoria School, that’s exactly what he was for a number of years.[46] And according to the observant eyes of his neighbors Grace and Jim Ogilvie, flashy cars with well-dressed men were coming and going all the time to his rundown little flat, this is not the skewed one-dimensional portrayal of some isolated, schizoid hermit that the media and government inquiries would prefer us to believe.[47] A predatory psychopathic pedophile Freemason who covertly supplied victims to powerful VIP fellow masons? Most definitely. But more on his Queen Victoria School connections coming up.

Was Hamilton also a formidable legal force to be reckoned with through his obsessive-compulsive, exhaustive letter writing campaigns, venting all the perceived injustices ever inflicted upon him by his “cruel” community? With his latest and final postal entre addressed directly to Queen Elizabeth sent less than a week before his death,[48] the answer is most certainly in the affirmative, especially with the added boost of possessing likeminded friends in high places.

Hamilton spent years bribing and grooming local boys attending his clubs with money, gifts, lent bicycles, canoe trips, allowing truants to hang out at his D-I-Y shop during school hours.[49] A distinct change in attitude and behavior was often detected by parents in their sons after attending his clubs reflecting Hamilton’s parental subversion.

His club’s use of the word “rovers” in his first known club - the Dunblane Rovers Group, intentionally misled his community into believing his organization was affiliated with the Scouts Movement that at one time also used that same name. Moreover, since his sporting clubs regularly met at public schools, many parents assumed that his events were school sponsored. In addition to personally dropping off leaflets in residential neighborhood postal boxes for generating business, Hamilton would also unload bundles of his advertising leaflets left in schools to be distributed under the discretion of head teachers. This too would further lead to common misperception. And his bigger moneymaker, the summer camping clubs, were largely comprised of boys that attended clubs at the public schools. As a result, one parent stated:

> All the parents thought the club was organised by the local school, where its meetings took place. We only found out later that the school had nothing to do with it.[50]

Gradually though, his Mr. Creepy aura and persona rubbed too many children, parents and teachers the wrong way based on his ill-intentioned vibes that fueled the community's suspicions. By 1983 more than a dozen years before the school massacre, too many parents' complaints from their 9-and 10-year olds attending Hamilton's sports clubs at Dunblane High School led the Central Regional Council to suspend Hamilton's contract.[51] Allegations emerged of inappropriate contact with boys. In response, Hamilton accused Boy Scout officials and local parents of maliciously spreading "rumors," causing him to lose not only his D-I-Y business but also his "bread and butter" boys clubs as well. In actuality, he lost his home retail shop due to larger corporate competitors moving into the area to offer cheaper products in addition to his increasing preoccupation organizing club activities with young boys.[52]

The pedophile subsequently hired a solicitor to formally challenge the council decision and in 1984 the ombudsman of Central Scotland ruled in his favor, in effect the following year forcing the local high schools to remain his primary logistical platform for his boys sporting and camping clubs. Despite the sexual abuse allegations and plethora of parental misgivings, the ombudsman Eric Gillett felt that the parents' grievances and arguments were neither criminal nor alarming enough to warrant preventing Hamilton's legal access to Central Scotland schools and other council public buildings and venues for his clubs.[53] The ombudsman cited "unsubstantiated rumors" as insufficient legal grounds to deny him his means of livelihood. This victory carried the weight and momentum to largely tilt other district councils in Scotland to forego the legal hassle and cost of opposing his operations from spreading. It appeared his “charmed” life managing to avoid any and all accountability for his many years of shady behavior was inexplicable, unless of course consideration that the VIP pedo-Establishment was loyally protecting him.

So slighted by a constant flow of perceived enemies based on lifelong persecutory delusions, while still in his mid-20s and undaunted after his rejection by the Boy Scouts, the resourceful Thomas Hamilton created an alternative outlet to indulge his unhealthy fascination and perverted obsession for sleazily craving the company of young lads to boss around and abuse, soon enough organizing and running his own sports clubs and summer camps while maintaining his other unhealthy fixation on lethal weapons. By the late 1970s Hamilton began operating the Dunblane Rovers Group utilizing the Dunblane High School gymnasium and grounds. His sports clubs focused on rigorous physical exercise routines that catered to such popular sports as gymnastics and football (America’s soccer). Though banned for life from the Scouting Movement, Hamilton deceptively chose the name affiliated with the Boy Scouts. Initially his sports clubs and camping trips were quite popular in the early to mid-1980s, drawing up to 70 and 80 young boys respectively.[54]

Belonging to both masonic lodge #1413 and various gun clubs over the years (before most eventually also snubbed him), Hamilton would also regularly take his young boys to firing ranges for target practice shooting, knowing that for grooming purposes, young males’ interest in guns would only attract more boys to him and his organized activities.[55]

At all his sporting clubs and camps, Hamilton continued the dubiously suspect practice he’d begun in the Boy Scouts, forcing his young participants to strip down in front of his gawking, lecherous eyes to remove all their clothes in order to wear the Hamilton issued trademark, his skimpy, too tight black swim trunks, not even allowing the boys privacy to change in locker rooms. Right after the shooting, a boy that had attended one of his clubs at Dunblane High School revealed what Hamilton would regularly say:

You should take off your T shirts and have bare tops. Let's see who has the best build, and you can be captain of the football team.[56]

Prior to a father pulling his preteen son out of a Hamilton club, the boy alleged that the pervert told him:

You can come around and see my gun.[57]

As soon as parents found out about these highly suspicious, sexually provocative rituals that were overt signs that something wasn't right, immediately alarm bells would customarily go off. Additionally, without seeking parents' permission or knowledge, Hamilton's obsession to take photos and videos of boys (with a camcorder as of 1989), often filming long lingering shots concentrating either on their bare chests or groin sections was yet another tipoff that a homosexual child predator was on the loose in Central Scotland. Back in the pre-internet age, he allegedly supplemented his income selling these boy toy porn videos and photos to fellow pedophiles.[58]

Eventually by the early 1990s every one of Hamilton's local film developer shops in Stirling refused to accept his business,[59] specifically developing his weekly supply of film rolls due to their kinky, pedophilic nature, some of which undoubtedly constituted child pornography sold to other pedophiles… in all likelihood the prime reason for his nonstop flow of visitors in fancy clothes and cars briefly showing up at his rundown flat right up to his D-Day and within an hour of his death, plain clothes security services emptying his place of all incriminating evidence including his prized collection of child pornography.[60] It’s been reported that over 4,000 photos dating back 15 years were removed from his flat by police. After revealing that “Hamilton was at the center of a massive pedophile ring,” the Sunday Mirror stated just four days following the Dunblane attack:

> Hamilton supplied photographs to dozens of fellow perverts, many of them professional men who parked expensive cars outside his flat.[61]

So it wasn’t just nosy neighbors who knew all about his wealthy clients showing up at his doorstep all the time. With some of his best customers among the thin blue line, the Central Scotland police were well aware of:

> Names and details of men, most of them thought to be clients who paid him up to 100 pounds for pictures, are to be checked. Police also believe it was Hamilton's paedophile trade which allowed him to indulge in his expensive hobbies.[62]

Immediately following the mass murder, MSM and police readily admitted Hamilton was a child pornographer. Often before the mainstream press falls in line under strict orders to spew out only state controlled false narrative propaganda, actual truth can surface before absolute cabal censorship control takes over. Only in the first couple days after tragedy is it openly reported that Hamilton was at the center of a much larger pedophile ring that included well-dressed established figures. None of this information was allowed after the first week right through Cullen’s heavily controlled public inquiry.

Back to the pedophile’s addictive passion for topless boys, whenever asked or confronted by an inquisitive, concerned parent about his constant picture taking, Hamilton the bullshitter would insist that focusing the lens on a boy’s particular muscle group through photos and film analysis assisted him as a “skilled” (unqualified) coach to better develop their athletic skills in the sport.[63] Professionally, Hamilton only possessed a gymnastics assistant certificate, qualifying him to only be able work with girls under the license of a more certified professional and, because of his predatory boy obsession, he never did. And rarely if ever, did he ever actually work under any credentialed supervisor as required by his lowest level certificate. So technically, virtually his entire so called boys club career, he was deceptively breaking the law. Moreover, Hamilton routinely exceeded the child to adult supervision ratio, violating yet another statute regulation. But whenever anyone ever inquired or tried challenging him over these serious breaches, again he always seemed to slither out of them protected by his masonic big boys holding special interest in the wares he was selling.

Hamilton even tried selling his unqualified, amateurish, unlawful services using his borderline child porn videos as a self-promo advertisement, but the unnatural, perverted effects from watching more than a minute or two nearly always backfired, turning parents away.[64] It was more than obvious that this geeky, bespectacled, pudgy, lying-his-ass-off, clinically insane freak was a complete sexual perv and deceitful fraud, capped off with a paranoid personality. For the Establishment to protect and defend him for 25 years is no different from how it protected fellow dangerous deviant Jimmy Savile’s predatory crimes, also unhidden in plain sight. Consider it a job perk that comes with the territory as child procurers operating within the same VIP pedophilia network.

Under increasing pressure to appear more legitimate and safe, by 1989 Hamilton was intentionally misrepresenting his boys club services by using the misleading name “Boys’ Club Sports Group Committee” under the false pretense that his virtual one-man amateurish operation was a professional group.[65] The ever-deceitful Hamilton submitted fictitious minutes to his alleged committee meetings to con councils into granting him contracts to use public buildings for his clubs, even listing his clueless mother Agnes as a bogus committee member. No doubt signatures on his petitions and letters allegedly supporting his clubs after councils had cancelled his lets were also fake. As his number of club members gradually declined over the years, early on Hamilton would attribute it to lack of patience and commitment in undisciplined, immature boys. But in later years Hamilton increasingly blamed negative gossip and lies spread about him through parents, teachers, police and Boy Scout officials. Despite communities across Central Scotland realizing he was bad news, at the time of the Dunblane shooting, he still was running authorized clubs in Dunblane, Falkirk, Bannockburn and Bishopbriggs.[66]

Whenever parents would express concern that no other supervising adults were present at his clubs, his typical response would be to falsely claim he was authorized to run his groups alone with up to 30 boys.[67] Yet another violation was Hamilton never carried mandatory insurance for his club business. Hustler Hamilton in an aggressive sales ploy typically applied undue pressure on any boy and his parents after attending just one session in order to recruit customers for his summer camps where he earned more money and more opportunity to abuse his prey.

After the ombudsman had given him the greenlight to resume his sports and camping clubs in 1985, Hamilton's MP from his hometown Stirling Michael Forsyth made sure to send a congratulatory note for being able to continue doing what he loved best – hanging out with half-naked, submissive, browbeaten white boys. He even urged the pervert to use the ombudsman's favorable decision as a selling point, writing:

> Dear Mr Hamilton, thank you for sending me the commissioner's report. May I congratulate you on your success. I hope you will take steps to ensure this is given proper publicity.[68]

The day after the Dunblane massacre, it was Forsyth who wrote Prime Minister John Major expressing how urgently important it was for "the right judge" to be selected for the public inquiry,[69] which of course as the Scotland Secretary of State, Forsyth chose the alleged accomplice-to-the-crime Freemason Judge William Cullen,[70] who in turn chose fellow Freemason saturated criminal accomplice - the Central Scotland Police to investigate.[71] So it amounted to the criminals investigating the criminals, i.e., a win-win for pedophile protecting criminals only, utilizing the same old worn-out formula for pulling off yet another sealed tight pedo-cover-up.

After protecting and enabling the criminal for over 20 years,[72] placing the CSP in charge of the Dunblane massacre investigation is like a bank heist getaway driver put in charge of investigating the same bank robbery he just participated in. And the Dunblane investigator - Detective Chief Superintendent John Ogg who helped salvage Hamilton's luxury cabin cruiser that caught fire years earlier made the vow to leave "no stone unturned" in the mass murder investigation, the same chap that allegedly cast a vote to hide all files for 100 years.[73] It's so out there, you can't make this shit up.

In response to the uproar over allegations that the Cullen Inquiry and CSP investigation were a cover-up, Ogg stated:

> I can reassure you that the investigation into the Dunblane incident was absolutely thorough, and we covered every angle.[74]

On top of all the corrupt collusion that went into the making of the cover-up, a year after the massacre, it was revealed from several sources that Thomas Hamilton even served as a Central Scotland Police informer.[75] Scottish MP Tam Dalyell from Lithlingow who made the allegation first came into contact with Hamilton after a mother complained that the pedophile had made sexual advances toward her son. But when the MP contacted police, they said there was nothing they could do (i.e., he was above the law). No wonder CSP never arrested the creep. Throw in Cullen's century long ban and all the VIP pedophiles blissfully live out their lives unencumbered, going to their graves never paying for their heinous crimes.

Thus for a so called nerdy "schizoid misfit loner, Freemason Thomas Hamilton "mysteriously" wielded a whole lot of unaccounted for clout and power granting him a lifetime "get out of jail" card and a lifetime supply of preapproved gun licenses despite decades of accumulating evidence of unsavory illicit activity. Clearly he was aided and abetted, armed and made all the more dangerous for a full quarter century both prior to as well as after his death (with another three quarters of a century still to go per protector Cullen) by a not-so-secret, impenetrable layer of impunity shielded by upstanding, rock solid pillars of the Scottish masonic community and British nation, all sharing the same perverted tastes for sexually preyed upon underage boys.[76] But this part of his seedy criminal life was virtually excised meticulously out of the Cullen cutout of a sham inquiry as well as the litany of distorted, half-truth mainstream accounts of his life, in particular, Hamilton's central role as a Savile-like "pimp" for Scotland's child abusing VIP Freemasons.[77] This segment of "the Thomas-Crown Affair" has been forcibly, surgically yet all-too conspicuously removed from public exposure for the rest of our lives and beyond.

During the Cullen inquiry there were just two brief gloss-over mentions of incidents related to inappropriate sexual misconduct on Hamilton’s part. One involved a 12-year old boy who showed up to a club for the first time around 1979-80 after hearing about shooting guns at the firing range. At the Cullen Inquiry the witness said that Hamilton sat down next to him and began rubbing his inner thigh asking him why he wanted to become a Dunblane Rover, the name of his group.[78] The boy recoiled and went home and told his father how Hamilton gave him the creeps. Yet when this same boy came back to the club the following week, knowing the 12-year old had complained about him, Hamilton refused to let him into the group under the pretense that the boy was too immature, code word for “can’t keep secrets.”

The other incident read at the inquiry was an anonymous account written by a man still in his mid-20s.[79] As a 12-year old boy in the early 1980s, he attended four sessions of Hamilton’s Rovers Club at Bannockburn High School. Two of those four weeks were spent shooting at a Dunblane firing range. When summer came, with about 7 or 8 other boys, the 12-year old signed up for a week and a half outing aboard Hamilton’s luxury cabin cruiser on Loch Lomond. One particular day and night stood out from the rest when Hamilton took turns placing a rope around each boy and flinging them overboard into the water. The 12-year old was too frightened, faking illness to get out of it. That night he was summoned to Hamilton’s private cabin wearing only his underwear while Hamilton was only dressed in shorts. Eerily similar to MP Cyril Smith meting out punishment for “bad boys” as his concocted lame excuse to sexually abuse his victims, while threateningly holding a pointer, Hamilton ordered the 12-year old to behave or else. In the victim’s words:

He began to touch me between the legs and private parts. I was very scared and started to cry. He told me to stop crying or I would be hit by the pointer.[80]

By this time Hamilton had slipped out of his shorts exhibiting a hard-on while commanding the boy to lie down on his bed. With the lad laying facedown, Hamilton then began stroking his back asking if he liked it while the abuser stroked his own penis.[81] When the freaked out, poor kid began crying again, an enraged Hamilton pounded the pointer into the pillow inches from the terrorized boy's head, then told him to stand up and face the wall while breathing heavily, Hamilton again began stroking the boy's backside. The traumatized 12-year old was frozen in fear for the duration of the encounter. Though by phone he pleaded with his mother the next day to come home early, he knew he couldn't, nor could he tell his mother what happened.

Though this incident seems extremely credible and no doubt did occur, the inquiry solicitor representing the Crown Office Ian Bonomy explained that it could not be trusted because the alleged victim was recently convicted of a "dishonesty crime" and that other information conveyed was not verifiable nor was the witness located or willing or able to appear at the inquiry in person.[82] A running theme in all the pedo-scandals always puts child victims on trial as an expedient target to dismiss allegations. Judge Cullen had heard enough to completely write off the alleged sexual abuse as unreliable, again going out of his way to discard the fact that Thomas Hamilton was a predatory serial pedophile. For obvious reason, Cullen steered the inquiry away from any further exploring of Hamilton's sexual crimes, ensuring that the Dunblane killer's VIP pedophile ring was completely suppressed, safely hidden away till 2096.

Cullen's over-the-top strategy in his inquiry was to blame law enforcement for letting the monster slip through the cracks while concealing his own judicial Crown Office from obstruction of justice.[83] The public was supposed to buy the Speculative Society Freemason Judge Cullen's official story that the disgraced fall guy in the Dunblane Massacre is Central Scotland Police, Deputy Chief Constable Douglas McMurdo, whose chronic gross lack of judgement for decades at a time permitted Hamilton to misuse the flawed policing system, signing off on the killer's firearms certificates in both 1989 and again for a final time in 1995 just months ahead of the Dunblane Massacre. McMurdo's last signature according to the Cullen line is supposed to have sealed the tragic fate of 16 murdered schoolchildren and their teacher. At McMurdo's lengthy 2-day cross-examination conducted by the solicitor representing deceased children's families, Colin Campbell QC, the normally composed and businesslike lawman-turned-targeted public scapegoat reportedly broke down in tears hearing Campbell's accusation:

But for the culpable failure by Central Scotland Police [i.e., DCC McMurdo], it is probable that the events of 13 March at Dunblane primary school would not have occurred.[84]

McMurdo became the cabal's sacrificial fall guy so that over 100 documents and VIP pedo-criminals could remain hidden for the next 100 years. We're supposed to actually buy this absurd line of crap that beyond the killer himself, only DCC McMurdo and his CSP caused the massacre through their own gross negligence and incompetence. One senior officer's stupidity in the Freemason infested Central Scotland Police is how Thomas Hamilton was allowed to commit the biggest mass murder in British history… uh-huh. And for his taking on the scapegoat role in the Dunblane bloodbath aftermath in defense of the realm, as always Queen Elizabeth never fails to reward all her key pedo-cabal players for their sacrifice and dedication to the bigger pedo-cause. Just 19 days after the 1996 massacre, Her Majesty promoted McMurdo as assistant to Her Majesty's Chief Inspectorate of Constabulary for all of Scotland.[85] Obviously McMurdo dutifully fell on the sword for the Queen's Commonwealth Cabal, so the rest of the evil ones could escape justice free and clear.

But here’s the real truth. McMurdo and Hamilton were close friends, very likely masonic close friends. After all, on the final day of Cullen’s inquiry, McMurdo’s chauffeur testified that in the evening he often would drive his boss to Hamilton’s dirty little flat.[86] The fact that they were close friends explains why McMurdo never failed to rubber stamp his gun license renewals despite so much evidence against it.

Head of CSP’s child protection unit - Detective Sergeant Paul Hughes - conducted an inspection of Thomas Hamilton’s alleged illicit activities at his summer camps on Loch Lomond in the summer of 1991, writing a scathing indictment on the camp leader’s “unsavory character and unstable personality.”[87] Det. Hughes even had the foresight to realize the procurator fiscal, the office in Scotland that weighs police evidence to decide whether to charge and prosecute a suspect, would not prosecute Hamilton based on his police report. So on November 11, 1991 Hughes sent a memo to the Detective Superintendent, CID Headquarters unequivocally stating Hamilton’s firearms license should be revoked.[88] Despite the memo winding up on Deputy Chief Constable McMurdo’s desk, on November 14, 1991 McMurdo stamped “no action,” and went ahead signing off on his next gun license. For his catastrophic “mistakes,” once this damaging news surfaced during the Cullen inquiry in the summer of ’96, followed by the release of the Cullen report in October, McMurdo was toast, compelled to resign from both his lofty law enforcement posts despite the symbolically empty royal props from the queen.[89]

If it’s not really true that all it took to allow VIP pedophiles to go Scot free is sacrifice one senior cop’s career, then release the over 100 secret files to disprove it. Otherwise, it can only be taken that the above statement has to be true. The British Establishment needs the ban in place so that the guilty sodomizers atop the pedo-food chain can peacefully go to their graves untouched by their God-defying sins.

During the Cullen Inquiry DCC McMurdo admitted:

I knew him better than anyone... but I didn't think he was dangerous.[90]

Scotland’s assistant HM Chief Inspector of Constabulary lied under oath:

Everything I knew about him [Hamilton] was related to boys’ camps. There was no evidence he would be dangerous with a firearm.[91]

Tell that to all the young boys and families over the years that witnessed firsthand and reported to police Hamilton recklessly brandishing his vast collection of loaded firearms or one of the boys’ mothers Doreen Hagger, who he angrily threatened with his rifle on a 1988 camping trip to Inchmoan Island on Loch Loman, followed by:

Wouldn’t it be strange if your tent caught fire tonight?[92]

On another occasion after she’d reported him to the police, he drove to her home to angrily confront her. In Doreen’s words:

He was in his van one day and stopped me outside my house. He said he heard I had been talking to the police. I told him that as far as I was concerned he was a pervert and should not be in charge of boys. At that he produced this gun from under his seat and pointed it at me, saying it was loaded.[93]

Yet McMurdo had the audacity to pretend there was no evidence that Hamilton was a dangerous gun lunatic, threatening repeatedly to use his lethal weapons on anyone bold enough to confront and oppose him. When Doreen reported the incident to the police, she was told that Hamilton was simply moving his gun to a new location and had gun permits, unwilling to lift a finger in her defense, much less take action against his emboldened criminal offense. It was obvious that Hamilton's cockiness stemmed from knowing his police friends in high places would be backing him up.

Doreen and Hamilton had clashed months earlier. Right after the massacre according to a March 1996 Irish Times article, Doreen Hagger heard from her 10-year old son attending one of his Loch Lomond camps in 1988 that:

Boys were forced to run around naked, rub suntan oil on to Hamilton, and were stripped and thrown into the freezing loch[94].

… these same complaints heard from others as well reflect more echoes of the Lord of the Flies theme.

Incidents alleging that the pervert was rubbing suntan lotion on boys' inner thighs, and demanding that they in turn rub the lotion all over his naked body accompanied by an unavoidable erection and heavy breathing clearly was sexual abuse involving indecent acts committed against minors. Journalist Jonathon Russell wrote in The Mirror a March 1996 article that:

[Boys were] forced to rub suntan oil all over his naked body as he writhed and groaned in ecstasy.[95]

Hamilton reportedly slept in the same tent with his favorite boys as well. Yet when Doreen Hagger compiled all this evidence and presented it to the police, it was dismissed as mere hearsay, never taken seriously as a crime.

The disturbing information her son had shared with his mother was what prompted Doreen and her friend Janet Reilly to rush to Hamilton's campsite, ostensibly as adult volunteers in order to see for themselves what was going on.

[96] But Hamilton rarely included other adults at any of his activities, regularly violating statute codes of the child to adult supervision ratio. From the very start, Hamilton viewed Doreen and Janet as intruding troublemakers raining on his pedo-parade rather than much needed adult helpers.

Immediately they clashed when Doreen saw how he underfed the boys while cracking a slave driver's whip to impose hard labor on his young captives. While boys had powdered porridge for breakfast, the tyrant had bacon and eggs. While he drank juice, they were forced to drink water out of the loch. While he stood ordering them around as King Tut, since 8AM they were gathering a week's supply of large logs for firewood, while required as always to wear skimpy swim trunks regardless of the cold weather. She had to insist the boys be given water breaks and at 11:30AM cease their assigned chores.[97] After he'd gone to sleep that night, Doreen went through his supplies and the next morning fed his young campers his eggs and bacon. She also forced Hamilton to make an off island shopping trip to begrudgingly spend £80 on real food including fresh fruit and vegetables. By day two he hated the female intruders' presence and it was at this point that he threatened to burn down her tent. She practically had to beg one of the older boys to help her, her 7-year old daughter Vicky, son Andrew and Janet escape once everyone had gone to bed. Yet Doreen had a long sleepless night feeling guilty that she'd abandoned the abused boys still left in camp with the petty, wicked, dangerous man.

By predatory design, Hamilton preferred to be alone with boys, especially at the remote campsites, since he could easily get away with physical and sexual abuse without interference from "prying" adult eyes. Only allegedly invited likeminded VIP pedo guests rendezvousing at his isolated campsites were welcome. From the late great journalist and author Dave Magowan's 2001 The Pedophocracy:

One police report sealed under the [100-year] order ‘concerns Thomas Hamilton’s activities at a summer camp in 1991, five years before the shootings,’ and allegedly links Hamilton to ‘figures in the Scottish establishment, including two senior politicians and a lawyer,’ according to The Guardian.[98]

Immediately following the Dunblane shooting, five teenage boys emerged to tell their horrific stories of cruel abuse at the maniac’s hands while stranded alone for days on Loch Lomond on what they call “Devil’s Island” in the late 1980s or early 90s. On their camping expedition for kicks, Hamilton forced one of the primary school youngsters to swallow a .22 rifle bullet, then bellied over in uncontrollable laughter.[99] Once they arrived on the island, the brother of the bullet swallower stated:

When Hamilton got us alone on that island he told us that our parents had given him permission to beat us.[100]

The sadist took immense pleasure terrorizing the 8- and 9-year old boys, confiscating all their clothes upon arrival and requiring them to wear only his issued black swimsuits without shoes through bracken and nettles, scratching, bruising and cutting up their feet and legs. That would be his sick lame excuse to then inflict more pain rubbing “white spirit” on them. When boys would cry, he would give them “special treatment” in his punishment tent. He used a hairbrush on their backsides for those cringing in tears. Meanwhile, the rest of the unhappy campers were forced to stand at attention outside the punishment tent listening to the screams of their peers being beaten. A mother of a 10-year old restated the familiar scene that he would force boys in the punishment tent to rub suntan oil on his private parts. In her words:

He'd pick a couple of boys to do it every night. The kids spoke of him moaning, and wriggling about making funny noises .[101]

Another favorite form of punishment mentioned earlier was being thrown into the frigid lake water to stand at attention until they turn blue. Around the campfire at night he wouldn’t tell ghost stories but stories of murder with chopped off heads. This is an old predator tactic to scare young children into a state of such fear and anxiety before sleep that they become less resistive to physical “comforting” from the adult pervert’s lustful touch. Right after the Dunblane mass killing, allegations surfaced that Hamilton used sticks with thorns to beat naked boys on his camping trips.[102]

Hamilton conned parents, even two fathers who were police officers, into believing his camps were loaded with good, clean, innocent summer fun, fun for only the sicko who regularly got his jollies off at abused, molested children’s expense. One of the cops said “he led them like slaves,” similar to a boot camp or prison. But when both police officers registered formal complaints about Hamilton’s pedophilic crimes to their bosses, again no charges or prosecution resulted.[103] Only more confirmation that he was protected by a masonic pedophile brotherhood.

The brother of the boy made to swallow the bullet also disclosed:

He took me inside a tent alone and made me strip. It was creepy. He stared at me for a while before giving me some skimpy black shorts to wear. Everyone got the same treatment. [Another lad chimed in] He was a weirdo. Some of the things he made the kids do was terrible.[104]

The final statement above means the media and public still doesn’t know the half of it. The untold shame of trauma typically precludes male adolescents from full disclosure. What is most clear, Hamilton derived demented pleasure turning their world into a pure nightmarish hell for his terrorized victims.

Another mother was sickened to learn that her 7-year old son was the object of Hamilton’s nocturnal attentions:

> Hamilton was so desperate to get my Steven at the camp that he offered to let one of my sons go for free. At nights during the trip, Steven would always lay down to sleep beside his friend. But Hamilton would physically lift him and put him beside where he was sleeping. If Steven woke up during the night he would go back to his pal. But Hamilton would follow him and carry him back to lie beside his sleeping bag.[105]

Again the madman’s pattern of twofold abuse was similar to Sir Cyril Smith, except much more protracted. They would both use punishment to “discipline” and “toughen up” victims with their physical abuse, and then when alone under the guise of comforting boys, they’d sexually abuse them. With heavy breathing arousal, Hamilton would attempt to cuddle or rub suntan oil all over their bodies. On a daily basis, he violated legal boundaries, both physically and sexually assaulting his helpless captives.

One of the boys on a brief visit into town managed to slip away to make a quick phone call home to a father who rushed to his rescue. The pedophile was furious as the boys were all evacuated after the father contacted the police. But when the evidence was reported to a senior police detective, after saying he would consult with the procurator fiscal, he never got back to him… surprise, surprise.[106] Another father whose two boys attended one of his Loch Lomond camps alleged that Hamilton would order boys to strip and then beat them “across the buttocks.”[107] He too brought the criminal matter to police in Dumbarton but again he was never charged. Between the police, the Crown Office and Procurator Fiscals as pedophile enablers, if not full blown pedophiles themselves, they’re all alleged to be part of a masonic pedo-ring, flimsily hidden in plain sight by Lord Cullen for 100-years. Once the Boy Scouts organization smartly banned him for life in 1974, over the next 22 years on 25 separate occasions the serial child abuser came to the attention of police, prosecutors and councils that could never do what the Scout Association did…[108] for an all too obvious reason – an evil masonic pedophile brotherhood rules over Britain and for that matter, the entire world.

Sandra Uttley teamed with the most vociferous Hamilton adversary, parent Doreen Hagger to campaign for a new inquiry. Sandra cites certain actions, confrontations and observations between Hamilton and Doreen during that volatile 1988 camping episode on Inchmoan Island, drawing the conclusion that those who knew Hamilton “know for certain he didn’t kill himself.” Doreen steadfastly maintains:

He [Hamilton] was far too much of a coward.[109]

Doreen, her daughter Vicky and her friend Janet Reilly saw for themselves how Hamilton as the lone operator cowardly and sadistically bullied and maltreated the young boys in his charge. After observing how the tyrant starved the boys and made them do backbreaking work, for a little, get-even fun, Doreen rallied the troops to gather up spiders and creepy crawlies to place in Hamilton’s sleeping bag that night. He did not disappoint as he freaked out like a scared little girl. Then when the island suddenly attracted a huge flock of geese, Hamilton came running to Doreen seeking protection. Those who knew him realized he was a coward through and through.

Doreen Hagger’s valiant quest to derail pedophile Thomas Hamilton from harming more boys met only with shameful apathy and passive resistance from law enforcement, forcing her and friend Janet to take law into their own hands. On May 16, 1989 she and her friend gave the slimeball a dose of his own medicine. They concocted the nastiest brew they could come up with, featuring such unpleasant ingredients as liquid manure, fish manure, vinegar, wallpaper paste and flour laced with a large amount of suntan oil, since the pervert got so turned on when he made boys rub it all over his disgusting naked body.[110] Shortly after Hamilton had finished running another one of his sports clubs at the Linlithgow Academy gym, waiting outside as he headed to his van, he was ambushed by the two ladies-in-waiting who each showered him with a bucketful of his oily gook favorite, essentially assaulting him with the expressed intent to be arrested, complete with a press reporter and photographer for maximum publicity. The school janitor called police but much to Doreen and Janet’s surprise and disappointment, the crafty Hamilton refused to press charges, no doubt anticipating that more dirt about him would be sure to emerge in court. As they poured the foul substance over him, Doreen yelled:

I’m sorry I couldn’t get a wee boy to rub it in!

Since the police refused to do its job investigating the pedophile ringleader, Doreen was determined to force a case into court that might prompt a true investigation of the sex criminal. At this exact same time a housemaster named Glenn Harrison from the Defense Ministry’s Queen Victoria School (QVS) also located in Dunblane was also pushing for the exact same outcome, an actual investigation into the pedophile ring directly linked to Thomas Hamilton.[111] More to come on the QVS-Hamilton pedo-connection. Because law enforcement, the Crown Office and high-powered politicians were always shielding him, either no real police probe would occur or were never given the greenlight for criminal charges to be brought against him.

After learning that Hamilton had gone to the home of one of the boys from the Linlithgow club with two firearms and a rifle and allowed the entire family to pose for pictures with his weapons, Doreen also presented this unlawful development to the police, but again to no avail.[112] After DCC McMurdo received the report, he yet again lied under oath at the Cullen Inquiry insisting he never knew the gun fanatic could be dangerous.

For all her efforts reporting Hamilton to the authorities, the Lothian Regional council finally suspended Hamilton’s let in May 1989. Based on the mounting evidence, Lothian Regional council canceled Hamilton’s access to conduct business at the district’s public buildings.[113] Even though Hamilton complained to the ombudsman again, this one ruled against him, an early sign that the Freemason was finally starting to lose his power grip, at least at one local level.

In response to more parents’ complaints that Hamilton was physically assaulting boys at his Loch Lomond campsite during that same summer of 1988, two constables from Strathclyde police were dispatched to investigate.[114] Their observations concluded that Hamilton’s supervision left much to be desired, including a very messy campsite with dirty dishes strewn about, lack of both supervision and available nutritious food, and inconsistent allegations from boys regarding Hamilton’s violence towards them. Of course Hamilton defended his actions as necessary disciplinary punishment in order restore order dealing with two misbehaving troublemakers. Yet any adult’s physical aggression towards youth constitutes criminal assault. Despite a sense that Hamilton was a very shady character, their police report stopped short of making any formal charges. Yet Hamilton characteristically overreacted, taking their appearance as a personal affront and attack on his moral character, and ultimately lodged a formal complaint against the investigating male police constable. Due to Hamilton’s unfounded retaliation, the legal squabbling was long and dragged out, with ultimately the police backing the restrained actions of the constable, which only reinforced Hamilton’s paranoid contention that police were out to get him. Though the targeted constable contemplated filing a more than justified defamation suit against Hamilton for his relentless harassment, the constable decided against it. One has to wonder if the policeman backed down because he knew Hamilton had powerful masonic connections behind him that could spell further trouble for the constable.

Nearly a decade later having heard about an incident with three young boys who ran away in the middle of the night in their pajamas from Hamilton’s camping club at Dunblane High School, together with accumulated negative reports over the years, a senior leader at the Fife Regional Council opted to close Hamilton’s contract in 1992, based more on his overall gut feeling than on any single factor.[115] As it should, protecting youth in his district weighed foremost on his judgment. Though Hamilton complained to the ombudsman, again this time his contract was withdrawn for good because pedo-boy apparently refused to meet with the council members in person. Finally, it appeared that at least some of the local Scottish authorities were gaining the upper hand, slowly halting Hamilton’s criminal operation from continuing to flourish and expand across Central Scotland.

Unfortunately having lost its first attempt to cancel the pedophile’s contract due to the ombudsman overruling it in 1984, at the 1996 Cullen inquiry members of the Central Regional council like Robert Ball subsequently defended their decision to retain Hamilton’s services once the council lost its case a decade earlier, suggesting the probability that he still had sway over key positions in Central Scotland politics.[116] Other members claimed that had they been informed of both Lothian and Fife’s successful ban, they would have followed suit. But this hindsight gesture’s likely just face-saving CYA bluster in the face of the recent local tragedy.

As time went by, Hamilton's powerful protectors had begun cutting their losses, cashing in their pedo-chips to distance themselves from Hamilton as a potential liability. In the final couple years of the child pimp's life, he found that the pedophile Establishment's interventions on his behalf that had always loyally shielded him from all past consequence, showed signs of weakening and drying up, just like his clubs.

This places more credence on CSP and security services in the final months conspiring with him on his Dunblane act of revenge, while leading him to falsely believe he'd still remain protected with a new life awaiting him, thus boosting his spirits and giving him an unprecedented rosy outlook on life observed daily by his neighbors towards the very end in March 1996. He appeared to have plans for his future and was not showing any signs of either depression or suicidality during the final days leading up to the shooting.[117]

Though a coward underneath his uptight and domineering personality, Hamilton had an overbearing, intimidating way of throwing his weight around, lashing out against perceived threats with both verbal and written attacks. As demonstrated against Doreen Hagger, he also used threats of lethal violence in efforts to overpower and subdue his targeted adversaries, especially women and children he perceived to be weaker, again not unlike the crude, thuggish edge of Savile's arrogant swagger. Also similar to other infamous predatory pedophiles, Hamilton frequently groomed underage victims by buying their silence with money[118] or promises of Loch Lomond boat rides or trips to the shooting range as opposed to handing out free tickets to popular BBC TV shows with backstage passes.

In January 1995 that cocky air of intimidation was on full display when 30-year old Police Constable Anne Anderson was dispatched to Hamilton's home to inquire about his latest (and final) firearms licensing application.[119] While she was scribbling down notes in response to his answering a checklist of questions, for lack of writing space in his small cramped flat, she was forced to kneel on her knees. Meanwhile, with gun in his hand, Hamilton lorded over her, gloating while hovering above, emitting an aggressive body language while defiantly showing her his proud collection of fine guns he treated like his own babies. While given a lift home from the Stirling Gun and Rifle Club just eleven days before the shooting, he was observed affectionately stroking his guns, referring to them literally as his "babies."[120] One sick dude that clearly unnerved Constable Anne during her strange, uncomfortable encounter with the alleged future killer, later confessing to the press:

It was the way he looked at me. It's very difficult to put it into words.[121]

Still shaken, back at the police station PC Anderson stated that a senior detective inspector emphatically reminded her that there was nothing she could do to stop Hamilton from obtaining his latest gun license, as if already a done deal, automatically preapproved from the top of the power food chain, allegedly including a certain MP's sterling character reference.[122] By the way, fellow Freemason Lord George Robertson is both a son and brother of Scottish policemen,[123] holding a fraternal brotherhood bond for life. Borrowing the title of a famous Beatles composed Joe Cocker song, seemingly untouchable Thomas Watt Hamilton got by "with a little help from [his] friends."

It wouldn't be a UK pedophilia scandal cover-up without missing flies. Turns out that at Hamilton's final licensing, criminal intelligence flies on Hamilton were removed from the computer system that would have cancelled his gun renewal in January 1995.[124] This reinforces the adamant remark by PC Anne Anderson's higher-up stating Hamilton's license approval was already a done deal. The Hughes report explicitly stating the pervert should not own guns among other red flags were all "mysteriously" missing that would've been cause for denial. Reports were wiped clean. One file labeled “HOMO-INDCH” meaning homosexual, indecency with children was “lost” preventing firearms officers from consideration. Central Chief Inspector in firearms Colin Mather noticed shortcomings on Hamilton’s application, but because commander of operations in Stirling (soon chief superintendent) Jim Moffat had already signed off, it was rubberstamped. Clearly, the powerful masonic hidden hand ensured gun-crazy Thomas got his guns for his March madness. Additionally, immediately following the Dunblane killings, the entire catalogue of Thomas Hamilton’s police files went missing.[125] CYA time for CSP.

In addition to support from well-placed, likeminded masonic friends, for years Thomas Hamilton’s primary assault weapon against both real and perceived enemies was his infamously countless letter campaigns, aggressively arguing his legal points ad nauseam as a mistreated, violated innocent victim, despite being every bit the predatory aggressor. Instinctively knowing his best defense was a relentless offense, Hamilton often would wear down his opponents through an endless, willful war of attrition.

And of course for years the hidden-in-plain-sight masonic pedo-Establishment regularly shielded him from prosecution or loss of gun permit… that is until his bitter end when at approximately 9:34AM on that fateful icy Wednesday morning of March 13th, 1996 at the Dunblane Primary School gymnasium, it appears the Establishment had finally had enough of bailing his lame ass out, suddenly turning on him to ultimately silence Hamilton for good with two bullets through the brain fired from the missing Smith and Wesson .357 Magnum revolver never found at the crime scene and never used to injure or kill any of his 32 gunshot victims.[126]

The bottom line, since at least 1981 with the total of 16 different boys clubs he ran, parents were reporting Hamilton for his dangerous behaviors, regularly displayed before their children in countless incidents, resulting in at least a half dozen police investigations, four of which recommended arrest. But with the procurator fiscal always having the final word,[127] the Crown Office in Freemason pedo-country Scotland was and is the chief gatekeeper guarding the VIP predator henhouse. Needless to say, there exists overwhelming evidence indicating the maniac Thomas Hamilton should never have owned a firearm nor been allowed near kids, and you'd best believe if it was you or me in his shoes, we would've been arrested and locked up years ago.

The only reason why this sick fuck was protected for decades at a time was the exact same reason Sir Jimmy Savile was protected, because both were child procurers to the same VIP sodomizers, and as such, the Crown Service did its cabal duty best to look the other way "in defense of the realm," consistently claiming "not enough evidence," the never-ending mantra heard like a broken record in every single UK pedophilia scandal-cover-up - bar none. In Sandra Uttley's Dunblane Unburied, she writes that Norman Bassett even accused Thomas Hamilton of supplying young boys to Tory sickos at London's Conservative Party Central Office.[128] And despite four different police forces investigating the child molester[129] at least a half dozen times, four times recommending prosecution,[130] the lifelong pervert was never even arrested while police continued issuing his gun license seven straight times.[131] Yet with or without his guns, DCC Douglas McMurdo put on his deceitful act on the witness stand pretending he had no idea Hamilton could be dangerous, exposed only to his apparent "lack" of danger around kids at dozens of his campsites (according to Hamilton's boast, 55 camping expeditions by 1988 alone). So why that should not have gotten in the way of his owning lethal weapons, only McMurdo and his defense-of-the-realm cabal really know.

Flagrant evidence that the pedo-Establishment circled its wagons right after the massacre to continue protecting itself and, by extension, the deceased Hamilton, came in the form of Scottish Office Minister Lord James Douglas-Hamilton's pronouncement in November 1996:

> There was in fact little evidence of any acts of indecency on the part of Thomas Hamilton. So far as can be established no incident amounting to sexual interference with male children as reported to the police while Hamilton was alive. [132]

You think with the same namesake Lord Hamilton is protecting his own kinship relation? Or is it the fact that Lord Hamilton is also a fellow Freemason (#1722 in the controversial Speculative Society, same as Brother Cullen's)?[133] Or is he just another pedophile protecting another fellow pedophile with the same last name? Inquiring minds want to know before 2096, especially about that buried notorious letter from Brother Thomas written to Brother James.[134] Lord Hamilton goes on to defend his Brother William:

> The actions of the police in reporting cases to the Procurator Fiscal were examined by Lord Cullen, who concluded that there was no evidence of any criminal act on Hamilton's part before the tragedy. In the light of Lord Cullen's findings, the Secretary of State sees no need for further investigation into the actions of the police in making reports to [the] Procurator Fiscal, and the Lord Advocate considers that further investigations of the actions of the Procurators Fiscal is unnecessary.[135]

On the one hand, Cullen says no evidence shows Thomas Hamilton was a child abuser. Yet when he had to explain himself over his 100-year secrecy on all documents, he cites that names of vulnerable sexually abused children must be protected… which is it?[136] You can't have it both ways fool.

Now on to Lord Hamilton's incredibly hideous statements, not only is he declaring the pedophile Hamilton innocent, but the very criminals [and likely pedophiles] from both the law enforcement and legal professions that overtly went out of their way to protect the pedophile, are also declared innocent. What's clear is how quickly they rush to wash their hands clean of the sordid Hamilton affair, pretending there was nothing more to the story than captured in the whitewashed Cullen report. Yet if that were true, why withhold all the evidence from the public for a full century if there's nothing to hide? It's very plain and clear that all the masonic pedo-enablers - if not child sodomizers - are protecting each other's criminality as always. After all, the fifth of the Five Points of Freemasonry Fellowship explicitly states:

Defend a brother's character in his absence as in his presence.[137]

Speaking of defending fellow brothers in defense of the realm, Dr. Ian Oliver was former DCC McMurdo's boss as Chief Constable of Central Scotland Police for a near dozen years (1979-1990) and then Grampian (1990-98). He too admitted to personally knowing Thomas Hamilton.[138] Immediately following the Dunblane shooting, Dr. Oliver spearheaded the creation of a firearms consultative committee to work with Parliament on rolling out the strictest gun control legislation in the world. In 1996 and 97 former CSP and current Grampian police chief and his police force were already under fire over its mishandling of yet another murdered child's investigation, the case of a 9-year old boy abducted and strangled by yet another pedophile-killer fresh off the Dunblane massacre.

But then the event that toppled his law enforcement reign arrived when the married 58-year old Oliver was photographed in a compromising position kissing the 26-year old wife of a millionaire businessman, exposed in the Scottish Sun before the disgraced police chief was forced a year later into early retirement…[139] like Lord Robertson pressured out of NATO at 58. But versatile Dr. Oliver began a new career at the UN as an NWO expert, coveted public speaker and author on terrorism and the wrath of drugs.[140] Pedo-enabling Prime Minister David Cameron hired the shamed copper's son Craig Oliver, a journalist at Savile's pedo-infested BBC as the PM's final director of communications in 2011, year of Sir Jimmy's death.

So let's recap: the top two Central Scotland Police commanders whose police force under their watch reputedly steeped in Freemasonry repeatedly bailed out fellow mason Hamilton who both honchos admittedly knew as a personal friend, but despite overwhelming evidence for two decades refused or failed to arrest him or revoke his gun license; also the big cheese failed to rescue another pedo-murder child victim while instrumental in UK's sweeping gun control legislation right after the massacre and soon became embroiled in a messy adulterous scandal. Then once his lustful leanings washed up his police career, Dr. Oliver reinvented himself, resurfacing as a United Nations expert and author on such related topics as drugs and terrorism, both directly connected to the state sponsored terror invariably committed by spooks and stooges heavily medicated by Big Pharma while always accompanied by invisible handlers from intelligence agencies. Way too many coincidences to be purely random events. Are these guys major cabal players or what?

The entire public spectacle of Freemason William Cullen's orchestrated inquiry scam was simply part of the cabal's much larger game plan strategy, endlessly milking to death the Hegelian Dialectic of "problem, reaction, solution" as the most effective Deep State tactic to create a globalized fascist authoritarian police state. Incessantly staging state sponsored false flag mass shootings and terrorism like the Dunblane massacre and Port Arthur bloodbath is the ruling elite's Modus Operandi.[141] The Deep State cabal first defines the problem as lack of public safety in an extremely dangerous, unpredictable world filled with hateful violent extremists and so called terrorists. So the natural reaction of course to this unsecured, ultra-perilous world-view is a constant steady stream of covert episodes of staged terror masked in acts of government sponsored democide delivered through mass gun violence, either falsely blaming Islamic terrorists (as cabal created proxy allies in its fake "war on terror") or more often the use of lone nut gunman extremists as CIA, Mossad and MI5 Big Pharma mind controlled patsies that always justify rolling out the preplanned Deep State solution, introducing yet more draconian laws usurping what's left of our individual rights, liberties and freedom, with ultimate aim in America to repeal the constitutional 2nd Amendment right for citizens to bear arms. Historically, a disarmed civilian population is democide or genocide on a grand scale waiting to happen. Again, this valuable history lesson is explicitly explored later in the chapter along with the cabal's latest violent episode in New Zealand.

As an independent journalist I've written extensively on this critical all-encompassing subject of the Hegelian Dialectic and my analysis utilizing this broader contextual lens to dissect the 2016 Orlando nightclub shooting featured as Chapter 6 in the Kevin Barrett edited book Orlando False Flag the Clash of Histories.[142] During the last quarter century, the international crime cabal has repeatedly deployed state sponsored school shootings (as well as mass killings in churches/mosques/synagogues, cinematic/concert theater venues, nightclubs, military installations and various other workplaces), but the favorite for obvious shock effect purposes exploits the spilled blood of sacrificed children (or at Sandy Hook lack of blood[143]), ultimately with the aim of criminalizing private ownership of guns worldwide. The 1996 Dunblane Massacre and Port Arthur as cabal first installments were executed as early entries ushering in the current age of New World Disorder. By dual-design, Dunblane also served to conveniently hide for the next 100 years yet another British VIP pedophilia scandal and cover-up at the planet's pedo-epicenter.

Until one realizes that from the very get-go, Freemason Judge Cullen's public inquiry objective was to whitewash as much of the government's dirty truth out as possible, it may seem initially striking that no new evidence about Thomas Hamilton's pathetic, sordid life emerged from his month and a half long inquiry, lasting from the end of May to near mid-July 1996 and interviewing a total of 171 cherry-picked witnesses.[144] That meant that 1,069 witnesses who gave written statements were never heard at the inquiry.[145] By carefully selective design, Cullen ensured the deeper, darker depravity of Hamilton's criminal connections to Britain's larger pedophilia network were completely exorcised out of the judge's sanitized, self-serving version of events. But as much as Cullen manipulated the proceedings, he realized his willfully deceptive efforts to cover-up the bigger picture still failed miserably, forcing his unprecedented decision "in defense of the realm" to place a century long blackout on all evidence. Yet despite Hamilton racking up a flood of warning signs, particularly during the final decade and a half of his life, the cabal continued shielding him from any real consequence that would've protected the most vulnerable within the community from their tragic end.

It's been reported that Hamilton was just another brainwashed patsy and that the actual child murderers at Dunblane were government employed MI5 operatives.[146] Especially taking into account the dozens of state sponsored false flag incidents perpetrated ever since 1996, complete with intelligence agents serving as standard handlers of psychotropic drugged, mind controlled, killing patsies, the British pedophile Establishment was no doubt in direct colluding cahoots with Thomas Hamilton in his showdown at the Dunblane not-OK school corral and savagely utilized the bloodbath to take the Manchurian madman out at the last second, calling it suicide and no one was deemed worse for wear for not knowing the actual truth, particularly the pedophile criminals in power.

The fact is all of us are worse off for not knowing what unforgivable sins and untold atrocities our own governments are routinely capable of committing, including the use of defenseless little children as their sacrificial lambs to conceal their worldwide pedophilia epidemic while disarming citizens of their right to protect and defend themselves from global police state tyranny leading to human genocide, or as they affectionately call it, depopulation. Think Prince Philip’s death wish as a reincarnated Killer Virus[147] or his son Prince “Transylvania-is-in-my-blood” Charles’ fixation on his favorite bloodline relative Vlad the Impaler[148] and you can begin to understand the ruling elite’s obsessive, bloodthirsty bloodline agenda to cull the human herd as illegit global underworld overlords.

Increasing complaints from parents in the 1990s forced the Central Scotland Police to have to repeatedly investigate Hamilton. By 1993 the police compiled enough evidence to arrest him on ten different charges but his “friends” in the gatekeeping legal profession, in this case Stirling’s procurator-fiscal James Cardle, decided as always “not enough evidence.” This incredible pattern just kept repeating itself almost on a yearly basis - with police probes in 1988, 1991, 1992 and 1993.[149] Less than two years before the Dunblane murders, Edinburgh Police caught the pedophile in the classic pervert pose with his pants pulled down “in a compromising position” in the presence of a likely underage victim, yet once again as always, no charges were ever brought.[150] Hamilton was clearly another protected pedo-cat permitted to freely live out his nine lives.

Convinced he was being unduly harassed by so many Central Scotland Police investigations fueled by paranoid rumors from Scouting officials and distraught parents, Hamilton incessantly wrote to his alleged primary CSP protectors, Deputy Chief Constable McMurdo especially, but Chief Constable Ian Oliver as well in hopes the top CSP brass would get their subordinates to back off, while also regularly sending cc'd copies to his local/national heavyweights MPs Forsyth and Robertson.[151] Towards the end, Hamilton was even venting his growing complaints and grievances in letters to Queen Elizabeth. As a man with powerful connections, copies of his angry letters are a matter of public record sent to Scotland newspapers not long before his death,[152] stopping just short of making explicit threats to blow the lid off the VIP pedophilia operation he was both centrally part of and privy to. Compliments of fellow Freemason Judge Cullen, perhaps Hamilton's correspondence containing overt sexual blackmail threats remain safely tucked away until 2096.

In 2003 British citizens were first learning that back in 1996 William Cullen had sneakily usurped the public's right to know by placing a century long D-notice on 106 large files of documents taking up 26 feet of shelf space in a room eight feet high. Though it was all privately made available to Cullen's so called "public" inquiry, which he only bothered to read a miniscule portion, it strictly remains off limits to the rest of us until 2096, exponentially increasing perception of a blatant cover-up. Thus, with mounting pressure on the UK Establishment to reveal the true reason for such extreme secrecy for concealment overkill, the all too lame, flimsy excuse offered by Judge Cullen pretending to protect abused Dunblane children's privacy rights just would not fly. So in October 2005, the cabal threw a few scraps of “evidence” to the common folk in hopes that it might placate the restless, agitated, pissed off masses.

Recently released files on January 1, 2019 under the 15-year rule indicate Scottish government ministers were in panic mode back in February 2003 to stem the rising tide of public perception driven by “conspiracy theories” that Cullen’s post-Dunblane massacre inquiry was a total scam.[153] Once the public caught wind of Cullen secretly and arbitrarily attaching the illegal 100-year non-disclosure rule, the government scrambled to appease the people’s growing demand for the truth without disclosing the actual lowdown behind the Dunblane tragedy. Hence, the plan was hatched to have Scotland’s senior law officer, the “good” Lord Advocate Colin Boyd see fit to feed the truth-starved British population a few already self-evident, inconsequential tidbits to take mounting heat off the criminal Establishment. But the plan failed in the face of such an extreme measure. The skeptical public knows far more than the elite would ever want or care to admit.

One of the revealed documents, a letter from Strathclyde Police to CSP Chief Constable William Wilson sent a week after the school massacre, disclosed that a local council authorized Hamilton to run a boys football club at its high school during the preceding summer of 1995. It went on to explain that a parent of one of the boys attending the summer club had shared with her that Hamilton had showed him a pistol and bullets, instructing him to keep it secret and on March 1st, 1996, a full dozen days prior to the tragedy, the parent passed this information on to the high school.[154] When the head teacher contacted the Strathclyde council’s education department, the teacher was told to contact a senior social worker. That social worker received the allegations in a letter a week ahead of the mass shooting, referring it to a colleague out on sick leave until March 11th, 48 hours in advance of D-Day, “but did not appear to digest the contents in full.”

The senior social worker also contacted a principal child care officer in Hamilton’s hometown of Stirling, who responded that they were aware of Hamilton, having “received similar complaints in their area,” but added “nothing has been substantiated.” Also on March 11th the head teacher contacted the senior social worker to express dissatisfaction with the slowness of such an urgent matter not being addressed yet. So it wasn’t until hours after news of the tragedy broke that any detailed investigation into Hamilton’s latest gun improprieties began.[155] Hours after the children died, social workers finally met with the boy and a second attendee at Hamilton’s 1995 club, both alluding to the wacko showing them his gun and “approximately 10 bullets” from the back of his van in the high school parking lot. The letter also mentioned one of the boys reported that on an earlier occasion Hamilton had shown him a hunting magazine displaying hunters shooting deer along with more guns and ammo.

None of this is earth shaking news, given Hamilton’s known gun fixation since his first issued firearm certificate in 1977, the same year he became a Freemason. By “gifting” the public this added piece of information, willing to “break” Lord Cullen’s overly strict 100-year ban, was supposed to demonstrate that the government was responsive to meeting the needs of the people’s right to know… what a joke.

By releasing only cherry-picked, highly detailed accounts to the public, Lord Colin Boyd showed how the inefficient bureaucratic social services missed out on its opportunity to stop the killer in time, as if dishing a little blame on to that particular public service department might diffuse some of the citizens’ wrath directed against the “incompetent” police and contemptible government for their utter failings.

The Cullen Inquiry clearly went out of its way to target law enforcement as the public scapegoat rather than Cullen's own, far more culpable, masonic pedo-filled judiciary. Judge Cullen would not touch the legal profession's criminality in the Procurator Fiscal and Crown Office consistently refusing to press charges on countless occasions.[156]

Carefully selecting only material providing a minutiae of detail serving to spread the blame was intended to dissipate the growing public anger and frustration convinced that the government had lied and cheated the people out of knowing what really happened at Dunblane. The 100-year ban on information was an assault on British citizens' intelligence. But sleight-of-hand focus on gun control immediately after the tragedy perfectly and manipulatively suited the cabal's purpose far more than releasing documents that might inform and educate citizens into realizing their government would sooner oft a bunch of kids rather than reveal its leaders are child fucking murderers.[157]

Still another document written two years after Detective Paul Hughes' 1991 damaging yet ignored report explicitly recommending that Hamilton neither be permitted to work with kids nor allowed to own a gun license, an unnamed police officer from the same CSP child protection unit in 1993 wrote to a senior colleague:

Mr Hamilton has undoubtedly sailed very close to the wind for many years as regards the inappropriateness of his methods of alleged tuition of very young, immature and unsuspecting boys of primary school age. However... in view of the evidence available to date Hamilton may have committed offences of lewd, indecent and libidinous practices and behaviour...[158]

Ya think? Time and time again incidents would occur alerting police all over Scotland into knowing that Thomas Hamilton was sexually abusing underage boys. But allegedly due to masonic higher-ups, nothing ever came of it. Other released records in the 2005 token to loosen the 100-year ban demonstrate that by 1996, Thomas Hamilton was 8,000 pounds in debt, living off his credit cards and chronically unemployed with his clubs drying up from lack of parents willing to entrust their boys under his dangerous supervision and criminal care.[159]

But back in Hamilton's more affluent days in the 1980s, steadily supplying child porn and boys to VIP pedophiles for financial profit, some of his clubs were attracting as many as 70-80 attendees per event.[160] Aside from his illegally shielded illicit yet financially lucrative activities, he was buying and selling lots of his favorite expensive items, trading in the latest state-of-the art photographic and video equipment as well as buying more than selling a large volume of guns to proudly augment his growing collection. At one point he boasted that he spent 10,000 pounds on camera equipment while collecting unemployment checks from 1983 to 1993.[161]

Then lest we not forget Hamilton's consecutive acquisition of three boats beginning with a speedboat called Lady Sheila, then a 26-foot cruiser and finally a 40-foot luxury cabin cruiser called Tropical Winter, bought for only 5000 pounds, compliments of Central Scotland Police.[162] It's believed that the derelict was given the boats by his masonic friends in exchange for furnishing boy victims for VIPs at remote Loch Lomond campsites.

While Hamilton's longtime pedo-operation flourished for years in Scotland, the 2005 release of his financial records was clearly designed to convince UK citizens that his increasing loss of income and mounting debts drove the madman to his breaking point, where in a state of demented rage, he snapped and shot 32 people before allegedly turning a revolver on himself that was not used to kill anyone else… again more disinformation to obscure the truth. So the pedo-Establishment continues withholding the truth of its criminal operation in the 100 still sealed documents until 2096, cherry-picking only a few selected files for public release intended to further obscure the dirty truth while at the same time pretending to be responsive to the people's pressing right to know. To save themselves, the deceitful cabal's hypocrisy and hubris knows no bounds.

Between police and child protection services, tons of scary red alarms were begging to be noticed and finally acted on to protect kids… like this warning sign also made public in 2005 from the Children's Reporter to Fife Regional Council and Fife Constabulary written in June 1992 :

If the kind of circumstances as described are allowed to continue without some kind of intervention, I consider that other children may be placed at risk [like at Dunblane Primary School]. In like situations arising unchecked, I fear that a tragedy to a child or children is almost waiting to happen .[163]

The dire warning above emerged after police in Dunblane had found two forlorn 9-year old boys and a 10-year old helplessly sitting on the curb in the middle of the night dressed only in their pajamas after frantically running away from another one of Hamilton's concentration camps, this time held on the Dunblane High School grounds, complaining of being:

Fed up with the routine of cold showers, terrible food and the general atmosphere .[164]

… And probably molestation as well.

Several months prior to Lord Advocate Colin Boyd publicly releasing the above documents, building more pressure for disclosure was the Mail on Sunday's informative article featuring former Stirling paramedic and Dunblane Unburied author-activist Sandra Uttley asserting that:

> Police were involved in a paedophile ring that covered up abuse allegations against the man responsible for the Dunblane school massacre.[165]

For that reason alone, Judge Cullen appointed the same accomplice, the Central Scotland Police, to head the Dunblane Massacre investigation. It’s a lot easier to pull off a foolproof cover-up when you have murder and pedophilia accomplices in charge of both the law enforcement investigation as well as the public inquiry, as both CSP and Cullen allegedly were. Moreover, Sandra Uttley also maintains that:

> There are glaring anomalies in the inquiry - inconsistencies in witness testimony, incorrect information given on oath and the absence of vital witnesses.[166]

All the years that boys aged 7-11 complained to their parents who in turn complained to the authorities about Hamilton’s mistreatment of their children in his clubs and camps, regularly withholding food and having them go chronically hungry, singling out and isolating certain boys for cruel and unusual punishment, forcing boys into hard labor or rigorous exercise regimens beyond their age capacity, requiring them always to be half-naked regardless of weather conditions, wearing ill-fitted scanty shorts, and without parents’ permission or knowledge, constantly taking intrusive photos and videos with special emphasis on their bodies from the waist down. Hamilton’s countless incidents of sadistically shaming, terrorizing and denigrating young boys, as in the style of a military prison boot camp, and getting off on his dictatorial, authoritarian control over them, his constantly playing favorites, his habitual negligence and incapacity to properly supervise to meet basic needs, gross delinquency in keeping them safe, and far too often unlawfully without any other supervising adults, his psychopathic lack of empathy, these grave and persistent warning signs were ignored for two decades by the pedo-gatekeepers as not convincing enough evidence to prosecute.

For over two decades these overt signs of multiple forms of abuse were a given constant everywhere the pedophile went. But most of all ignored were the more than occasional episodes where Thomas Hamilton clearly trespassed criminal boundaries, both physically and sexually assaulting his child victims. Yet just as serial predators Jimmy Savile and Cyril Smith were protected by law enforcement and the Crown Office despite numerous police investigations, Hamilton too was shielded from consequence in at least a half dozen police probes. But the ultimate common denominator between all three of these dangerous predatory derelicts is the bottom line, they were all protected because they were procuring victims for the same UK pedophile Establishment.

Placating the public with a few scraps of innocuous information was simply more public misdirection to appease, distort and obscure the real truth contained in at least one hundred documents still concealed for a century that would definitely prove the British government's blatant criminality. After the parade of never-ending VIP pedophilia scandals and all the thinly veiled cover-ups previously at Elm Guest House, Dolphin Square, Islington, Lambeth, Northern Ireland's Kincora Boys' Home, Northern Wales' Bryn Estyn Children's Home and Jersey Island's Haut de la Garenne (among dozens of lesser known others), and then the Dunblane bloodbath with its conspicuous 100-year rule, releasing but a few minor documents but continuing to withhold a hundred more till the end of this century can hardly change the bigger reality and accurate public perception that powerful criminals atop the UK government are still getting away with murder and child sodomy to this very day. The in-our-face lone gunman wacko as the standard boldface lie and release of several trivial papers cannot wash away or hide the mountains of evidence that Britain’s grotesque truth is that an alarming percentage of its very leaders are a bunch of murdering kiddie fuckers.

Lord Boyd’s documents going public in October 2005 was a mere empty gesture to diffuse the populace’s growing anger toward the alleged murder accomplice Freemason judge that imposed the 100-year rule on the real truth to save himself and fellow masonic VIP legal and political friends… like Lord Robertson who had just resigned the year before as NATO Secretary General to quickly disappear from public life altogether.[167] But more on Lord George in just a bit.

Lord Boyd no doubt figured throwing the public a few insignificant bones essentially depicting nothing much new might assuage the legions of doubters who years earlier have already concluded the century long blackout on the truth was intended to protect the VIP masonic pedophile ring with whom Hamilton supplied victims and child pornography, and that for decades he’d been granted both a free pass and renewed gun license for that very reason alone. And to this very day that cold hard reality, combined with denial of all the other blatant UK pedophilia scandals, continues to inflate the king-sized elephant that’s ready to explode in the world’s pedo-epicenter room.

Incidentally as an aside, Wimbledon tennis champion Andy Murray was an 8-year old student at Dunblane Primary School when the shooting occurred.[168] He knew Hamilton, attended one of his sports clubs and recalled him sitting next to his mother in their car. Andy and his 10-year old brother Jamie were reportedly heading for the gym when tragedy was still taking place but hid under a desk in the headmaster’s study. Like so many Dunblane residents, Andy rarely has spoken publicly about the trauma that for years he blocked out of his mind and even when interviewed in recently after writing his autobiography, he was overcome with emotional grief. Knowing he could easily have been murdered and knowing friends who lost younger siblings has powerfully affected him his entire life. Most of the townspeople cannot mention the killers' name, much less think and talk about their tragic past, as understandably, they've chosen to move on for the sake of survival rather than dwell on the cover-up and lies. But for the sake of justice for all who have suffered and perished, the truth must be exposed.

Rather than dig into the dark ugly reality, the Cullen agenda focused on harnessing, mobilizing and exploiting Dunblane parents' overwhelming grief, encouraging them to spearhead an unstoppable national drive called the Snowdrop campaign, garnering within six weeks a whopping 750,000 signatures on a petition demanding the world's strictest gun control.[169] In November 1996 on the eve of the vote, injured gym teacher Eileen Harrild and Dunblane families who'd lost children were brought into the House of Commons to plead Parliament to ban all private ownership of guns. The teacher's emotionally convincing words:

Look in the eyes of the parents whose children will never come home and tell them their sorrow doesn't merit a total ban on guns.[170]

Piggybacked by Australia's record mass shooting at Port Arthur just four days after the UK petition was ceremoniously delivered to Parliament, people all over the world were caught up in shock and grief, demanding a ban on all firearms in both Britain and Australia,[171] ultimately aimed at weapons confiscation across Commonwealth nations and beyond. By 1996's holiday season, a singer-songwriter who'd gotten permission from Bob Dylan to rewrite his "Knocking on Heaven's Door" with gun control lyrics instantly soared to #1 in the UK, complete with the deceased Dunblane children's siblings as backup choral singers, co-timed perfectly for the passing of the world's strictest gun law passed in early January 1997. Handguns in both Britain and Australia were banned. The Blair's Labor Party government came into office in the spring to add the .22 caliber handgun to the list, making it a complete ban of all handguns as well as semiautomatic weapons. Even Olympic shooters from the UK must train abroad in places like Switzerland in order to practice using the tool of their sport.[172]

From the start, gun confiscation rollout in the UK and Australia smacked of elite preplanning with co-timed precipitating trigger events of history-making mass casualties in Dunblane and Port Arthur immediately followed by a near million petition signatures. The cabal took full advantage of the global shock and awe from the grief-stricken damage done to nations by guns in the wrong hands – or more accurately guns they ensured remained in the hands of their government controlled patsies. It’s never been that guns themselves are the problem, it’s the demonic crime cabal regularly coordinating and killing innocent people through state sponsored tragedies that we citizens of the world must finally recognize and begin holding the powerful treasonous murderers accountable.

The two government engineered 1996 mass shootings in UK and Australia resulted in massive handgun and semiautomatic firearm bans, and gun confiscation through pressured voluntary turn-ins at enormous government costs. Lawful gun owners who chose to keep their banned weapons for self-defense suddenly became criminals with the passage of the strictest gun laws on earth. Moreover, passage of firearm bans have only caused gun crime in both countries to soar ever since. Within two years of Dunblane, UK handgun crime spiked 40%,[173] robberies skyrocketed 81% and violent assaults 53%,[174] turning Britain into the undisputed violent crime capital of Europe.[175] And in the years since from 1998 to 2003, handgun crime in Britain has only gone from bad to worse, jumping to an incredible 105% increase.[176]

With bans on legal gun ownership never working, it's the illegal gun flow that international law enforcement needs to interdict and confiscate, including governments' illegal arms sales. Statistics in Australia are just as abysmally alarming. From a November 2015 article in Australia's The New Daily:

> Australians may be more at risk from gun crime than ever before with the country's underground market for firearms ballooning in the past decade.[177]

Bottom line by sinister design, when nations take guns away from their lawful owners, both the petty criminals and cabal criminals end up the sole beneficiaries - from the booming black market that emerges to increased gun violence perpetrated against a disarmed citizenry, national populations suffer the consequence of living in the cabal-made ever dangerous world. This empirically proven fact deceitfully exploited by the global criminal elite is behind the continual flood of state sponsored mass shootings, with the latest cabal installment in New Zealand covered more extensively later in this chapter. The truth is Thomas Hamilton was no more than a controlled patsy used for the purpose of draconian gun control once he was used up as supplier of children and child pornography to the VIP pedo-elite.[178]

It's no accident that gun bans and weapon confiscations result in only killing more innocent people that endangers us all. The international crime cabal is well aware of this sobering fact, that's why it continues its war against humanity with nonstop government sponsored terrorism. Absolute tyranny and control through one world governance over a depopulated global masses that are the most violated and spied on in human history is the ruling elite's nearly achieved objective. A simple choice stands before us all, either we the people of this world wake up now to stop the coming genocidal slaughter, or billons of us will perish as the earth's sixth mass life extinction and first caused by humans approaches the point of no return.[179]

A huge rabbit hole never probed at all in the Hamilton murder mystery-Dunblane Massacre story is Thomas Hamilton's connection to another Dunblane school – Queen Victoria School, a full scholarship education for sons of career enlisted soldiers since 1908.[180] As birds of a feather working the same henhouse together, Hamilton was very close friends with Queen Victoria School's senior housemaster and fellow Freemason Ben Philip.[181] Similar to how Jimmy Savile was granted free access to vulnerable children, the former whistleblowing QVS housemaster Glenn Harrison went public claiming that he actually caught derelict Hamilton roaming through his boys' dormitory at night in search of his next prey.[182]

Hamilton also enjoyed unlimited access to both the QVS indoor and outdoor firing ranges, as the federally regulated military school became his pedo-playground to indulge in his favorite obsessions for both boys and shooting firearms. He was once caught watching naked young cadets in the school's shower facility,[183] and on another occasion "interfering" with a child at the indoor range. Hamilton was such a Big Man on QVS Campus that he was able to freely come and go even with his weapons at will day or night, and have the BMOC clout to secure a job for a friend to teach at the school. He knew everyone at the school and would often visit teachers and staff at their homes 24/7. This is not the lone wolf misfit portrayed by read-from-the-same-script mainstream media.

Other frequent visitors who were Friends of QVS and also commissioners at the military school included Lord Cullen and Lord Robertson, two very powerful Freemasons allegedly linked to both Hamilton's pedo-ring scandal and its subsequent cover-up.[184] Housemaster Glenn Harrison also stated that Hamilton maintained a very close relationship with a top cop who protected him,[185] ultra-friendly CSP Deputy Chief Constable Douglas McMurdo. That a man known to three police forces – Central Scotland Police, Lothian & Borders police and Strathclyde police - for his “unsavory character” that on multiple occasions posed a clear threat to the safety of both women and children would be permitted free access, even bringing guns and bullets to the federal boarding school, is beyond belief. Definitely no accident, it only makes sense if Hamilton’s masonic connections with prominent VIPs in government, high courts, law enforcement and the military granted him the same Jimmy Savile-like impunity due to Hamilton supplying boy victims and child porn for the elite.

Also there were three independent witnesses at Cullen’s public inquiry that provided in-person testimony directly connecting Thomas Hamilton to the Queen Victoria School.[186] Yet all the solicitors at the inquiry and Judge Cullen alike chose to consciously sidestep and completely ignore Hamilton’s QVS links, never bothering to follow up with any probing questions, much less contact former housemaster Glenn Harrison with all his firsthand accounts reporting Hamilton and his Friends of QVS VIP child sex ring. Witness testimony included the fact that Hamilton organized both sports clubs at QVS and camping trips to Loch Lomond with young cadets as well.[187]

Campaigners for Dunblane justice maintain that the Cullen whitewash avoided links to some of the biggest names in the Scottish judiciary, among them Lord Cullen himself. Yet these conspicuously overt omissions reinforced by accomplice Cullen’s century long blanket sealing all records constitutes blatant cover-up criminality. Cullen scapegoated the police when in fact the real culprit were attorneys and judges that pretended Hamilton was not a pedophile pimp supplying victims to VIPs like judges, politicians and top cops. Hamilton’s child sex ring predatorily fed off little boys at Queen Victoria School.

Because Thomas Hamilton remains at the heart of the Dunblane pedophilia scandal, concealment of evidence of both his VIP child sex abuse ring and the alleged government’s murder of Hamilton at Dunblane Primary School to guarantee his silence was absolutely essential to avoid the collapse of the British Establishment Empire. And the added king-size bonus of simultaneously disarming lawful gun owners across the United Kingdom as well as Australia is a historical coup d'état of gargantuan proportions for the international crime cabal. Justice for all those murdered innocent children and their teacher as well as all the sexually abused victims demands full exposure and full legal consequences for all the so far unpunished, untouched criminals.

Posing as “Friends of Queen Victoria School,” VIPs were regularly showing up in limos to take boys away for the weekend as “a treat” (familiar code word for pedo-abuse).[188] Per ex-housemaster Glenn Harrison, among the celebrity politicians frequently visiting Queen Victoria School was none other than Dunblane resident Lord George Robertson.[189] With QVS Friends like Thomas Hamilton and George Robertson, who needs enemies? In addition to the usual suspects - powerful politicians, judges and senior police, not surprisingly Glenn Harrison said “Friends of QVS” also included a “who’s who of the Scottish TV news” from the late 1980s and early 1990s.[190] Glenn Harrison summed up who he believed was behind the QVS pedophile ring linked to Thomas Hamilton, and with royalty and these top power players at the helm, its cover-up as well:

I am convinced it was a Masonic conspiracy, Ministry of Defense, Her Majesty’s Schools Inspectorate and Her Majesty’s Commissioners, military top brass and others. The > matter was a cover-up to protect people in high office in Government.[191]

And to grasp how engrained the masonic code of loyalty in each secret society member's head is, author of the 1989 bestseller Inside the Brotherhood Martin Short wrote:

> The Freemasons of Britain are strongly protective of their own fellow Masons. They rarely punish brethren who break the criminal law of the land.[192]

The above statement goes far in explaining why Thomas Hamilton never spent even a single day in jail.

Meanwhile between 1989 and 1992, Glenn Harrison observed the ravages of this masonic pedophile ring in the young faces of boys returning from their weekend jaunts, highly agitated, displaying visible signs of stress and trauma from sexual abuse. Glenn stated that victims would return to school "distressed but flush with cash."[193] The ex-housemaster stated that one boy had been so savagely attacked and sodomized at one overnight orgy that he later attempted suicide.[194]

In 1991 the concerned housemaster signaled the alarm, writing to boys' parents warning that their children were at grave risk of harm.[195] When he reported his observations to Central Scotland Police, he was told that QVS as a federal school was not within its jurisdiction per the Official Secrets Act. At great risk to himself, Glenn even helped a father secretly rescue his abused son. In the caregiving role as the housemaster chiefly responsible for his children's safety and well-being, Glenn was not even given the boys' contact addresses on weekends. Despite pedophilic vultures being anything but friends to the young QVS students, VIPs always got their way. Impotent to protect his increasingly disturbed charges, Glenn confessed:

> I became disturbed, too, by screams in the dorm at night, empty beds, rituals in dark places and used, warm, filled condoms hurriedly abandoned. There was fear throughout every age group and the teachers knew about it.[196]

Corroborating Glenn's horrific allegations of rampant, even ritual sex abuse, in 2017 a man in his 50s publicly emerged to speak of his repeated sexual assaults while a QVS young cadet back in the 1970s at the hands of his housemaster.[197] And that was more than a decade prior to the horror going on in the late 1980s and early 90s when Glenn Harrison worked at Queen Victoria School. Sex abuse at the school went on for many decades, a tradition at boys' boarding schools, especially where keeping secrets was the cultural and historic norm and unfortunately part of what's required of being a strong, "survival of the fittest" male. That's why rampant physical and sexual abuse by the older boys perpetrated on younger boys only compounded the pervasive infestation.

As a graduate of the US Military Academy, I witnessed the inhumane brainwashing process masquerading as military discipline and how keeping secrets was part of the military brotherhood-in- arms culture.[198] Three years after I left West Point, women became cadets and as a journalist I have written extensively on the epidemic of sexual assault in both US armed forces[199] as well as at the prestigious service academies, and the shameful culture of rape therein still practiced.[200] Shades of the Long Grey Line exist at Queen Victoria School.

A number of former QVS students have also come forward in recent years with allegations. In 2015 they were referred to the Scotland government child abuse inquiry. Less than two years later the chair Susan O'Brien, QC and her two senior panel members all resigned after alleged government interference.[201] Again, criticism that abuse survivors have been placed on the backburner prevails.[202] With Judge Anne Smith the second chair, it appears to be floundering on a parallel course with the IICSA, making zero impact failing to bring any VIP criminals to justice.[203] Incidentally, an attorney for Scotland's Child Abuse Inquiry is none other than Lord Cullen's daughter, Felicity Cullen… like father, like daughter from one whitewash to another.[204] Additionally, as recently as March 2005, Queen Victoria School continues to be plagued by nonstop child abuse scandals with four teachers suspended for sexually assaulting underage students.[205]

From 1989 to 1992 Housemaster Glenn Harrison felt compelled to document everything he was witnessing. Drawing no response from legal authorities, Harrison also contacted local social services, the National Society for Protection against Cruelty to Children (NSPCC), and the Scotland Office.[206] Inspectors found evidence of bullying but regarding sexual abuse, they believed Glenn was exaggerating, reinforcing the common perception that NSPCC, like Dame Esther's ChildLine, better serve VIP pedophiles than sexually abused children. In his letters to parents, Glenn Harrison urged them to contact – of all places – Esther the gatekeeper's ChildLine. It seems that every major institution set up to protect UK children was/is in actuality protecting the enemy of children. Glenn was feeling so helplessly disgusted by the “suffering of young boys” and both his and their “unheard voices,” in protest at a formal QVS dinner, he and his wife refused to sit next to the special royal guest patron Prince Andrew, a few years later himself outed for his pedo-trysts with an underage teenage sex slave supplied by Mossad sponsored Jeffrey Epstein’s pedo-operation (see Chapter14).[207]

Ultimately the Central Scotland Police responded to the housemaster’s persistent complaints by breaking into his home without warrant and stealing all his papers and evidential documentation, removing the incriminating proof he’d singlehandedly been gathering against the rampant VIP abuse,[208] similar to the raid on child abuse campaigner Mary Moss’ residence covered in the Elm Guest House last chapter. Glenn commented:

Why would there be such a panic to get me out of the school when I was to leave officially three days later after working six months’ notice? Why break down the door of my home when there was a spare key in the porter’s lodge hardly 100 metres away? The confidential files were very important because they contained a whole 20 months’ record of letters and complaints to the school management, social services and child protection agencies and more than all else daily records of complaints of boys, incidents, dates and times which led me to have deep suspicions that boys were being abused emotionally, physically and sexually, not just while I was there but decades before.[209]

Again, police were determined to protect the famous rapists in their overly familiar role of child abuse cover-uppers. While illegally invading his home, detectives then escorted Glenn off the school premises to the police station, with Edinburgh detectives interrogating him for an hour as if he were the criminal. Where have we seen this all-too-familiar scene before?

Since Harrison was making a big stink over the nasty stench of child abuse in conjunction with his growing police harassment, it led to his QVS resignation. For the safety of his family, Glenn was forced to relocate to the Shetland Islands in northern Scotland where he taught school for many years as one of the first chartered Scottish teachers.[210] Since MP Michael Forsyth had only been part of the problem as minimally a pedo-ring enabler, Glenn immediately contacted his new Shetland MP who agreed to take the matter up in the House of Commons. The Hansard records show that in 1993 his inquiry drew a written response from the then QVS headmaster Julian Hankinson, stating:

> [Police] concluded there was no cause for further action on their part.[211]

And because the police and UK Establishment refused to investigate the pervasive pedophilic crimes, three years later the bloody attack at Dunblane Primary School saw its gym class peppered with 100 flying bullets shooting every class member and teacher but one. An understandably shaken and upset Glenn Harrison wrote to the Shetland Times:

> I believe that, had my allegations in 1991 been properly investigated, there is a strong possibility that Hamilton would have been discovered.[212]

With decades of protection from fellow Freemason pedophiles high up in law enforcement, the courts, politics and security services working on Hamilton’s behalf, sadly it wouldn’t have made any difference. Glenn Harrison did everything in his unfortunate limited power to stop the abuse and subsequent tragedy and should be lauded a hero for his noble efforts and sacrifice.

After the Dunblane massacre, justice campaigner Tom Minogue also took up the gauntlet on Glenn's behalf, inquiring with Scottish parliamentary members, commissioners, law enforcement, judges and Scotland social services in efforts to solicit interest in an actual thorough investigation for the first time into the unchecked pedophilia crimes associated with Hamilton, QVS and the Scottish Establishment.[213] But again, not one official or public servant entrusted with protecting children and investigating crimes had the courage and integrity to take up the cause. Some of Tom Minogue's inquiries drew hostile, aggressive responses, but most were simply ignored. NATO head George Robertson even went so far as to contact Central Scotland's Chief Constable in an overt attempt to get Tom Minogue investigated. With high up there Lord George perhaps having the most to hide, his angry retaliation comes as no surprise. No one wants to touch an actual inquiry into cabal child sexual abuse crimes because they'd risk losing their careers or perhaps even worse. Murdered Princess Diana and Jill Dando come to mind.

Then in February 2016 it was announced that Scotland Police had launched a probe into historic child sex abuse allegations across Scotland, involving not just Queen Victoria School as a belated follow-up to Glenn Harrison's claims, but also 44 other institutions including a total of 110 suspects, 37 of them "persons of prominence."[214] And as so often happens, just like the Scottish government CSA inquiry, nothing ever came out of ether investigation, which only goes to show that Freemasonry and pedophilia still rule over Britain. Again, the United Kingdom is terminally infested with rotting moral disease and as such, is too far gone to ever honestly deal with unveiling its out-of-control sodomy problem.

More than just royal namesake, the Queen Victoria School is also linked to royalty through its chief patron of the board of directors - the now 66 year Freemason Duke of Edinburgh and honorary Speculative Society member… lots of powerful foxes guarding this QVS henhouse.[215] Another QVS board of director member and Freemason via the Spec Society and, as the second most senior judge in Scotland, the Lord Clerk Donald MacArthur Ross was Lord Cullen's boss during his infamous Dunblane inquiry. Through Thomas Hamilton's intimate association with the Friends of QVS, boasting other heavies like his buddies Scotland Secretary of State Michael Forsyth, Lord Robertson and Lord Cullen also all on its board of directors, Tommie boy's surprisingly wide circle of masonic friends (for a purported "loner") included numerous QVS Friends with Benefits (FWB). Despite his unshakeable Mr. Creepy reputation and image eventually decimating his boys club business in Central Scotland, regardless of the mounting incriminating evidence, his almighty Friends with Benefits were always there to secretly bail his sorry ass out. These masonic friends ensured that he never spent one day in prison for all his pedophilic crimes nor went for even one moment without the comfort of his cold hard steel - his prized possessions, his six guns permitted by legal certification [and of course his masonic FWBs].

Longtime Dunblane resident and MP for Hamilton (1978-1997), both the Scottish district and the man, George Robertson was steeped in controversy for his shady part in Hamilton's VIP pedophile ring. But that never stopped politicians from reaching the highest levels of office, as we learned from previous scandals and chapters, being easily blackmailed in fact makes them ideal puppets for promotion since they can always be counted on to do what they're told. So in 1997 when the John Major Tory government gave way to the victorious Tony Blair's New Labor government, the Mossad-CIA-MI5 had the pedo-goods on both the outgoing fully compromised pedophile Tory defense minister Michael Portillo (as covered previously) as well as the incoming, equally compromised (after the Dunblane Massacre) Laborite George Robertson. At the same time the NWO cabal fixture became UK Defense Minister in May 1997, he was also invited to a lifetime membership within the Queen’s Privy Council.[216]

In the late 1990s, the Anglo-American-Zionist Empire was waging ethnic cleansing NATO wars balkanizing Yugoslavia into a half dozen imperialistic puppet states,[217] while opening up Empire’s opium, illegal arms, human organ and child trafficking trade routes[218] at the same time sowing seeds of major expansionist Anglo-American-Zionist wars in the Middle East.[219] Thus, cherry-picking perverted, controllable, order following puppets to occupy key offices like UK defense minister is of highest priority to the international crime cabal, ambitiously bent on perpetual state of global war and destabilization.[220] And since our man Lord George has plenty of skeletons in his pedo-closet, blood deep in his own Dunblane backyard, what better tool to put in charge of Britain’s national security?

Having procured young boys for Scotland’s elite, Thomas Hamilton shared mutual masonic ties with George Robertson as well as Dunblane’s elite boarding school for military offspring run by the Defense Ministry.[221] In the massacre aftermath, Defense Minister Robertson would be certain to keep an extra tight lid concealing the truth, armed with the century long gag order suppressing both Scotland’s biggest sex scandal and UK’s biggest mass shooting.

A year after Hamilton’s death, as of May 1997 longtime Dunblane resident and fellow Freemason George Robertson was planted as the new prime minister’s Defense Secretary until 1999, when he was then elevated to the even more rarefied air of a supreme puppet - NATO Secretary General.[222] With his Freemason pedo-track record in the UK, Lord Robertson was the ideal candidate to head NATO from 1999 up to 2004 (headquartered in the Dutroux’s pedo-stomping grounds of Brussels[223]). CIA, MI5[224] and NATO are prime partners in international heroin trafficking.[225] And where drug trafficking flourishes, so does child sex trafficking… a perfect globalist fit.[226]

With the bogus “war on terror” raging in both Iraq and Afghanistan, working closely with the likes of war criminals Blair, Cheney and Bush Jr,[227] overnight the opium harvests proliferated once US, UK and NATO forces were entrenched in the world’s largest opium producer, soon enough safeguarding record harvests out of the Afghan “empire graveyard” supplying heroin to Europe, North America and the world.[228] In stark contrast, prior to the Zionist neocons’ war of terror, under the Taliban rule, Afghan opium fields were outlawed and virtually destroyed.[229]

By Lord Robertson’s final two years with NATO, the FBI had released the names of British VIP pedophiles downloading child porn in Operation Ore to the Sunday Times. Lord Mandelson and Lord Robertson were on that list but Blair desperately slapped on D-notices, prohibiting it from going public in the press.[230]

Author Greg Hallett was making reference to Lord Robertson as the cabal’s choice to lead NATO:

Heroin traffic is now controlled by NATO… the Secretary General is now chosen for his controllability and compromise - hence their roles in Parliamentary Paedophile Rings, cross-dressing, cocaine addiction, heroin trafficking to the Western World, and ongoing wars wherever there is either heroin, or oil.[231]

In February 2003 on the message board of Scotland’s largest independent newspaper The Herald, anonymous entries implicated Lord George Robertson interceding on Thomas Hamilton’s behalf to ensure the mentally unstable fellow mason’s gun license was renewed after its apparent initial rejection.[232] The brotherhood secrets appeared to be unraveling, exposing both Lord Robertson and Lord Cullen's masonic links protecting Hamilton as Scotland's VIP pedo-ring procurer and child pornographer. At the pinnacle of Robertson's highflying career in 2003-04, a heavy cloud of suspicion and rumors hung over Lord Robertson during the second half of his four year two month run as NATO boss, prompting his resignation and vanishing from public life by early 2004.

But the still sitting NATO honcho sued the Sunday Herald for libel even if the allegations may have been true because the cabal [in]justice system will always protect its VIPs. Lord Robertson was an alleged murder accomplice for reputedly using his political influence to write a character reference to pull strings to allow the alleged mass murderer Thomas Hamilton to acquire his firearms license. Under libel threat, Robertson finagled The Herald to cough up a £25,000 gift wrapped apology.[233] Out for blood, thin-skinned Robertson sued again for another £25,000 because he didn't like The Herald's coverage of his court victory, absurdly claiming it blamed him for the Dunblane massacre, but this time the court ruled in the newspaper's favor.[234] Robertson's solicitor argued that The Herald made the Lord out to be:

An irrational bullying individual who raised spurious proceedings.

It wasn't anything The Herald said that made Robertson appear "an irrational bullying individual," it was his spurious, vindictive second lawsuit that confirmed George Robertson to be an "irrational bullying individual." Be careful what you object to George.

Through the CIA/FBI intelligence, the US reportedly pressured the tenth NATO secretary general into early retirement at age 58.[235] As a sexual blackmail liability vulnerable to hostile anti-Western foreign powers, the Baron

Robertson of Port Ellen found himself put out to greener pastures. But a month before his NATO resignation as a consolation prize for having to step down, in November 2003 President George W. Bush bestowed the US Presidential Medal of Freedom. And as a thoroughly compromised and controlled inner club cabal player, the queen lavished the highest honors on Lord George, in 2004 the Knight Grand Cross of the Order of St Michael and St George followed a year later by the Knights of the Thistle, equivalent to the Order of the Garter. Interesting that the queen would award this top honor to the two biggest Dunblane scandal suppressors - Freemasons Lord Robertson and Lord Cullen.

The two pedophilia scandals that had come home to roost, the Dunblane Massacre with Robertson's masonic association with child murderer-pedophile Hamilton in spite of the 100-year sealed off record, along with his link to Operation Ore's child porn scandal despite Blair's D-notice blackout, both tarnished if not destroyed Robertson's reputation and continued life in the public limelight.[236] Though in 2003 Robertson told the press he was pressured by several governments to stay on for a fifth year as NATO leader, observers reportedly were "surprised" over his departure at the end of December 2003.[237] In 2002 as NATO boss, the still rising NWO star was a Bilderberger attendee in addition to being joint president of Chatham House - the Royal Institute for International Affairs for a decade (2001-2011), UK's counterpart to the US Council on Foreign Relations.[238] As a UK member of the super-elite Pilgrim Society,[239] a featured Cohen Group senior counselor[240] and an A-list globalist, the 73-year old Baron Robertson has been given keys to the kingdom to rape, pillage and plunder our planet and everything on it till kingdom come.[241]

His post-NATO, behind-the-scenes New World Order work also continues as a member of the powerful Queen’s Privy Council, helping to covertly set up the unelected European Council on Foreign Relations in 2007, of which he’s also a member, laying the groundwork for Brexit to mark the death of Britain’s democracy and birth of UK’s total fascist state run by the 650 queen appointed privy council.[242]

A solid pattern has been well-established, promoting compromised, Zionist pledged secret masons as popular NWO choices for such key puppet cabal roles as president and prime minister, along with all their critical cabinet positions like foreign and defense secretaries and Home Office ministers. Virtually all these posts in the last half century have been filled by pedophiles or pedo-enablers. Hence, both child sex slavery trafficking and the global pedophilia network have now reached a historic, pandemic scale.[243]

At the same time that Robertson was linked to Hamilton in 2003, the public was just finding out about Cullen’s 100-year lockdown concealing all the Dunblane evidence and their perverted business with underage boys while masonic lords and princes sat atop the Queen Victoria School board of directors.[244] By virtue of his position as Scotland Secretary of State, MP from Hamilton’s hometown of Stirling Michael Forsyth was also a QVS board of director member, as well as Forsyth’s appointee to run the sham of a “public” inquiry Lord Cullen himself.[245] Again, stacking the deck to rig any chance of justice is the name of the cabal’s diabolical game. But the despicable evidence was still slowly emerging.

Greg Hallett, author of the book The Sex Collectors, has accused Lord Cullen of being an accomplice to the Dunblane murders:

> Lord Cullen - who had physically walked Thomas Hamilton to the massacre, and therefore an accomplice to the mass murder, and most likely his Manchurian Candidate controller - was then made the judge who conducted the inquiry into the Dunblane Massacre.[246]

Investigative journalist Mike James added:

> The Judge who conducted the inquiry into the atrocity, during which two teachers claimed to have seen another mysterious man "guiding" Hamilton onto the premises, was Lord Cullen. Cullen, also a member of the Freemasonic Speculative Society and an associate of Labour "Scottish Mafia" figures such as Lord Robertson, Tony Blair, [Home Secretary] John Reid and Gordon Brown, was accused by leading journalists and emergency personnel of having achieved a cover-up.[247]

So two notable writers investigating the Dunblane scandal implicate Judge William Cullen himself at the unfolding crime scene as a murder accomplice. Then no sooner is the murder accomplice quickly appointed chief investigator of the worst mass shooting in Britain's history that he himself allegedly played a critical criminal role in, Freemason-judge-accomplice Cullen then appoints the masonic filled police agency so steeped in protecting and covering up Hamilton and his VIP pedo-ring to conduct the Dunblane Massacre investigation.[248] By Scotland Secretary of State Forsyth selecting "the right judge" selecting the "right" police, the British Establishment was guaranteed total escape from justice for all its murdering VIP pedophiles with the unheard of, illegal, secret 100-year gag order sealing all Dunblane records.[249]

Aside from the masonic criminality of Lord Cullen and Lord Robertson, Greg Hallett goes on to list other household names of top politicians implicated in the Dunblane VIP pedophile ring-mass murder-cover-up:

> Attorney-General Lord Peter Henry Goldsmith; Secretary of State for Scotland/MP Michael Forsyth; Secretary of State for Health Alan Milburn; Robert Bell (Chairman of the constituency party at Edinburgh Pentlands/friend and associate of British Foreign Secretary Malcolm Rifkind; Peter Mandelson; Tony Blair; Gordon Brown.[250]

The one name above that's least known is Robert Bell, the chairman of the Conservative Party for Edinburgh Pentlands constituency, for years the same seat belonging to his close pal then Tory Foreign Secretary Malcolm Rifkind, Jewish Zionist cousin of notorious pedophile Jewish Zionist Leon Brittan. His name has come up repeatedly as a pedo-friendly enabler.[251] From his sporting shop in Stirling, Bell had been selling weapons to Hamilton since 1977, and incredibly just weeks prior to the mass shooting, Bell sold more guns and ammo to his longtime customer, likely the very same handguns and bullets used to shoot 34 people, half of whom died.[252] Yet just 10 days after 16 young children and their teacher were mercilessly gunned down by his customer with bullets and gun he likely sold, the front-page article in the March 23, 1996 Edinburgh Evening News makes this stunning announcement:

> Mr Bell… is reported to have said he would sell the guns again despite the murder of 16 children and their teacher.[253]

Talk about coldblooded, but then VIP pedophiles, pedo-enablers and crime cabal protectors that allegedly conspire to abuse and murder 5- and 6-year old children have to be unrepentant, heartless psychopaths whose untold evil far exceeds both words and imagination.

According to the police investigation, Hamilton used two 9mm Browning pistols and two .357 Magnum revolvers but killed and injured others only with his Browning pistol loaded with 25 magazines of full metal jacketed 20 hollow point bullets that upon impact expand to tear human flesh and bones apart.[254] They’re so nasty that even the Hague Convention prohibits use of this type bullet in wars.[255] But apparently it’s okay in government sponsored mass shootings killing a bunch of little kids. Mike James succinctly sums it up this way:

> Robertson, at the behest of Tony Blair and Gordon Brown, had a vested interest in ‘wasting’ children who were beginning to talk.[256]

So there it is. Through mass murder, silence the abused kids who might talk, then through covert murder, silence the child porn-pedo-pimping stooge who might talk, then exploit grief-stricken parents for sleight of hand misdirection outlawing private gun ownership worldwide through more deceptively staged inside jobs slaughtering innocent people, the latest recurring episode in New Zealand in March 2019, until citizens around the globe are too disarmed, defenseless and deceived to resist the human genocidal onslaught as victims of the ruling elite’s depopulation agenda. Throw in an unprecedented century-long gag order to keep the people clueless while passing more draconian NWO laws towards one world government tyranny, and the satanic sub-human controllers are on their way. But their game plan isn’t working. Too much diabolical truth keeps oozing out in their sloppily executed false flags and cover-ups to remain silent. Our so called leaders are nothing but hired gun assassins and child sodomizing whores, too compromised and blackmailed to disobey their Illuminati-Zionist-Freemason puppet masters’ commands.

Also keep in mind that little more than a year after Dunblane, Princess Diana who learned the sinister truth about the royals was murdered and three years later, it was Prime Minister Blair who reportedly placed the phone call hit on the BBC darling Jill Dando in April 1999 (See Chapter 21). The sexually blackmailed, crossdressing war criminal freak Miranda Blair is allegedly a high ranking Freemason himself in London’s No. 1591 Studholme Masonic Lodge.[257] Seems that to a man every criminal conspirator behind the Dunblane pedo-ring-school massacre-cover-up is more than likely a Freemason. Blair’s PM successor Gordon Brown is another Freemason pedophile.[258] Secret societies, ancient occult satanic ritual and pedophilia are all integrated into one and the same practice. As a practitioner of paganism, Tony Blair’s wife Cherie is right in step with hubby’s dark side dip into Freemasonry, keeping jars of their hair and toe clippings handy for both occult ritual as well as guru consultation.[259] And the Bushes and Clintons and Obamas are no different.[260]

In 2003 and 2004 journalist Mike James wrote extensively about Operation Ore, exposing prominent ministers atop Prime Minister Blair’s government caught using credit cards to download graphic child porn images off the web, specifically naming the UK’s longest Labor Attorney General (2001-2007) Lord Peter Goldsmith and two Blair ministers Lord Peter Mandelson (see Chapter 23) and Scotland’s own Lord George Robertson.[261] Recall that the undaunted muckraker Mike also accused Blair’s successor Prime Minister Gordon Brown along with his senior and junior ministers of being practicing pedophiles as well. In addition to the above list, other Labor pervs allegedly busted in Operation Ore but rescued by Blair’s D-notice are Lord Gerald Kaufman (deceased in 2017), Blair’s Health Minister Alan Milburn, Blair’s Deputy Prime Minister Lord John Prescott and usual pedo-suspect Lord Greville Janner (dead before indicted in 2016).[262] Millburn suddenly resigned under pressure from his senior post when Scotland Yard investigated the perverted child porn downloaders.[263]

Also according to Mike James, the FBI identified Scottish former UK Prime Minister Gordon Brown as a participant in the Dunblane child abuse sex ring as well.[264] Because the FBI leaked its list of prominent UK politicos engaged in pedophilia to the Sunday Times, not just intelligence services in the UK, US and Israel know Gordon Brown is a "practicing pedophile," but oligarch Rupert Murdock and his Times editor have also been aware. Brown's been repeatedly accused of raping both boys and girls by Mike James as well as David Icke,[265] yet as "wild" as their allegations might seem against a former UK PM, recall that Icke accurately called out previous Prime Minister Edward Heath seven years before he died.[266] Heath has subsequently been widely accused and accepted as a sadistic serial child predator and probable murderer, his child abuse further confirmed by a recent extensive police investigation, albeit too many years post-mortem (See last chapter). So Gordon Brown wouldn't be the UK's first pedophile prime minister and sadly, probably not the last.

Recall that back in 1986 former Tory minister Normand Lamont first informed Mike James about Brown.[267] Moreover, Gordon Brown never bothered suing Lamont, James or Icke. Additionally, Brown allegedly participated in a savage gang rape with two other perverts, paying a prostitute to ravage her 9-year old daughter in Aberdeen, Scotland back in the 1970s.[268] So no doubt vile Gord's gorged himself on defenseless young Scottish kiddies even before his trips to Dunblane as another "Fiend of Queen Victoria School."

The elite's grand strategy to circumvent the Dunblane filth was using police as the primary scapegoat in order to cover up masonic judges in charge of Crown Service blocking multiple law enforcement probes into Scottish pedophile rings, and banning all guns in Britain as a means of totally preventing exposure of the wider Freemason controlled VIP pedophile network operating throughout Scotland and the UK, led by such Scottish heavy hitting masons as Judge William Cullen, Defense Minister George Robertson, Scotland Secretary of State Michael Forsyth[269] and future Prime Minister Gordon Brown. [270]

From the “takes one to know one” file comes Lord Burton’s eye-opening account of what really happened in the Dunblane cover-up. The former grandmaster of Scotland’s Grand Masonic Lodge between 1993 and 1999 knew all the prominent Freemason conspirators that engaged in the brazen pedophilia-murder-cover-up, boldly and courageously exposing them in a shocking December 2003 News of the World article.[271] Back in 1994 aware of the child sexual abuse at Queen Victoria School, Lord Burton filed a report for the Ministry of Defense that runs the boarding school where Hamilton was so frequently a guest. And just like whistleblowing QVS housemaster Glenn Harrison, no mention of the Hamilton abuse connection made it into the Cullen Report. Per the Hansard records, on May 12, 1998 Lord Burton proclaimed in the House of Lords:

> Nothing of this was in the Cullen Report. Cullen is a Mason with a duty to protect brother Masons. There is evidence to show corruption and maladministration by the police.[272]

In 1924 Lord Burton was born Michael Evan Victor Baillie into a wealthy Scottish landowner family whose paternal grandmother was the 2nd Baroness Burton Lady Nellie Bass of the Bass brewery fortune.[273] When his baroness grandmother died in 1962, he became Lord Burton taking his Conservative seat in the House of Lords until 1999 when Blair’s Labor government pushed him out. At the time of the 1996 Dunblane Massacre, head honcho Burton was sitting atop Scotland’s Order of Freemasonry. But removed in 1999 from both his House of Lords spot as well as his masonic perch as grand master, no doubt for trying to reveal the Dunblane lowdown, four years later when the secrecy of Lord Cullen’s 100-year order was forcibly pried open by citizen activist William Burns and his petition for a new inquiry,[274] closing in on 80-years old, the aging former grand poohbah finally decided to publicly set the record straight.

Lord Burton called the Cullen Inquiry “a whitewash,” suppressing critical information in order to protect “high profile legal figures,” specifically Freemason members of the Speculative Society with links to Queen Victoria School. Nearly a decade before his death, Lord Burton told News of the World investigative journalist Marcello Mega:

> Dunblane Inquiry was a cover-up and [House of Lords] peers bullied me to keep quiet… I tried repeatedly to raise concerns about the inquiry during my time in the Lords, and as bullied and threatened by powerful peers loyal to the Conservative Government of the day, who warned me of dire consequences if I continued to embarrass them… There’s no escaping the fact there’s something sinister about the whole affair.[275]

Scottish Lord Fraser of Carmylle, another masonic Edinburgh Speculative Society member, was the main antagonist who led the harassment and threats against Lord Burton for raising unanswered, unwanted questions in the House of Lords regarding the Cullen cover-up.[276] In effect, Lord Burton was violating the masonic brotherhood’s cardinal rule by outing his fellow masons, not to mention opening the Pandora’s Box of the masonic Dunblane VIP pedophile ring. In 1982 Thatcher had appointed Tory MP Peter Fraser as Scotland Solicitor General, then promoting him in 1989 to Lord Advocate, Scotland’s top law officer.[277]

While in charge of the Crown Office and Procurator Fiscal Service (COPFS), Fraser’s Spec Society brother mason, Solicitor General Lord Cameron of Lochbroom[278] and Fraser as Lord Advocate (1989-1992) consistently blocked police efforts to investigate Thomas Hamilton’s pedophilic activity and the masonic VIP pedo-ring.[279] Had he been charged and convicted then, Hamilton would have had his clubs and camps shut down, his gun license revoked and 28 children and four adults would likely have never been wounded or killed in 1996. No doubt Lord Fraser and Lord Cameron were among the “high profile legal figures” Lord Burton referred to who went out of their way to protect the masonic pedo-ring and harass him for attempting to expose them.

Seems all the pedo-protector masonic judges also played their cabal hand in the infamous 1988 Lockerbie debacle as well. Lord Fraser mishandled the Lockerbie investigation that resulted in the wrongful conviction of an innocent man. At the tribunal another of Fraser’s masonic brothers, Lord Cullen denied the appeal of the falsely accused Libyan. See the pattern of how this masonic brotherhood works subversively together to protect the crime cabal “in defense of the realm,” promoting and covering up the pedophilia network while unjustly punishing and murdering the innocent?

When the former housemaster Glenn Harrison at Queen Victoria School went public divulging the horrors perpetrated by the VIP masonic pedo-ring, as a fellow whistleblower, Lord Burton felt compelled to reach out to him, ultimately unveiling his own bombshell exposing the masonic pedophile connection leading to the Cullen cover-up.[280] The Dunblane murder cover-up is the same as the Dunblane pedophilia cover-up, with the central figure Freemason Thomas Watt Hamilton spreading to masonic government VIPs. Glenn has stated:

I was one of the people who was making a fuss about Hamilton long before he killed those children, but no one wanted to listen…[281] My allegations were never investigated. They never interviewed me. I did not exist.[282]

In response to Glenn’s shock and disappointment that he was never called in as a Cullen inquiry witness, Lord Burton explained the reason Cullen avoided him, because the housemaster’s testimony would have embarrassed top legal names that would have been dragged into the scandalous mess. Lord Burton was referring to the large group of homosexual pedophiles representing the legal establishment in Scotland, including top judges, high powered solicitors and sheriffs.

One of these notorious groups even has a name - the Magic Circle - known for reducing sentences for gay sex with underage rent boys.[283] During the 1990s it surfaced in a number of cases where teenage victims were sexually blackmailing high-powered individuals within the Magic Circle. The Blair appointed former Judge Advocate (1997-2000) Lord Hardie, Scotland’s top law officer to lead the prosecution of the first Lockerbie air disaster trial before resigning just weeks prior to become a high court judge. His successor was Lord Colin Boyd.

Just two months after the Dunblane shooting in May 1996, a 16-year old lad from a care home allegedly abused by Lord Andrew Hardie used his forged checks to purchase a car, but rather than have the boy arrested, the Magic Circle member simply claimed he never knew the boy.[284] Speculation that he was blackmailed may be connected to the bizarre development over 20 years later when in January 2017 the police reopened the case. Another Spec Society Freemason linked to the Magic Circle is Deputy Chairman of the Royal Bank of Scotland - Sir Angus Grossart. Considered Scotland’s richest, most powerful man, Bloomberg named Sir Angus “Scotland’s Mr. Fix It.”[285] The Magic Circle reportedly consists of protected pedo-players linked to Hamilton’s VIP child sex ring that made certain the masonic child procurer from Stirling also managed to live out his 43 years above the law.

Numerous prominent pedophiles in Scotland hail from the Edinburgh’s Speculative Society, founded in 1764 as a Freemason offshoot.[286] Though its cover benignly masquerades as a males only debating and public speaking club meeting rent free at old vaults under Edinburgh University during the winter, historically its invited members are selected at the undergraduate level similar to Yale's Skull and Bones Society, and just like the Bonesmen, invariably infiltrate top positions in the Scottish government, judiciary and high society. Their fraternal membership places them at distinct, unfair advantage over non-members and, as Lord Burton alluded, their nefariously secret collusions wreak havoc with the justice system as with Hamilton's granted immunity.

That was also why the pesky William Burns queried Judge Cullen prior to his inquiry that began on the 29th of May to July 10th, requesting not only to identify himself as a Freemason if he was, which through his secretary Cullen denied, but also ask all incoming inquiry witnesses if they were Freemasons as well, which never did happen, since it was obvious that the Dunblane pedo-ring was masonic-ally bonded and therefore had to be covered up.[287] So paranoid his masonic pedo-network would be exposed, Cullen even placed William Burns' correspondence under the 100-year closure rule. As a campaigner for justice, William Burns' website dunblane.site laudably ensures that the public has as much access to documentation on the Dunblane cover-up as possible,[288] including scores of newspaper articles, letters, petitions and varied court documents, emphasizing his valid reasoning:

It is in the public interest that Lord Cullen be asked if he is a Freemason, given the widely held view by the public that Thomas Hamilton's Masonic affiliation was probably the reason that the Ombudsman overturned an earlier decision by Central Regional Council in 1983 to prevent Hamilton from running youth clubs, and that his Masonic affiliation probably facilitated his application for a gun license.[289]

Ultimately in 2003 William Burns petitioned the Scottish Parliament to overrule Cullen's 100-year ban and open a new inquiry,[290] which resulted in a Public Petitions Committee (PPC) consisting of Scottish Parliament members that also amounted to nothing.[291] With the exception of just one member of the Scottish Parliament, Carolyn Leckie bravely calling for a new inquiry,[292] the rest of the PPC proved to be cowards as both the Scottish and UK Establishment chose to remain on the wrong side of history, refusing for a full century to ever allow the Dunblane truth to be unburied.

Speculative Society member Lord Cullen boldface lied when answering “no” to whether a Freemason or not to his secretary who relayed his denial back to Mr. Burns. Also in response to Burns’ direct no-nonsense question, Judge Cullen apparently had the nerve to be taken aback as if to say how dare a public citizen want to know if a masonic conspiracy might be operating to withhold the truth from the people. On a publicly released handwritten note from the Cullen camp, the following words were jotted down:

… Not a Freemason, never has been.[293]

Caught in the big lie, Cullen’s blatant denial seriously undermines both his credibility and the veracity of his inquiry findings, not to mention as a murder accomplice cited by Mike James and Greg Hallett. Judge Cullen’s total lack of impartial objectivity renders his statute-less, unprecedented 100-year ban an illegal gross miscarriage of justice. Self-servingly sealing all incriminating evidence available to his so called “public” inquiry until 2096 makes a mockery of any justice for the Dunblane victims, their families and the British public. Lord Cullen is a perfect example of why the anything-but-Great Britain is the world’s pedophilia epicenter.

Another prominent Freemason lied as the Grand Lodge of Scotland leader anonymously writing to CSP in June 1996 claimed he didn’t believe Hamilton was a masonic member, since it:

would have come to light immediately after the Dunblane incident.[294]

Yeah, right… like so much truth came “to light immediately after the Dunblane incident.” Meanwhile, it’s been confirmed that the same year Hamilton was issued his first gun license in 1977, he also became a Freemason.[295]

Just when Britain was learning that Cullen had robbed its citizens of the truth for a century, as a reward for protecting the pedo-Establishment, he was welcomed into the House of Lords with open arms in June 2003, probably saving more than a few lord pervs from serious prison time. But a half dozen years earlier and just months after his bogus, reprehensible Dunblane Inquiry, Cullen was promoted to Scotland’s Supreme Court as a Lord Justice-in-waiting. And for his loyalty and dedication at shielding the evil pedophile untouchables who live above the law, Queen Elizabeth always handsomely rewards her sicko brigade with Her Majesty’s highest honors. Within months of his criminal Dunblane cover-up, Cullen was invited to join HM’s Most Honourable Privy Council and in 2008 was duly knighted by the queen into the Order of the Thistle.[296] Like UK security services and UK police, he too apparently has made an undying commitment to serve the interests of the murderous UK crime cabal in obedient defense of the realm (including his own self-defense), covering up the disturbing truth with his carefully orchestrated Dunblane Massacre whitewash[297] and unheard of 100 year suppression order.

Other notable dishonorable mentions for the cabal include heading up the tribunal that denied the appeal of the government framed Libyan suspect in the 1988 Lockerbie Pan Am bombing.[298] Cullen also mishandled the worst oil rig disaster in history with the 1988 Piper Alpha tragedy killing all 167 men[299] as well as the 1999 Paddington Rail Disaster killing 31 and injuring 400 passengers, a direct outcome of privatization’s profit and greed over public safety.[300]

As a faithful servant for the despicable Empire right to the end, just as the Queen’s Commonwealth has its go-to inquest doctors (recall Chapter 21’s Westminster coroner Dr. Paul Knapman) whose “faithful hands” dutifully cover up alleged state sponsored assassinations made to look like suicide and heart attacks, go-to judges also exist to ensure major cover-up inquires conceal damaging evidence of elite crimes. From 2003 until February 2019, the heralded 83-year old Judge William Douglas Cullen, Baron Cullen of Whitekirk, sat as an active House of Lords backbench member.[301] He’ll no doubt also be going to his grave never properly held accountable for his plethora of grave misdeeds.

In both law enforcement and the criminal justice system, impartiality is constantly compromised by the Masonic secret society that has thoroughly infiltrated both the legal and political system of Britain as well as around the world. An estimate of upwards of 20% of UK police are Freemasons.[302] Metro Police in London have their own masonic lodge.[303] Efforts in Britain to require masonic members in police, courts and government to publicly identify themselves have been thwarted in the secret society pedophilia haven. In 2009 the European Court of Human Rights ruled that it violates members’ privacy rights to force them to declare membership.[304] How about citizens’ rights systemically violated by infiltrating treasonous kleptocratic criminals selected as puppets to run our world? Where are our privacy, civil and human rights to be left alone without tyrannical fascist police state powers monitoring, controlling, and otherwise ruining our lives?

There was also a media blackout within just a few days after the Dunblane bloodbath. Even mainstream press was asking probing questions in its initial efforts to find out how this horrific event could happen in such a pristine little medieval Scottish town. But appointed inquiry Judge Cullen and the Crown Office quickly stopped the media from any further coverage until after the public inquiry began in late May 1996. Similar to previous pedo-scandals like Elm Guest House, sudden gaps of silence befell all British news outlets. The public reason given was supposed risk that further coverage might prejudice the evidence of witnesses being selected to provide testimony at the upcoming inquiry.[305] The real reason is too much of the truth could have leaked out early on, and since Cullen's sole job was to carefully cap what gets released to the public, no news is good news to those bent on subverting justice and the people's right to know. In an article in The Scotsman printed three weeks after the massacre, the late reporter Ian Bell poignantly stated:

> This week Scotland's most senior law officer threatened editors with proceedings for contempt if they continued to investigate the circumstances of the Dunblane massacre. As though to sharpen the point, the Crown Office said the remarks of Lord Mackay of Drumadoon, the Lord Advocate, were themselves 'not for publication or broadcast.' The curb on reporting is not to be reported.[306]

Usurping both the citizens' right to know the truth and the right of the free press to do its job, actually to engage in the lost art of journalistic investigation of an enormous news story was strictly prohibited from the start with Dunblane. The government simply had too much criminality to hide to risk exposure of the sinister truth about VIP pedophiles atop the government or the unmasking of a state-sponsored murder cover-up of the VIP child procuring alleged Dunblane murderer. Similar to a decade earlier when Lady Thatcher threatened the press for attempting to uncover suspected pedophiles that rampantly infiltrated her government, in early April 1996 the then Lord Advocate Lord MacKay was also threatening the press if it dare expose the truth about Dunblane, including the media even being banned from talking about the ban. That’s how absurdly agitated and frenzied the UK government was that its murderous pedophilia role at Dunblane could possibly be uncovered.

The international cabal in 2019 is reaching a similar state of extreme panic that the diabolical truth about its worldwide pedophilia scourge is being exposed like never before. Hence, censorship of the truth via the internet and gun confiscation are two top priority agendas for the Deep State cabal. They know the jig’s up as pedo Bush senior alluded in 1992:

If the American people ever find out what we have done, they would chase us down the street and lynch us.[307]

Among the 106 documents locked away till 2096 is a letter about Hamilton’s masonic involvement addressed to the killer’s MP, the then Scotland Secretary of State Michael Forsyth, written by UK’s soon-to-be defense minister/NATO boss Lord George Robertson, fellow Freemason and longtime Dunblane resident.[308] Until March 2003, for seven years since the massacre, the 100-year ban on the truth was only thought to contain one police report on Hamilton instead of 106 documents submitted to the Cullen Inquiry in 1996. The one Central Scotland Police report thought to be sealed was the result of the 1991 Hughes’ investigation into Hamilton’s sexual and physical abuse of boys attending his summer camps and sports clubs, and the bogus excuse given for the 100-year rule was to protect the confidentiality of the children involved.[309] Very few of the over 100 documents prohibited from the public have anything to do with the children involved, proving that the official explanation behind the 100-year rule is also a complete fabrication.

Deputy Justice Minister Michael Matheson from Scotland’s largest political party the Scottish National Party recognized the obvious cover-up and said:

> The 100-year rule needs to be re-examined with respect to all documents.[310]

Matheson wrote Lord Advocate Colin Boyd asking if children's names from the 1991 Hughes report could be redacted and released involving Detective Sergeant Paul Hughes investigation of Hamilton's abusive behavior toward boys at his summer camps that year. Matheson also pressed Boyd to possibly revoke the 100-year rule but never received a reply.

Colin Boyd was selected a House of Lords peer in 2006, no doubt a reward for dutifully towing the cabal line as prosecutor willfully misleading the Megrahi court to falsely convict the innocent Lockerbie suspect[311] and then as Lord Advocate in 2003 sabotaging the removal of the 100-year Dunblane sham. Lord Boyd had Dr. Peter Anderson from the records office (now called the National Archive) feebly state on record that the 1991 Hughes police report and 105 other locked away documents couldn't be released without compromising the privacy rights of children even with names blanked out.[312] Total bullshit but then that's what British lords are for.

Evidence strongly indicates the Hughes report implicates that mason Hamilton was protected by powerful VIP masons in government, high courts and senior law enforcement, leaving the general public, not just conspiracy theorists, concluding that Freemason Judge Cullen was protecting his fellow masonic VIPs evoking the 100-year rule. The outrageous ban of course smacks of cover-up. The Glasgow Herald weighed in:

> Hence, the veiled suggestions[JH1] one of these high-ranking individuals was also a child sexual abuser, and the implication that freemasonry encouraged an evil network to flourish, protected by the establishment. Hamilton's masonic links, the conspiracy theorists point out, have been long rumoured but never investigated.[313]

Banned from public view for a century are a Hamilton letter and his advertising flier originally sent to Dunblane parents, copies of which were both sent by Lord Robertson to MP Forsyth.[314] The flier even included Forsyth's name intended to be viewed as the MP's public endorsement of Hamilton's boys' club services. When the Secretary of State found out, he politely contacted Hamilton to request that he remove his name from the flier. The reason Hamilton opportunistically assumed he could get away with using his influential MP's name was no doubt established once Forsyth wrote a letter years earlier to Hamilton congratulating him on clearance to resume offering boys clubs,[315] after the first of six criminal complaints levied against him was dismissed. In each and every case, police and prosecutors never brought charges,[316] despite more than 20 formal complaints.[317] Throughout the inquiry, police witnesses would appear only to repeat the same worn out line, "no action," or "no evidence," a serial soap opera where law enforcement plays the fall guy for its so called incompetence shielding pedophile legal and political heavyweights.

Masonic child abusers were protecting themselves by playing dumb at the inquiry for protecting Hamilton for over two decades. Hamilton's masonic brotherhood included powerful figures not only in government but Central Scotland Police (CSP) command as well. After looking the other way despite mounting allegations from children and parents within the community, law enforcement's designated role during Cullen's "show trial" was the designated whipping boy. Somebody had to be blamed and since shit flows downhill, lower on the power pecking order than the Crown Office, police ineptitude and dereliction of duty were the inquiry's convenient running theme.

The reason Judge Cullen also hid away William Burns' written query to him for a century was because Burns caught Cullen stacking the deck in his inquiry with fellow masonic pedo-protectors. On his website William Burns includes a letter to Lord Cullen dated August 16, 1996, specifically asking if a number of inquiry witnesses are Freemasons that are on record supporting Hamilton's odious activities right to the end, lending their stamp of approval granting the madman his gun licenses and renewing his contracts to use public building space to operate his clubs.[318] For example, as mentioned earlier, Central Regional Council member Robert Ball defended his actions at the Cullen Inquiry, despite knowing about Hamilton's shady past, as late as 1995 Ball renewed the killer's contract to utilize the district's public buildings for his sports clubs even up through the summer of 1996. So a very legitimate question to ask is - is Robert Ball a Freemason?

Or going back to 1984, was the now deceased ombudsman Eric Gillett a Freemason? He overturned Central Regional Council's suspension of Thomas Hamilton's let using Central Scotland public schools for his clubs believing Hamilton didn't get a fair shake based on "innuendo and gossip."[319] Or Central Scotland Police Officer Norman Lynch, who worked in the computer system for firearms licensing, and attempted at the inquiry to justify why Hamilton needed excessive number of guns and ammo. Or whether retired CSP police superintendent Ian McKenzie is a Freemason for also signing off on Hamilton's gun licenses in 1989 and 1992. After all, he was in charge of checking records on firearms, which if he'd done his job properly, he would have caught a number of false entries and unlawful transgressions on virtually all his gun applications.[320] At the Cullen inquiry McKenzie actually testified that Detectve Hughes' 1991 report recommending Hamilton's license be revoked would be insufficient grounds to take away his guns.[321]

At the June 1996 inquiry former Dumbarton Procurator Fiscal James Cardle explained his actions ruling that police did not have enough evidence against Hamilton’s criminal activities on Inchmoan Island in 1988 to prosecute.[322] Knowing Freemasons are rampant in the Procurator Fiscal Services, William Burns justifiably asks Cullen if James Cardle is also a mason, especially since Judge Cullen in his inquiry overtly refused to engage Cardle on his highly questionable decision that protected the Freemason murderer. Another potential Freemason has to be Stirling Procurator Fiscal Depute William Gallacher. He turned down a police request to grant a search warrant on Hamilton’s home in 1993, despite receiving a police report on a mother’s complaint that Hamilton had taken a number of photos of her son in “questionable” positions and a police report that included specific criminal offenses such as lewd and libidinous conduct and contravention of the Children and Young Persons Act.[323] In 1994 two years ahead of the Dunblane School shooting, in response to a tip that Hamilton was selling child pornography photos from his home, there was a police raid. Yet again, he was protected as no criminal charges were ever brought against him.

Good honest police knew something had gone afoul in the Thomas Hamilton case. Right after the bloodbath, a frustrated, angry police officer succinctly summed up the abysmal outcome this way:

> He [Hamilton] was a pedophile. If he had had a criminal record, he would not have been able to carry a gun. The court system didn't take our evidence on board.[324]

Then there’s the solicitor Colin Campbell QC who at the Cullen Inquiry misrepresented the families of Dunblane child victims, taking direct daily orders from the law firm Levy and McRae. According to Legal 500, this legal firm represents

STV and other major Scottish media networks.[325] So when Campbell cross-examined Hamilton’s STV cameraman buddy Clive Wood, steeped deep in the scandal, Campbell went especially easy on him, carefully avoiding digging into STV and other broadcasters’ involvement in Hamilton’s pedo-ring. Recall QVS housemaster Harrison had said “Friends of QVS” abusers were brimming with Scotland news media personalities. Similarly, both the Advocate for the Crown and Advocate Depute for the Crown, avoided Hamilton’s connections with Clive Wood and STV, despite several witnesses claiming Wood was a regular visitor at Hamilton’s home and that Hamilton was even often seen driving Wood’s blue STV marked vehicle. Also when neighbor Mrs. Grace Jones Ogilvie mentioned a frequent visitor driving a blue police car, no one dared to inquire any further. The last thing the Crown wanted was to acknowledge or bring attention to the notorious pedophile’s ultra-close ties to Central Scotland Police.[326]

To understand the full importance of flushing out Hamilton’s malevolent connections to prominent fellow Freemasons that shielded his “charmed life” from ever having to do time in prison for criminal misconduct, it’s imperative to grasp how much power Freemasonry historically wields in Scotland through the centuries. The Scottish Rite of Freemasonry dates back to Edinburgh’s Lodge founded in 1578 nearly four and a half centuries ago, some say as an infiltrated offshoot of the outlawed Knights of Templar.[327] The masonic order boasts over 350,000 members in UK alone, though in recent years the numbers have been dropping. Its image of foppish old men in silly ceremonial robes hardly appeals to younger generations nor its damaged reputation for spreading sinister subversion and malevolence.[328] For several centuries infiltrated Freemasons in Britain at the highest degrees - 32 and higher, have dominated UK’s top law enforcement[329] (again, at least 1 in 5 UK cops are masons[330]), high courts, Houses of both Commons and Lords,[331] banking and largest corporations.[332] Respected journalist-author Nick Davies wrote a Guardian article a year after Dunblane exposing Freemasonry amongst UK police.[333] Again, it bears mention that the lower degreed masons often may be decent individuals who support worthy charitable causes, unaware of the secret occultists atop their organization that operate as full-fledged Illuminati Luciferians running the world.

And just as most Freemasons obviously are not pedophiles, most police officers in Scotland and the UK aren't Freemason nor pedophiles. But as always, similar to the politicians and judges, the masons and the pedophiles, so often one in the same breed have long infiltrated top law enforcement positions virtually throughout the entire British Isles and beyond. Even when honest cops tried to protect Central Scotland's children and families with investigative findings that recommended charges against Hamilton as a danger to both children and society, if it wasn't the Central Scotland Police command embedded with masonic pedophiles protecting one of their own, it was the Crown Office and Procurator Fiscal Services as legal gatekeepers claiming "not enough evidence."

Detective Constable Paul Hughes in charge of the CSP child protection unit in Bannockburn led the 1991 investigation into Hamilton's alleged sexual improprieties and violent assaults at his summer camps on Loch Loman.[334] Similar to the last constable from 1988 that investigated his Loch Lomond criminal activities, Hamilton retaliated by filing a formal complaint on the future Chief Inspector Paul Hughes who was completely exonerated.[335] Hamilton again approached the ombudsman who said he had no jurisdiction over police proceedings. DC Hughes' police inquiry strongly recommended prosecution of Hamilton on ten separate charges, but due to the Procurator Fiscal Depute William Gallacher, they never happened.[336] Gallacher concluded, “no pro; no crime libeled; not in the public interest.” Oh yeah? Tell that to the dead kids’ families little more than three years later.

Both Stirling Procurator Fiscals K. Valentine and Gallacher were convinced all ten of the Hughes’ charges did not cross the line into criminality. Yet at the Cullen inquiry advocate for Dunblane families Laura Dunlop QC argued that the majority (2-7) of the Hughes listed charges were in fact sufficiently valid.[337] Recall that it would be this same gatekeeper Gallacher two years later who would refuse to grant the search warrant on the child pornographer’s home. No wonder William Burns seriously questioned if he and the others are Freemasons.

Only one statement from Hughes’ report was ever published during the inquiry three months after the massacre in June while the rest of his controversial report was blocked for a century:

> I am firmly of the opinion that Hamilton is an unsavoury character and an unstable personality. I would contend that Hamilton will be a risk to children whenever he has access to them and he appears to me to be an unsuitable person to possess a firearms certificate. It is my opinion that he is a devious and deceitful individual who is not to be trusted.[338]

One can’t be any clearer than that. Det. Hughes called Hamilton out three years before tragedy struck, rendering the derelict a danger to children whose gun license should be revoked immediately. But for decades alleged masonic infiltrating gatekeepers occupying the top echelons of power politics, law enforcement and the justice system continued to shield the criminal because they reputedly shared the same fraternal demonic sickness to harm young children. But parents’ complaints kept pouring in year after year, mostly about his scantily clad swim trunks and obsessive photos and videos that many found offensive and perverted. It took until May 1995, less than a year before tragedy struck, that Central Regional council finally required the sicko to forewarn parents about his swim trunks and photos/video obsession.[339]

Though some district councils banned him, most allowed him to continue his clubs right to the end, despite continued complaints and police inspections. The madman’s tireless letter campaigns to certain district council members (i.e., diehard supporter like Robert Ball) and his favorite Establishment big guns were finally beginning to wear thin as well. The procurator fiscals ordered police to stop sending their reports on the Hamilton photos/videos though some police inspectors believed that parents’ reactions to them were enough to be considered a breach of peace, including the advocate Laura Dunlop at the public inquiry.[340]

With his ceaselessly contentious letter writing to his onetime close allies - high profile pedophiles at Central Scotland Police, his MP Michael Forsyth, soon-to-be defense minister George Robertson, and even Queen Elizabeth, Thomas Hamilton was fast becoming a major threat to the Establishment.[341] The loose cannon had to be silenced or top powerful pedophiles were at risk of his talking and spilling the beans. Hamilton’s increasingly erratic, unstable nature combined with his long troubled past were easily seized upon by the elite to paint the picture of a sick loner turned ticking time bomb facing loss of livelihood – his sports and camping clubs, but more pathologically significant, his loss of access to boys as his addicted lust along with his bread and butter - peddling child porn while procuring boy toys for British Establishment consumption. During his final years his loss of support from certain police, the judiciary and politicians distancing themselves after protecting him for decades targeted Hamilton as an enormously dangerous burden that had to be neutralized. In the weeks preceding March 13th, Hamilton was more than likely being monitored and handled by personnel from Central Scotland Police and British security services that set him up into falsely believing they still had his back.[342]

Out of all the numerous UK child abuse scandal-cover-ups, by far Dunblane stands out as the most egregiously grotesque travesty of justice of them all. Reason? Because not only has the government once again covered up its pedophilic crimes, but it's also guilty as an accomplice in the mass murder of 16 defenseless children and the actual murderer of its designated mass murdering patsy. Weigh the falsity of the overt Cullen cover-up with all the compelling circumstantial evidence in conjunction with a long confirmed history of both pedophilia murder and false flag mass shootings for gun control and an objective observer would readily conclude that Thomas Hamilton was a murdered patsy. The pedophilia cabal obviously possesses both the most means and most motive to commit such high crimes, deploying a government agent (or agents) to shoot Thomas Hamilton dead with a .357 Smith and Wesson revolver and then cleanly walk off with the revolver leaving the crime scene behind, conveniently calling it suicide.

Hamilton had been buds with some very powerful Freemason police officers and politicians that had been protecting, enabling and joining him in his pedophilic crimes for more than two decades. As part of UK's larger masonic brotherhood network regularly engaging in child sexual abuse, the Central Scotland child pornographer and boy procurer operated not unlike Jimmy Savile but on a smaller regional scale. His peculiarities and odd ball persona caused growing concern in his local community that young boys were unsafe and abused, all too often overlooked, dismissed and actively covered up by fellow Freemason sickos. Freemason Judge Cullen was handpicked by Secretary of State Michael Forsyth and Prime Minister John Major to make certain that the official inquiry would never explore Hamilton’s fraternal masonic relationships with VIP fellow criminals in the police, courts, government and the media. The errand boy delivered.

Below is a presentation of various anomalies that will explain the far more feasible and plausible explanation of events at the Dunblane Primary School tragedy as murder of children, their teacher and patsy unfolded on March 13th, 1996.

On the cold wintry morning of Wednesday the 13th of March 1996, after witnessing Hamilton get out of a grey saloon car, wave goodbye to an unknown, uninvestigated driver, neighbor Cathleen Kerr then observed Hamilton walk over to his rented white van and begin scraping ice off between the hour of 8AM and 8:40AM.[343] Per Detective Constable Graham Capes’ testimony at the Cullen Inquiry, he falsely reported that CCTV cameras showed Hamilton leaving Stirling for Dunblane at 9:12AM, despite Capes’ written report showing CCTV cameras detected Hamilton driving through two intersections at 8:44AM and 8:46AM from Stirling.[344] Yet the CCTV cameras clearly showed Hamilton was not driving towards Dunblane but in fact was heading in the opposite direction toward Bannockburn. Yet no one at the inquiry bothered confronting DC Capes on either discrepancy, his quoting both the wrong recorded time of 9:12AM, almost a half hour after the actual time, and the fact that he was driving away from Dunblane not towards it as stated under oath.

It appears that Officer Capes gave a false time to better fit Hamilton’s 9:30AM school arrival, thus conveniently avoiding the actual CCTV detected times that would leave an unaccounted half hour to explain. This would indicate that Hamilton very likely made yet a second pit stop before arriving at the Dunblane school since the average drive time from his home to the school takes only 15 minutes.

Obviously any persons Hamilton spoke to during the hour before the mass shooting would be extremely significant and strongly suggest with high probability that there were known accomplices that were conspicuously left out of both the CSP investigation and Cullen Inquiry.

All the Cullen Report states is that Hamilton scraped ice off the van and left his home “at about 8:15AM,”[345] making no mention of that lost, unaccounted hour of time since 15 minutes was all it took to drive the 7 miles to the school. Despite the missing time being so critical to determine if others were involved, Cullen’s whitewash just simply avoids these “messy” little anomalies altogether.

The Cullen agenda was to portray Hamilton as the lone nut gunman who committed Britain’s worst mass shooting entirely on his own, so that the post-shooting aftermath could seamlessly shift focus from solid evidence of government culpability to near exclusive emphasis on stricter gun control laws. Following cabal orders, Cullen’s inquiry provided the necessary sleight-of-hand misdirection to effectively divert public attention away from uncovering the masonic pedophilia operation to the cabal agenda for ushering in sweeping new gun control legislation in both Britain and Australia.[346]

After making a couple of unaccounted for, never investigated stops most likely involving accomplices, Hamilton arrived at the school just prior to 9:30AM. He parked his rented white van in a rear car park area, walked over to electrical power lines and with pliers cut the wires that fortunately failed to take out the phone lines at the school but only electrical power at a few nearby residential homes.[347] Hamilton may have thought the school assembly would be full of the younger half of the student body, but it was empty and perhaps out of frustration, he fired off a round or two at the stage before moving onto the gymnasium where he’d been told by a boy at his club several days earlier that the five and six year olds might be starting their PE class at 9:30AM.[348]

After bursting into the gym, Hamilton allegedly began blasting away, pumping a volley of bullets first at the adults, assistant teacher Mary Blake, the PE teacher Eileen Herrild and the P1 first grade teacher Gwen Mayor. All three were hit with multiple shots, killing Gwen immediately with one bullet piercing her left eye while badly injuring the two other adults. All three teachers heroically attempted to shield the children. Hamilton then began shooting every child in the gym but one who escaped death by playing dead. Within three minutes, 16 children and their teacher lay dead or dying from multiple gunshot wounds while a dozen less injured children and two teachers somehow managed to find temporary shelter in an adjacent storage alcove, tenuously out of sight from the shooter's rapid fire rampage still raging in the gym.

In the shock and trauma amidst the rapid spray of bullets, no survivors were able to get a good view of the shooter. The injured were either shot dead, or if able, sought safety in the adjoining storage alcove where no visual contact with the murderer was possible. Though the whimpering, crying children were in pain and shock, the injured teachers put their fingers to their mouth to visually communicate the need to remain as quiet as possible.[349] Those that lay injured unable to escape the gym were shot several times at close range with up to seven bullets viciously pumped into them to ensure death. The dozen wounded children and two of the three injured school staff (one was grazed by a shot in the library) were only able to helplessly listen to the gunfire blasts going off just yards away.

PE teacher Eileen Herrild commented that at one point, she attempted to get one or two boys to not peek out at the violence in the gym still unfolding, fearing that the shooter might notice them and move in for the kill to finish them off.

[350] This also lends credence and high plausibility to one of the injured 6-year old boys Matthew Birnie watching the gym shootings from the alcove verbalize from his hospital bed:

I know the bad man is dead because the policeman shot him.[351]

https://truthmegasite.com/dunblane-primary-school-shootings-near-stirling-scotland-a-false-flag-used-to-further-gun-control-in-the-uk/

According to an October 2005 Scotsman article, likely the final time that student teacher David Scott cooperated in an interview, Scott explained that he had sent an 11-year old on an errand from his art class to retrieve a pair of scissors in another classroom.[352] As the student was in transit walking outside near the gym, he heard commotion, banging sounds and screams coming from the gymnasium and looked through the glass door window to notice the gunman shooting inside, at which point the gunman turned to him and opened fire. The boy ran away to alert his 23-year old student teacher. Hamilton opened the gym fire exit door and fired nine shots into the closest classroom hut number 7. The teacher in that classroom had just in time instructed her children to lay on the floor to avoid the barrage of incoming bullets. The gunman then went back into the gym.

Apparently from his classroom window located a distance from the gym, David Scott is alleged to have been able to observe an “agitated” gunman twice step out of the gym through the fire exit door.

Student teacher Scott told The Scotsman that once back inside the gym, Hamilton again fired at more targets in “very quick succession,” adding:

> He then turned a gun on himself. I cannot say if he put the gun into his mouth or just close to his face. I then heard a shot, the man's head slumped backwards with a jolt, his knees folded and he fell backwards on to the floor.[353]

Mimicking Scott’s story, the Cullen Report described the sequence of events this way:

> Thomas Hamilton then re-entered the gym where he shot again. He then released the pistol and drew a revolver. He placed the muzzle of the revolver in his mouth, pointing upwards and pulled the trigger. His death followed quickly.[354]

The above statement by Cullen referring to Thomas Hamilton’s alleged suicide was never substantiated by any witnesses at the Cullen Inquiry “show trial.” Cullen simply based his entire conclusion that Hamilton killed himself on David Scott’s word alone, which was viewed from a classroom window at a distance from the gym. The Dunblane Primary School gymnasium did not have four glass walls by which an observer some distance away would be able to see what goes on inside the gym, especially to witness a gun to the mouth. After hearing noises much closer to the gym than his student teacher, Scott’s errand boy had to walk up to a glass door to peer inside before realizing something bad was going on. Though Sandra Uttley alludes that David Scott’s written witness statement made the same basic claim that he saw Hamilton place a handgun up near his mouth and pull the trigger, if his vantage point was not inside the gym but watching at a distance from a classroom window, then Cullen’s only “evidence” convincing him that Hamilton committed suicide is extremely weak and faulty at best.

Cullen admitted he never even read over 80% of the more than 1,000 written witness statements compiled literally at his disposal.[355] Thus, his inquiry conclusions are the result of his selectively finding any so called evidence that could be used to support his bogus claim of a lone nut Hamilton suicide. His task during his entire sideshow scam was to create the false narrative by finding “the right witnesses” just as he was deemed “the right judge,” in order to support the cabal’s original premise that a crazy evil gunman acting alone snuffed himself at Dunblane… end of story. Meanwhile, the only way to accomplish his assigned task was to bring in only carefully cherry-picked witnesses that in some cases distorted and perjured themselves under oath while intentionally keeping out any witnesses that held far more truthful and significant information as evidence that might end up exposing UK’s powerful criminal masonic Establishment.[356] Both David Scott and school janitor John Currie were very likely used as stooges, enlisted to support the cabal’s collusion in the sacrificial murder of children to protect powerful pedophiles and streamline through the world’s strictest gun control laws.

In the meantime, too many of us still believe that Hamilton never shot himself but was murdered by a government assassin to passively let the full century go by.[357] Here’s evidence backing up the murder claim.

After Hamilton was reported to have reentered the gym a second time, at this point several accounts from the wounded victims in the storage alcove claimed to have briefly heard voices, sounding to them as though Hamilton was surrendering to authorities. After several seconds of this muffled conversation exchange, a distinctly loud scream was heard and then the final gunshots.[358] Even from the nearby, just fired upon classroom hut number 7, eleven-year old Laura Bryce also reported hearing the scream, guessing it must have been the moment Thomas Hamilton shot himself.[359] Of course these all-important multiple auditory witness accounts were conspicuously left out of the Cullen Report and instead only Cullen’s quoted, filled in co-fabrication [with David Scott] was inserted, never backed up or uttered by a single witness among the 171 that he selected to provide testimony at his whitewash. William Cullen was already on record as a proven liar saying he was not a Freemason when it's clearly been documented that he is member #1703 of the Edinburgh Speculative Society masonic lodge.[360] And William Cullen apparently lied again, claiming that Thomas Hamilton stuck the muzzle of a Smith and Wesson revolver in his mouth to commit suicide in yet another episode of dead men don't tell tales. Even David Scott said he did not see if Hamilton stuck the gun in his mouth. Seems once again Judge Cullen's been caught stretching the truth to fit his agenda.

In the police report taken from the parents of the only child in the class of 29 who was neither injured nor killed, but survived by wisely pretending to be dead, it was reported that two bullet holes two inches apart and six inches from ground level were left on the one wall where Hamilton was primarily shooting from and where his body was found (before it was moved).[361] The three other walls in the gym were punctured with close to a hundred bullet holes. The two isolated holes in the one wall near the alleged killer's body were punctured by bullets that in all likelihood killed Hamilton. But why two bullet holes so close to the ground if Hamilton used his revolver to shoot himself once in the head? First of all, not too many people lay down to commit suicide, perhaps sit down but that would be far higher than a half foot from the floor. Secondly, according to information that emerged after the Dunblane inquiry, two bullets from a .357 Magnum revolver went through Hamilton's head to kill him.[362] This fact alone confirms that Hamilton did not die by suicide. Impossible - no human pulls the trigger twice with the barrel of a revolver pointed squarely in or near the mouth and then be alive to fire a second round. This very popular "suicided" assassination trick of two bullet holes through the brain (a la Iran Contra reporter Gary Webb[363]) is often deployed by murderous thugs in security services and mafia alike to explain another so called suicide that simply defies all laws of science and will not work. Thomas Hamilton became another casualty of the cabal for knowing far too much about VIP pedophilia crime. The pedo-Establishment’s line of crap not only defies all science, logic and reason, it’s an insult to every human being’s intelligence. Shame on the pedo-capital of the universe for feebly trying to lie its way out of this government assassination masquerading as a staged murder-suicide.

It was learned during the Cullen Inquiry that one bullet exited Hamilton’s head just above his left ear, which in and of itself would have definitely killed him.[364] But his murderer obviously had to be 100% certain he would die, so he shot the second round squarely through the top of the meathead’s head. Hamilton was either shot initially in the stomach and hip some reports claim,[365] thus causing him to fall to the ground, or he was forcibly taken to the ground and held down, with only his head able to slightly move with the .357 revolver either plunged in his mouth or inches away to finish him off. Additionally, the voices heard just before the final shots and surprise in Hamilton’s voice overheard by witnesses in the alcove indicate that Hamilton spoke briefly to at least one other person prior to his death. It’s a far more plausible and realistic explanation of how he died than by any bogus official account like suicide.

Both David Scott and the crime scene examiner’s accounts insist that Hamilton committed suicide while standing up, not laying down.[366] Then why would those two bullet holes be so close to the floor near where his body was found with brain shot out behind him located even closer to the wall, unless Hamilton was lying down while shot. Committing suicide from a supine position is extremely unrealistic and unheard of. And even stranger to explain is the scream heard just before those final gunshots. It’s far more likely that Hamilton was shocked to see the tables suddenly turning on him with a gun aimed directly at him and/or wrestled to the ground to have a gun shoved in his face or mouth, realizing a man (or men) he likely knew that either accompanied him into the gym or arrived at the tail end of his shooting spree was about to neutralize him. Of course those two holes in the wall were from the bullets that mostly likely killed Hamilton. It goes without saying that the Cullen Report never mentioned the two bullet holes either.

Nor did the fact that if according to two scene-of-crime officers Malcolm Chisholm and Donald Scobie, Hamilton turned toward the wall with his back facing the gym when he supposedly shot himself, how does that explain the two bullet holes six inches from the ground with Hamilton’s body found lying on his back with his head and pieces of his brain closest to that wall?[367] Off duty police officer Grant McCutcheon dropping his two kids off at school that morning became the very first policeman at the crime scene arriving a half hour ahead of any other police.[368] And Grant distinctly witnessed Hamilton lying with his head towards the wall,[369] not as the later officers claim, which strongly suggests that Hamilton’s body must have been moved. And why would Chisholm and Scobie’s contradictory testimony also be securely tucked away from the public for the next century when it appears to support Cullen’s false narrative?

Though all the dead children were identified by around midday but one, frantic parents had to wait up to five agonizing hours before given the horrible news,[370] yet “leave no stone unturned” Detective Chief Superintendent Ogg lied at the inquiry claiming all the parents knew an hour to an hour and a half earlier than the actual time of 3:30PM.[371] He answered the question of whether parents were still waiting at 3:30AM with “I don’t think so.”[372] The most probable, logical reason for the grueling delay is that for hours the crime scene was being tampered with and bodies moved, specifically patsy Thomas Hamilton's, which explains the difference between the direction the killer's head was facing amongst witnesses. The obvious objective in the long delay was for police and Crown Service to make sure they got their stories straight regarding how Hamilton officially "committed suicide."

And why the discrepant accounts of the number of weapons Hamilton used to shoot his victims? With Officer Grant McCutcheon among the first at the crime scene, still able to smell the smoke in the air while a still alive Hamilton was in death throes gurgling and twitching, why would such a valuable police witness possessing experience familiar with crime scenes and readily discerning the most significant observable details recorded in his written statement not be called in to testify as a crucial inquiry witness? Any real inquiry in search of the actual truth would have automatically made him the ideal star witness. But Lord Cullen's production was never about attempting to find out the actual truth, which meant the one key witness whose testimony that would be most required to determine what really happened would not be needed at Cullen's stage show farce.

The obvious reason is that McCutcheon's eyewitness account directly contradicted Cullen's bogus official narrative that constitutes cover-up. The off duty officer's trained eyes observed that Hamilton wore only one holster and possessed only two pistols and that no revolvers were present at the crime scene at all,[373] opposing the official account claimed by Judge Cullen and his cherry-picked CSP crime scene officers reporting to the inquiry that Hamilton had used two Browning pistols and two Smith and Wesson revolvers while wearing four holsters dressed in black corduroy trousers with earmuffs to commit mass murder.[374] Yet every child and teacher was shot with a

Browning pistol, not a revolver. Only Hamilton died from a revolver that apparently had legs and magically disappeared… no doubt hitching a ride on the legs of Hamilton's actual killer when he disappeared. Grant McCutcheon also observed Hamilton wearing a black boiler suit without earmuffs.

An injured schoolboy also allegedly made the critical statement that he saw "the bad man" (Hamilton) being shot.[375] But of course it was quickly and easily discarded as the ramblings of a young, unreliable, traumatized child. So what if it supports the McCutcheon observations and answers a whole slew of anomalies to suddenly make far greater sense of reality than the forced official fabrication that withheld so much key evidence. Anything to save the evil masonic murdering pedophiles in power. Right Judge Cullen?

Also the two witnesses alleged to already be at the crime scene when McCutcheon arrived in the gym - janitor John Currie and David Scott, obviously also extremely important witnesses, but neither was called to testify at the Cullen Inquiry as only their written police statements were used. There is inconsistency in who arrived at the crime scene first. Sandra Uttley maintains that the student teacher at the scene was David Scott. But campaigner William Burns on his website dunblane.site and Newsweek both cite a student teacher named Allison Curry among the first on the scene. She was a student trainee from another school and was at Dunblane Primary School that morning as a mother attending a meeting with the head assistant over her 5-year old son's disruptive ADHD behavior.[376] She heard the gunshots as she was leaving the school and in a panicked state, ran to the gym apparently arriving within moments after Hamilton was shot and dying.[377] The former trainee teacher and mother, Allison Curry, was frantically willing to rush into harm's way because she knew her son Ryan Liddell was in that gym class and found Ryan shot in the arm and chest but somehow he managed to survive. Unfortunately 15 years later at age 20, he was found guilty of attempting to rape a 76-year old woman while under the influence of drugs in 2011,[378] a year later receiving a life sentence.[379]

Allison's witness statement is locked away under the 100-year ban as she also was not asked to testify in person. It was Sandra Uttley's enterprising diligence that tracked down Officer Grant McCutcheon and through a FOIA request acquired a full copy of his witness statement.[380] But the fact that Allison Curry, Grant McCutcheon, John Currie and David Scott as the first alleged witnesses at the gym immediately after the shooting were never requested as inquiry witnesses indicates Cullen had no interest in determining the real truth but called in only those that fit his false narrative of the lone nut gunman. The only early crime scene witness that did testify was head teacher Ron Taylor, who maintains he called the 999 emergency line at 9:38AM while Police Superintendent John Ogg insists Taylor called CSP Stirling police station.[381] Judge Cullen nor any of his solicitors even bothered to request records or sort that one out, allowing the contradictory evidence to slide.

Despite the four witnesses holding crucial evidence, apparently soon after the massacre Currie and Scott grew tired of being hounded and questioned. Currie always laid low and Scott has followed suit. The logical reason is their claims are both absolutely essential for holding the official lone gunman line, that Hamilton took his own life while possessing two additional revolvers and four holsters that Constable McCutcheon insists were absent. Since they were required to pull off the enormous deception with so much riding on it, no wonder they're nowhere to be found. At one point Scott told News of the World:

I have not spoken about this before and have no intention of doing so.[382]

Beyond his earlier quotes in The Scotsman, the Scott has resolutely refused to talk or cooperate with the press or any Dunblane investigators. Remarkable how virtually every witness whose testimony was used as crucial evidence supporting the false narrative seems to always runs away from those asking unanswered questions the inquiry failed to address, acting like they've all got something to hide.

Moreover, the Cullen Report never mentions either David Scott or Allison Curry by name, only referring to the "student teacher." Yet nowhere in evidence presented at Cullen's inquiry was the questionable statement that David Scott or a student teacher actually observed Hamilton shoot himself.[383] Only part of the student teacher's written statement was read by the "no stone unturned" Central Scotland Police Superintendent John Ogg. But the most crucially important point that an eyewitness saw Hamilton pull the trigger to kill himself was never even presented as evidence at the public inquiry. Yet suicide readily became the official word in both the Cullen Report and press coverage as Hamilton's cause of death, though an online postmortem report on Hamilton left it wide open.[384] Without David Scott's alleged testimony claiming to witness the suicide, the official story that Hamilton shot himself is suddenly rendered totally groundless and suspect.

Much is owed to a group of enterprising private citizens exercising their public right to know despite the government's suppression of truth. First up is William W. Scott (no relation to David), as soon as he learned that Lord Burton's 1999 request that the Hughes Report be placed in the House of Lords Library drew the reply that it was subject to the 100-year closure order, William Scott began tirelessly querying ministers and lords to get to the bottom of this travesty of justice.[385] For years he persistently attempted to gain access to buried documents through Freedom of Information Act requests. And after years of hammering away at the government, ultimately it was William Scott who forced authorities to finally admit that the 100-year rule did not have a legal leg to stand on, i.e., was invoked without any statute precedence or legal justification.

Along with William Scott, other tenacious advocates for Dunblane justice include William Burns for forcing the undeniable issue of the Freemasonry connection and making the strong case for a second inquiry before the SMP committee,[386] Tom Minogue and former QVS housemaster Glenn Harrison for connecting the school's patrons to Hamilton's VIP pedo-ring and advocating for a real investigation,[387] Sandra Uttley for writing the book on Dunblane Unburied truth, presenting a myriad of discrepancies,[388] and numerous others campaigning for a second inquiry to finally unveil the dark reality of what really happened, which is still yet to be done.

In William Scott's correspondence with Lord Advocate Colin Boyd asking why off duty police officer Grant McCutcheon wasn't included as an inquiry witness, William was told that McCutcheon wasn't needed since "a student teacher saw Hamilton shoot himself." William Scott valid response:

Nowhere in the evidence given to the Inquiry did the student teacher state that he saw Hamilton shoot himself.[389]

David Scott appears to be among the many weak links in the official Cullen narrative. Without his or the other student teacher's alleged word that Hamilton was seen sticking a revolver in his mouth to blow himself away, which fails to explain how Hamilton could blow himself away twice with two bullets through the brain, suicide is relegated to a mere flaky, far-fetched, wannabe theory if not outright lie. When weighed against the far more probable, plausible, overwhelming evidence of Officer McCutcheon insisting that no revolver was present at the gym combined with the boy's claim from the alcove that Hamilton was shot by another gunman, and the other alcove witnesses overhearing brief words exchanged and then a scream before the final shots in the gym rang out, there was no suicide. All of these written accounts when taken together can only mean one thing - that someone other than Hamilton pulled the trigger of that Smith and Wesson .357 Magnum revolver to murder Thomas Hamilton and in possession of that weapon then briskly departed out the fire exit door within seconds or a minute prior to Grant McCutcheon's arrival.

If it was known that someone else killed Hamilton, he would be regarded as a public hero for stopping the carnage after only three minutes and thus saving many more lives.[390] But the only reason the hero scenario won't work or ever be "officially" promoted is that the Hamilton killer as an undercover government operative would not want his identity known since he'd be implicated as an accomplice to the crime, even if Hamilton the patsy killed all the children and teacher that morning.[391] The government could not go public with the hero story, unable to justify his presence so soon at the crime scene without being in on the attack. Thus, the cabal's culpability could only safely be spared from public exposure by Hamilton "cleanly" committing suicide.

Nonetheless, it appears far more evident that one or more members of security services and/or CSP participated in the assassination of Thomas Hamilton, having colluded with him on the school murders, i.e., the Dunblane Massacre was executed as an act of state sponsored terrorism for the dual purpose of conveniently eliminating a dangerous liability to the pedo-cabal while instantly triggering the already planned mass gun control rollout co-timed in Australia with the state sponsored Port Arthur tragedy.

All anomalies are easily reconciled by the far more plausible reality that an additional inside gunman and/or accomplices used the revolver on Hamilton to shoot him twice in the head, if not also in the stomach and chest, again speculation based on initial eyewitness reports.[392] That would much better explain why Hamilton was in a supine position when he was killed. It accounts for the two bullet holes left in the one wall near ground level in addition to Hamilton's brief overheard dialogue with at least one other person as well as his shriek of surprise just before being shot.

Also during the shooting when Hamilton reportedly walked out the gymnasium fire exit door twice and shot off rounds inside the closest adjacent mobile classroom, the students and teacher hit the deck and remained there for several minutes, until well after the last gunshots were heard. Thus, it made it easy for the gunman (or gunmen) to stealthily leave the area without ever being noticed, allowing Hamilton's murderer(s) to escape undetected.

Then there's the unanswered question regarding Thomas Hamilton's body mysteriously moved from the school gymnasium. William Scott spoke briefly to a member of the first ambulance crew to arrive at the crime scene at 9:57AM regarding the probability that the body and crime scene were tampered with as it appears Hamilton's body was soon removed from the gym.[393] Officers from the Dunblane police claim they arrived at about 9:50AM, which according to the ambulance crew and off duty officer McCutcheon, that is not true.[394] Uniformed police showed up some time after 10AM. Meanwhile, the general manager from the ambulance company home office in Dundee quickly intervened to prohibit any further contact with William Scott. So the truth advocate then attempted to make contact with a Dr. J. Beattie, then Consultant Pediatrician at Stirling Royal Infirmary who was dispatched to the gym to treat the wounded and dying and said at a press conference on March 13th that he saw only one adult body at the school, meaning teacher Gwen Mayor. So where was Hamilton's body? At the inquiry he again never said he saw the killer's body. William

Scott's questioning him later by letter drew a hostile response from the doctor, not wanting any part in shedding much needed light on the mystery. Again, if asshole snuffed himself, all this body snatching would be totally unnecessary. Body snatchers only have one thing in mind, to keep something hidden from others.

While Doreen Hagger saw up close and personal how cowardly cruel and dangerous Thomas Hamilton was, intuitively feeling certain that Hamilton the coward that she knew would never commit suicide, Doreen's friend Sandra Uttley as a paramedic often encountered life and death situations that included individuals who attempted or committed suicide. With Hamilton in mind, Sandra wrote:

> It is a myth that those who take their own life are cowards. Cowards take the life of others, whilst wishing to preserve their own.[395]

And so it seems far more likely that the state chose to rid itself of a loose cannon deemed of highest threat to potentially bring down the entire British Establishment Empire, easily masked by using the false narrative that the pedophile took his own life. We've run into this exact same scenario many times over. Countless mysterious, suspicious, so called suicides and natural deaths are used to cover up unnatural murders of those who know too much as yet another running theme throughout the saga of modern pedophilia scandals.

The Cullen cover-up is only possible if student teacher's sole word is taken at face value, despite it not logically holding up amidst the pressure of so many contradicting anomalies. This explains why Scott or Allison were never required to show up as key witnesses at the Cullen inquiry for cross examination or even a name be mentioned on the Cullen report. Instead only selected parts of a written statement from a "student teacher" was safely read at the inquiry by Superintendent Ogg. Because both Cullen's official inquiry and report are so outrageously bogus, to ensure the Dunblane truth never sees the light of day, the only way the masonic judge could avoid jail himself was imposing the 100-year ban. And the only way that all the masonic VIP pedophiles not end up joining him behind bars was saved by the Cullen bell.

Additionally, per the Cullen inquiry, Hamilton perceived that parents within the larger community had increasingly rejected him and his clubs working with boys, thus motivating him to concoct the ambitiously monstrous plan to seek revenge, killing as many of the rejecting parents' children as possible at Dunblane Primary School.[396] Again, according to the Lord Cullen report, Hamilton went to the school carrying well over 700 rounds of ammo, enough to murder all 640 students and teachers in school that day in his revengeful rage against the Dunblane community. So why would Hamilton then stop after only three short minutes into his shooting spree, firing off just 105 of his 743 bullets? He still had more bullets left than children left alive in the school with plenty of time prior to the first police responders to walk the few steps to the nearest classroom he'd already shot at, full of more defenselessly trapped victims to finish off. It makes no sense at all if in fact as Cullen concluded, he intended to kill as many of the students as possible.

It's also been asked why Hamilton chose the Dunblane Primary School as the sole object of his sick revenge. Why this particular primary school and not some other local school? Through the years the average age of boys attending his clubs was 8-11, several years older than those he chose to slaughter. All but one who died were only 5-years old… unless in his demented mind, he knew that would have the most hurtful impact on his local town's parents. Hamilton was reportedly led to believe by the 9-year old at his club that half the student body would be in the assembly hall at 9:30AM where he first entered the school and shot off a round or two before moving onto the gym where the youngest in the school were about to begin their PE class.[397] Fortunately on that Wednesday morning, the assembly involving the younger half of the primary school students had already taken place an hour earlier at 8:30 or there likely would have been far more casualties.

Aside from the parents in his community that had rejected him, Hamilton held three other longstanding bitter grudges against his perceived enemies as well - the Boy Scouts organization was the first to reject him when he was barely an adult at 21. Plus, more than one local shooting club had turned down his application or terminated his membership. He brazenly violated gun club rules, often emptying an entire magazine on a single target at close range within seconds as he lacked both interest and ability for competition and gun etiquette.[398] In the half year leading up to the shooting, Hamilton stepped up both his purchase of guns and ammo as well as his rapid fire delivery target practicing. Meanwhile during the 1990s, Hamilton increasingly viewed Central Scotland Police as his chief persecutors. Yet in his paranoia and plot for ultimate revenge, those three enemies - the Boy Scouts, local snubbing gun clubs and CSP – were all spared from his most violent wrath.

Still another logical question… If revenge against parents and community was his main motive, why the primary school and not another one. A gender fact, perhaps incidental but perhaps not, out of the murdered 16 students, 11 were girls and only 5 were boys. The homosexual pedophile killer may have had a negative bias against the fairer sex as the class had near equal number of boys and girls. Author Sandra Uttley brings up the point that over twice as many girls died because of the inordinate number of head wounds suffered whereas boys were far less prone to being shot in the head.[399] This is consistent with his conflict and resentment towards females, likely related to his family dynamics and role confusion.

Queen Victoria School would not be Hamilton' first choice of his targeted violence since the parents of boys at that school are stationed in the military and do not reside in the Dunblane community. Incidentally, girls were allowed at Queen Victoria School in 1996 shortly after the Dunblane shooting. Another reason the madman would choose against shooting up QVS as still an all-boys school. But also infinitely more significant, among the Friends of QVS were VIP child abusers and exposure of Hamilton's VIP pedo-connections would be at far greater risk, especially considering that former housemaster Glenn Harrison had caused such a “ruckus” in his persistent, commendable efforts to stop the ongoing abuse.

Another noteworthy fact supporting the likelihood Hamilton was assassinated is that leading up to the 13th of March, there were absolutely no signs that Thomas Hamilton had any intention of killing himself. Unlike the handpicked witnesses representing Hamilton's social contacts and friends at the Cullen inquiry that reported they had not seen him in months as he was reportedly isolative and rather boring company,[400] many of his neighbors claimed just the opposite. Helen Peters who lived across the street from him on Kent Road maintained that in recent days just prior to the bloodbath, Hamilton was surprisingly talkative and uncharacteristically friendly:

He was so talkative for a guy who rarely exchanges more than a few words and never mixes.[401]

Perhaps Hamilton's only neighbor that came closest to being his friend was Cathleen Kerr,[402] who also noticed that Thomas Hamilton in the final few days was more “chatty and cheerful” than usual as well. The day after the massacre it was Cathleen who told the press that she and other neighbors were also aware of children "coming to his home but didn't suspect anything was wrong," adding, "Now I feel sick."[403]

The neighbor living in the flat above Hamilton happened to be Comrie Deuchars, the Scouts commissioner who'd rejected Hamilton's membership 22 years earlier. As the last known person to speak with the mass murderer on the morning of March 13th,[404] Comrie's observations also failed to support the notion that the so called recluse had retreated from social contact in recent months, which every witness and social contact selected to testify in person at Cullen's inquiry falsely claimed. Comrie reported that Hamilton had left Comrie's newspaper in his letter box as a friendly, neighborly gesture, and, considering the grudge that Thomas Hamilton allegedly held against the Boy Scouts and Deuchars in particular, combined with the remarkable fact that in little more than an hour Hamilton would be the biggest mass murderer in Brutish history, he showed no signs of duress to indicate he was planning to commit either murder or suicide. In the hours and days leading up to his last day alive, Comrie said the killer did not act the least bit depressed.

Hamilton's contacts with others the night before the massacre also showed no indication of suicide based on his twice a week routine of visiting his mother for dinner and taking in a bath on March 12th,[405] followed at home with a near hour-long phone conversation with a friend of 15 years. Both his mother and friend insisted he was his normal self, not someone on the verge of snuffing a bunch of kids as well as himself within the next few hours.[406] Additionally, the 43-year old had bought several new shirts at a store just days before. He also insisted on paying for his van rental in full prior to turning it in. Why would his spending pattern do that if he planned to kill himself in a couple days? None of these actions would be typical behavior of someone planning suicide.

On a near consistent weekly basis for up to two years, Hamilton kept asking a 9-year old boy attending his clubs about the physical layout of the Dunblane School and the assembly times, confirming his violent plot for revenge had been on his mind long before the dirty deed. The boy stated:

I told him their [P1's] assembly was on a Wednesday and the younger ones went straight into the gym afterwards at about 9.30.[407]

Hmm, he went straight into the gym at 9:30, sounds like slaughtering the youngest kids at the school was premeditated, not by accident.

On the Monday night just 36 hours before the massacre, Hamilton was conducting business as usual, not acting the least bit different, suicidal or depressed, still running another of his sports club classes at Bishopbriggs, a town on the outskirts of Glasgow, just outside the Central Regional Council district that had largely rejected him closer to home.[408] He was busily showing off his gun catalogue as a special treat to boys that excelled in his class that night. He'd been running his Monday evening club at the local Bishopbriggs high school gym since October 1995 and nothing about either his daily routine or his behavior suggested that he was planning to commit suicide a mere day and a half later. He was planning revenge though.

Hamilton's next door neighbors the Ogilvie's observed fancy cars, some with chauffeurs of VIPs coming and going to Hamilton's small public housing flat right up to less than 24-hours before the massacre.[409] Yet this critical piece of information was never part of the inquiry. By obvious design, Cullen ensured that any testimony showing or even suggesting that others may have been involved in the murderous plot was carefully avoided like the plague.

Prior to the internet days, as a suspected steady supplier of child pornography and boy victims for his highfalutin friends, the photo-bug porn man never seemed to run out of customers lusting after his pics depicting his favorite fixation – skimpily dressed young lads in various state of undress. Like perverted trophies, his apartment walls were brazenly decorated with these kind of highly suggestive pedo-themed photographs.[410] Receiving likeminded VIP houseguests less than 24 hours prior to his killing spree hardly reflects a man ready to shoot his own brains out - twice.

Less than a week ahead of the massacre, Hamilton is alleged to have spoken to a retired Central Scotland Police gun instructor John Wilson in a supposed chance meeting at a local store in Stirling where the 34-year police veteran later gave testimony at the inquiry recalling that Hamilton first asked for instruction on shooting “from 10 yards.”[411] Then the conversation turned to emphasizing the importance of every UK police department having:

An armed response vehicle… so that they could get to a firearms incident quickly*.*[412]

At the time that Thomas Hamilton made the alleged statement above, he’d already worked out his plan for the Dunblane Primary School massacre, likely counting on selected “friend(s)” from law enforcement and/or perhaps security services providing prearranged backup assistance to “get to [his] firearms incident quickly.” Along these same lines, Dunblane Unburied author Sandra Uttley suggests the possibility that a collaboration with CSP or MI5 may have led Hamilton to believe that a waiting getaway vehicle would be provided allowing him to start life anew elsewhere since he’d obviously had worn out his welcome in Stirling-Dunblane years earlier.[413]

The fact that just prior to the shooting a number of his neighbors insist that Hamilton was more social and upbeat than ever before while the prospect that authorities may have agreed to assist him to relocate and start a new life elsewhere makes perfect sense as a source for his surge in optimism. At this point he was their controlled patsy as they moved in for the kill.

Fellow mason-CSP officers that had long been covering up both his and their crimes were likely colluding with Hamilton in the school shooting as a setup to murder him. Having grown increasingly wary of Hamilton as a very serious, increasingly unstable liability to the entire British Establishment, in its ever-vigilant duty to protect the realm, MI5 and Central Scotland Police were reputedly carrying out orders to ensure that Hamilton was “suicided” at the end of “their” killing rampage that the ruling elite would opportunistically seize to exploit in order to easily disarm UK citizenry of their right to bear firearms. And like synchronized clockwork just weeks later the planetary controllers ensured Australia would follow suit, another step closer to fulfilling the cabal agenda to disarm populations in all nations worldwide.

In a diabolically planned, staged atrocity of unimaginable horror, again fatally harming children for the most egregious dual purpose, a mountain of circumstantial evidence indicates that the criminal cabal bloodily sacrificed a gymnasium full of defenseless little kids using its despicable stooge to do its evil bidding in order to deliver gun control off the blood of slaughtered innocents and squelch yet another VIP pedophilia scandal. And ever since, this same ghastly, tragic pattern’s been endlessly played out, beginning just 46 days after Dunblane in Tasmania, and recently yet again in New Zealand, and in between dozens more times in America as the last major holdout for private gun ownership. This is the only plausible conclusion that adequately addresses and answers the countless anomalies and contradictions of the official Dunblane propaganda called the Cullen Report, constantly reinforced this last quarter century now by scores of proven similar state sponsored tragedies on a global scale.

So the easy to hate Thomas Hamilton unwittingly became the Deep State's first targeted, convenient patsy in the international crime cabal's mission to confiscate legal gun ownership globally, starting in 1996 at the heart of the Queen's Commonwealth - Britain and Australia. But having so many unsolved, unresolved, flagrantly avoided and unanswered burning questions and improbable anomalies in the UK government's official false narrative, Judge Cullen knew he had to apply the statute-less 100-rule to protect all guilty parties including himself, despite it being such an obvious, unprecedented, illicit cover-up of such lowdown, diabolical truth that only invited a flood of disbelief, scorn and contempt from the public.

But that's how the British pedo-Establishment has always operated, confident that once the initial heat created by each breaking pedo-scandal plays itself out, with standard cover-up in due time, they always blow over. The British people have grown so anesthetized and desensitized by this fixed recurring pattern of a horror show, so used to the blatant, in-your-face lies and cover-ups, years ago they've come to expect and complacently accept this same shameful dreadful condition, either subliminally or consciously, fully aware that their nation's political system is so corrosively rotten to its morally irreparable core, that it's been long past the point of no return.

It was certainly no random accident that just six weeks later the even deadlier tragedy at Port Arthur, Tasmania killed over twice as many both adults and children at 35. What do you think the odds are that Dunblane would become the most lethal mass shooting (and only school massacre) in Britain’s long history while Port Arthur would be Australia’s deadliest counterpart taking place just a few weeks apart? And then like clockwork just months afterwards, two of the top Commonwealth nations in the world successfully banned private ownership of firearms in the most stringent gun control on the planet.

The international crime cabal works synchronously as it turns out that the Port Arthur patsy Martin Bryant was a Tavistock mind-controlled 28-year old possessing an IQ of only 66, said to be suffering from trauma-induced dissociative disorder.[414] Bryant’s psychiatrists were on record as Tavistock trained. Of course security services and Tavistock mind control are synonymous as is security services and both false flag mass shootings and the global pedophilia network. In the same vein, Thomas Hamilton was also deeply psychologically impaired, drugged, brainwashed and controlled by authorities as well.

Leave it to security services to take the heat off their mind-controlled assassins in two Commonwealth nations while in the UK also covering up a notorious masonic VIP pedophile ring. In one fell swoop, national attention was diverted away from government culpability in the business of mind controlled assassins, brainwashing violent patsies groomed specially to become their nations’ designated deadliest mass killers. And the dividend bonus in Scotland was successfully hiding yet another VIP child sex abuse scandal amongst so many already, sinisterly misusing the tragedy for sleight of hand misdirection to press the “urgent need” for gun control, manipulating a pair of Commonwealth populations into voluntarily surrendering their gun rights.[415] Not that even the strictest gun control laws ever stop criminals from procuring lethal weapons illegally nor stop more state sponsored shooting sprees, though once the ruling elite successfully disarmed the UK and Australia in 1997, little need was left for orchestrating bigger shooting sprees in either country…

Unlike stubborn, “gun-happy” America where sixteen years later, the Sandy Hook false flag hoax at Newtown, Connecticut was launched, allegedly claiming 20 children’s lives to become the cabal’s American equivalent to Dunblane.[416] Despite America’s school shootings sadly becoming commonplace, starting with Colorado’s 1999 Columbine High shootout, all have failed to deliver gun control. So like clockwork ever since, the litany of America’s nonstop state sponsored mass shootings are still ongoing, each adding incremental pressure on top of the rest to ultimately repeal the US Constitution’s 2nd Amendment – the right for private citizens to bear arms. The bottom line – the planetary controllers will not let up until Americans and indeed the entire planet are subdued and defenseless against state sponsored democide. The tragic irony is the more draconian and authoritarian the state becomes usurping and destroying what’s left of our human rights and civil liberties, the more the state attempts to brainwash and convince that it’s absolutely necessary in order to keep us “safe” – the biggest lie of all. These state sponsored false flag atrocities are the governments’ main M.O. on achieving a global police state one world government.

US Judiciary Committee Chairman - GOP Senator Lindsey Graham - held a gun confiscation hearing on March 26, 2019.[417] It’s only a matter of time before all the unfolding world events and developments, including state sponsored false flag terrorism[418] as the international crime cabal’s global arsenal and agenda to - in the name of “security” instill fear and insecurity that makes people easily controlled while stripping away their vanishing freedom. Currently it’s the cabal’s highest priority to eliminate our right to defend ourselves. For years, the elite’s beta test spearheaded by the UN as its prototype model has been relentlessly pushing towards a universal small arms treaty ban that even the US can live with.[419] Meanwhile, Sen. Graham is confident his latest push will attain rare bipartisan support, including Donald J. Drumpf's.

And right on synchronous cue prepping the March 26th Congressional hearing on US gun confiscation, the Ides of March strike again with the latest mass gun violence – 50 shot dead in two New Zealand mosques.[420] With this Commonwealth nation's gun laws considered even more relaxed than the US, New Zealand's now deadliest attack on record will be used to try and kill two birds with one stone, paving the way for gun confiscation in both New Zealand and America as well.[421] Despite New Zealand's gun ownership during the past decade rising by 62% to 1.5 million guns in 2017 amongst a population of just under five million, the homicide rate has remained extremely low.[422] In fact in one hour the alleged March 15th death toll exceeded the total number of New Zealand murders committed during the entire year 2017. And of course, surprise, surprise, the nation's Puppet Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern immediately promised much tougher new gun laws.[423]

So without this latest cabal perpetrated false flag, there'd be absolutely no reason for stricter gun control in New Zealand since as a proven relatively peaceful nation, the murder rate's actually been steadily dropping despite the increase in gun ownership by obviously law abiding citizens. This latest state sponsored crime illustrates the dire straits that the human race is facing now at the hands of the murderous pedophilic elite. It's up to us citizens of the world to learn the truth and not allow the propaganda machine to dumb us down into ignorance, complacency, impotence or fear.

Once you see past the propaganda machine, you realize the entire world's been hijacked and conned by a minuscule minority of psychopathic Luciferian lunatics allowed to deceptively operate freely within their centralized control system, to systematically terrorize the global population into giving up its rights, freedom and private gun ownership as the unconvincing tradeoff for increased security and safety that never quite comes. There’s no security or safety in the planetary controllers’ depopulation agenda of mass democide through bioterrorism,[424] the 5G rollout[425] geoengineering[426] and global war.[427]

Be it at the annual Bilderberg meetings or occasional informal group mind get-togethers attended by the most public faces of the ruling elite - the likes of George Soros, Warren Buffet, Bill Gates, Oprah Winfrey, Ted Turner and Michael Bloomberg plot mass genocide, of course couched in deceptive humanistic terms like overpopulation[428] and UN Agenda 21/2030 sustainability, with more lies foisted on the global public to justify the status quo of so called progress through more earthly rape and plunder.[429]

Next up is the other big pedophilia scandal in Scotland, the Holly Greig cover-up that will just not go away. This shameful debacle is dissected and unveiled in Chapter 26.
